

Harrisburg's Jewish Community-Wide Hurricane Sandy Relief Mission

By Rabbi Akiva Males

As we are aware, countless families in the NY/NJ area recently lost their homes and possessions to Hurricane Sandy.

A lack of power, bad weather, and the sheer volume of the damage has severely impaired many families' efforts at cleaning out their homes, and beginning the process of rebuilding their lives.

In a wonderful statement of unity, a group of volunteers spanning Harrisburg's entire Jewish community (and beyond), spent Wednesday, 11/14/12 in Staten Island, NY helping hurricane victims in a very hands-on fashion.

Starting at 4:30 a.m., our group met at the JCC to load our bus with an incredible amount of supplies and clothing which our community had generously donated for the hurricane victims.

Upon boarding the bus and taking down each volunteer's name

(we didn't want to leave anyone in NY), I was struck at the diversity of our group. We truly represented the broad and diverse nature of Harrisburg's Jewish community. From an excited bunch of The Silver Academy's 7th graders to a hard-working volunteer in his 80's, our group was also comprised of all ages.

In the days leading up to our mission, a rabbinic colleague of mine helped me contact an energetic Josh Commer of the Young Israel of Staten Island, NY. That large synagogue, has become one of the vital command centers in assisting Staten Island residents who were hard-hit by the storm. In the days following Hurricane Sandy, families of all religions, backgrounds, and circumstances who had been devastated by the storm, began reaching out to Josh's synagogue for assistance with their homes.

As soon as Josh learned that he'd have over 30 able-bodied volunteers looking for work on Wednesday, he sprang into action, and found appropriate jobs for each member of our group.

After a quick breakfast, we were hard at work.

The 7th graders did an incredible job of helping the synagogue sort through all of the donated goods and clothing which had come in.

After all, those items can only be distributed once they are properly organized.

The rest of us were split up into work groups of 4-5 people, and assisted families (both Jewish and non-Jewish) whose homes had sustained hurricane damage ranging from flooded basements, all the way to total loss.

After a solid day's work (the day went by surprisingly quickly), it was time to board our bus and return to Harrisburg. Thanks to a Kosher pizza shop which delivered nine of their delicious pies to our comfortable coach bus, we all enjoyed a much-welcomed treat on our trip back home.

During our drive home, many volunteers stepped up to the microphone at the front of the bus and shared some of their unique reflections of the day. I found it fascinating that each group of volunteers had taken in such different sights, conditions, and experiences at our respective locations.

While our efforts certainly went a long way in helping others, I think that each member of our group gained even more from the rewarding feelings that we experienced.

As stated above, this was a true Harrisburg Jewish community-wide effort, and I'd like to thank the many people who helped this all come together so quickly.

Each of our community's rabbis, Dr. Ed Beck, Andrea Weikert, W&L Sales, Executive Coach Inc. (who partnered in our relief efforts by offering us a highly discounted rate on our bus rental), the many volunteers who found a way to be a part of this mission, the many people who donated clothing and supplies, the Young Israel of Staten Island for all their work in helping us assist their neighbors, and the generous sponsors who enabled our group of volunteers to offer a helping hand to the victims of Hurricane Sandy.

(It's still not too late to become a sponsor of this mission. Please contact the JFGH's Andrea Weikert at a.weikert@jewishfedhbg.org for more details.)

May we always find ways to engage in good work together as a united Jewish community.

Foundation of the Foundation

Gathered in Baltimore

By Howard Ross | Executive Director | Jewish Community Foundation of Central Pennsylvania

The General Assembly of the Jewish Federations of North America is the premier gathering of the world's Jewish leadership. Every major American and Canadian city is represented, along with Israeli and other leaders from around the globe. From November 11 – 14 this year, we gathered in Baltimore to address the pressing issues of world Jewry.

Every General Assembly offers invaluable learning experiences; this year for me focused on the changing state of funding Jewish agencies and synagogues, especially in the United States.

I remember as a child when the “gabbi” would auction off the High Holy Day aliyot, raising money for the synagogue. I remember the parlor meetings where the men would gather and embarrass each other into giving more and more to support the JCC, day school, Jewish family services and Israel.

Today, Jewish fundraising is totally different. Parlor meetings are few and far between and synagogues sponsor every fundraising concept possible to keep the doors open. (Although I doubt the High Holy Day aliyot are auctioned any more.) Today, men have taken the backseat to the women, who are the leading fundraisers and, in many cases, the leading donors.

As a young Federation exec about 30 years ago, I remember a General Assembly session which dealt with the future need for endowment dollars. I remember the mantra, those who do not build substantial endowments will be in fiscal distress by the end of the century.

Now, in the 21st century, attending a two-day program on endowments and planned giving in Baltimore, I learned a staggering statistic: Over 50% of annual campaign dollars come from planned giving and endowment funds. Over 50%!

So, how are we doing in Harrisburg? During the 2011-2012 fiscal year, the Jewish Community Foundation of Central Pennsylvania distributed over $1.8 million. Sounds like a lot, doesn't it? Unfortunately, it is not nearly enough to assure the fiscal soundness of all of our agencies and congregations. We need AT LEAST double that amount!

Of course, we all need to fund our agencies and congregations to keep them open today, but we also need to build endowed funds to keep them going tomorrow. The lesson that I had reinforced in Baltimore is that without substantial endowments, we might not make it through the next 30 years.

Is your synagogue in your will? Is the Jewish Federation? Is the Silver Academy? Is JFS? Is the JCC? If not enough say “yes” Well, you know

PORTRAIT OF WALLY

3 Credit CLE Program To Present Film and Discuss Court Case at Jewish Community Center

The Cardozo Society of the Jewish Federation of Greater Harrisburg is pleased to announce the first area screening of Portrait of Wally on Thursday, December 11, 2012 at the Jewish Community Center of Greater Harrisburg, 3301 N. Front Street. The CLE program and dinner will begin at 5:30 PM. This fascinating documentary tells the story of the personal appeal to the Museum of Modern Art by the family of Viennese art dealer Lea Bondi whose prized painting by Egon Schiele was taken by the Nazis before WW II.

Throughout the years, Bondi never stopped looking for Schiele's piece, probably her only connection to a country that she could no longer call home. Then, in 1997, "Portrait of Wally" resurfaced, as part of the Leopold Museum collection on loan at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. The family asked the Museum to keep the painting in New York when its exhibit Egon Schiele: The Leopold Collection closed.

Howard Spiegler, Esquire, co-chair of Herrick, Feinstein's International Art Law Group in NYC, will present an overview of the court case and the opposing views with the case's conclusion and facilitate a question and answer session. Spiegler will discuss Wally's prolonged court action—the painting was held by U.S. authorities for 13 years before a decision was made—which opened the gates for later cases by Holocaust survivors. Also to be discussed is background as to how the courts, legislature, etc. were complicit in the Nazi program of stealing from Jews and others.

This program will earn attendees 1 Ethics and 2 Substantive CLE credits. Reservations are required either online at www.jewishharrisburg.org and click on the Portrait of Wally link or by calling 236-9555 Ext. 3204.

Dinner, film, and CLE credit application fee –

Cardozo Society member *: $60

2013 JFGH Annual Campaign Pledge Required

Non-Cardozo Society member: $90

Law Students: $20 - dinner, film

Film only: $10 - does not include CLE credits

Due to the format of the educational component of this event, the CLE credits can be earned only by attending the entire event - not only the film. The Jewish Federation of Greater Harrisburg will take care of mailing your CLE credit form and payment to the PACLE

"[A] bombshell! 'Portrait of Wally' isn't just about stolen art: It's about cultural skulduggery, political sleaze, institutional hypocrisy and the virtues of persistence."

- John Anderson in Variety

"Works like a suspense drama! A painting's provenance matters, and so does this portrait of 'Portrait of Wally.'"

GAGA TOURNAMENT: A FUN AND ACTIVE FAMILY NIGHT

The Annual Harrisburg JCC Family Gaga Tournament was back for 2012. The Saturday night event on November 10th saw kids and parents battle it out in a variety of gym games. With the music pumping and the help of the members of the Student Athletic Committee running the games, the night provided two hours of non-stop fun.

The night began with open gym time and quickly turned in to some friendly competition with games of knockout and soccer. The students in attendance then took on the challenge of playing Gaga and played numerous games where every game seemed to produce a different winner. Many of those in attendance love playing Gaga at camp, so getting to play this time of year was a true treat.

After the conclusion of Gaga, the competition turned into parents vs. kids in a giant game of dodge ball followed by a game of noodle hockey. “Everybody was smiling and went home tired. It was a fun night out and could not have happened without the help of teens Max Hess, Sophie K Fox and Emily Wolf,” stated Sports and Fitness Director Terri Travers.

Honoring Adoption in November

By Rachel Kuhr, LCSW, Director of Adoption Services

Who are the foster children JFS/AdoptionLinks helped to find their forever families? A sibling group of four, ranging from three to twelve, adopted by the grandmother of the younger two boys, to insure all four children can remain together. A fourteen-year-old boy, living in a group home because “nobody wants teenagers,” adopted by the parents of one of his friends from football, the teens being the driving force behind this young man finally finding a family. A ten year-old boy who came to live with his two moms, and who also found a community cheering on his successes every day. A thirteen-year-old, taken in by an aunt and uncle who supported her through her mother’s death and her father’s instability, now raising chickens and learning to hunt with her new dad. Three children from another state with special medical needs who found their forever home with seven other children, both birth and adopted, forming a kickball team for play in the side yard. A young man, only eight who, despite his seven foster homes, wanted to stay with a family. With the support of our Family Based program, his new parents learned to meet his mental health needs and become his adoptive family from this day forward.

These are just some of the foster care adoptions that the staff of JFS has been privileged to be part of in the past year. Unlike some larger agencies, we only do a small number of adoptions each year, yet our impact is wide reaching. In the past five years, we have supported 28 families referred by county agencies who were adopting children in their care. We have helped eighteen children to find families through our Resource Family Program, which connects families willing to adopt from foster care to find children waiting for families. And we have worked with eleven adoptive families through our specialized family-based program, including children adopted internationally, at birth, and from the foster-care system.

Not all of these adoptions are easy. Often families have to change their parenting style, advocate for educational or mental health treatment, or rearrange their entire households in order to bring new children into their families and keep everyone safe. Many struggle while case workers burn up phone lines to arrange “out of network” mental health services in this area.

Others settle in, grow five inches in the first year, catching up for lost time and causing their new families to buy entire new wardrobes for them. Some of these children have never lived in a home where they could just walk up to an unlocked refrigerator and take out a drink or a snack.

Some have never gotten to pick out the quilt on their bed. Most have never dared dream of staying with one family forever.

At JFS, we see each family and each child as special, and deserving of our support, even if that means we think outside our usual services to help them out. We provide extra training when a specific need is identified. We send books home so a child can practice reading over the summer with his new family. We listen when they get frustrated, angry, and don’t understand.

We offer specialized mental health services, post-adoption support, and all of our collective knowledge and passion.

We do it, despite the difficulties, to see the smiles on each family member’s face on their adoption day, and the joy that becoming a family forever brings to the children and their parents.

We do it because everyone deserves someone to call their own, even 18-year-olds with long histories both good and bad. And we honor them all in November, National Adoption Month.

For more information about adoption through JFS, call (717) 233-1681.

B'nai Tzedek Helps Hurricane Victims

When the B'nai Tzedek Youth Foundation heard of the tragic circumstances that had befallen many in New York and New Jersey from Hurricane Sandy, they knew that they wanted to help in some way. During their weekly Hebrew High class, the group decided that they would organize a week-long non-perishable goods drive and deliver the items to those in need in New York.

Through Facebook, email, and word of mouth, they spread the word about their drive and by the end of the week they collected over 500 pounds of non-perishable food items, including batteries, canned goods, and toiletries. With the assistance of Rabbi Akiva Males, the group was able to get in touch with students at Yeshivat Chofetz Chaim in Queens, NY who were traveling to Far Rockaway, one of the areas hit by the storm. The Chofetz Chaim students were incredibly impressed with the amount of goods that the Harrisburg community was able to gather.

DR. JACK RICHARD GOULD

Dr. Jack Richard Gould, 90, of Harrisburg, passed away Thursday at his home. He was born in Brooklyn, NY on February 28, 1922 to the late Morris and Sylvia (Mitchell) Gold. He was a retired chemist whose most recent employer was the American Petroleum Institute; he was a member of Temple Ohev Sholom and the American Chemical Society. Jack was the former editor of Preprints Journal and instrumental in the development and growth of the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation (the Foundation Fighting Blindness). He received his Doctorate in Organic Chemistry from Penn State University and was an avid photographer and gardener. Surviving are his wife, Ruth L. (Schnitzer) Gould; his son, Kenneth A. Gould and his wife, Roberta Tipton of Berkley Heights, NJ; his daughter, Michelle Rau and her husband, Jay of Harrisburg; two grandchildren, Ethan and his wife, Heather and Adam. Funeral services were held on Sunday, November 18th at the Bookstaber Chapel of Mt. Moriah Cemetery with Rabbi Peter Kessler officiating. Private burial was held in Cedar Park Cemetery, Paramus, New Jersey. Arrangements were handled by the Hetrick-Bitner Funeral Home. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations can be made to the Foundation Fighting Blindness, PO Box 17279, Baltimore, MD 21298-9581.

PATRICIA M. LAVERTY

Patricia M. Laverty, 77, of Harrisburg, entered into the arms of her Heavenly Father on Saturday, November 3, 2012 at her home surrounded by her loving family. Pat was born on February 28, 1935 in New Cumberland and was the daughter of the late Clarence J. Jr. and Elizabeth Fink Rensel. She was a graduate of the former Middletown High School Class of 1953 and a retired employee of Nationwide Insurance Co., Harrisburg. She was a faithful and devoted member of The Grace and Truth Bible Church, Hummelstown, a member of their adult choir, and a teacher for the Children's Sunday School Class and a Volunteer for the Reformed Unanimous Intentions. Pat was also a member of the JCC Senior Adult Club. She enjoyed cooking, baking, reading, crafts, and travel. Her greatest joy was the love she received and gave to her family especially her grandchildren. In addition to her parents, Pat was preceded in death by her sister, Shirley Strauss. Pat is survived by her husband of 56 years, Samuel E. Laverty Jr.; two sons, David S. husband of Diane Laverty of Newport, Michael S. husband of Wendy Laverty of Bainbridge; brother, Clarence J. husband of Donna Rensel of Myerstown; seven grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and 2 nieces. Funeral services were held on Wednesday, November 7th in her church with Rev. Daniel J. Norton Jr. officiating. Burial was in the Woodlawn Memorial Gardens, Harrisburg. The Matinchek & Daughter Funeral Home and Cremation Services, Middletown handled the arrangements. Condolences may be sent to www.matinchekanddaughterfuneralhome.com.
