

Super Sunday - Super Successful!

On January 27th, more than 1,000 calls were made on Super Sunday. The volunteers were enthusiastic about a day of making a difference. Phones rang throughout the Harrisburg Jewish community from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thanks to their efforts, we met our goal and raised 30% over last year. The success for the day was thanks to Alex Halper, Super Sunday Chair, David Herman and Julie Wright Halbert, Campaign Co-Chairpersons, and the JFGH staff members.

"Nothing compares to the incredible Super Sunday energy and the feeling of being surrounded by caring people from all ages and from different parts of our Jewish community. It is so rewarding to see many people come together each year to make the Harrisburg Jewish community a better place," said David Herman. "There's nothing like a Super Sunday filled with fun, with shouts of joy and excitement as successful calls are announced, and with such a shared feeling of purpose."

In the afternoon, Hebrew High students and AZA boys made the final push for gifts. They rang the bell each time a gift was received. The teens enjoyed making the calls knowing they were making a difference as Jewish community leaders.

"The JCC has been there for me since I was a little kid, and it's important to keep it open. I have been fortunate enough to do so many activities at the J and I've really grown up with it," said Lila Portman, BBYO member. "It's really important for people to donate to the Annual Campaign so other kids can have an experience like mine."

The funds raised by the Annual Campaign provide support and services for the entire Jewish Community, including JCC programs such as the Early Childhood Department, summer day camp, senior nutrition programs, after-school care, a state-of-the-art athletic facility, programming for adults, teens and young children and cultural arts; allocations to Jewish Family Service and The Silver Academy for operational support; and funds directed to Israel and overseas.

"The volunteers and staff who came out for Super Sunday did a fantastic job and I think had a pretty fun time. Everyone just seemed determined to make the day a success, and it's great to see that all of the enthusiasm and hard work resulted in a strong showing on Super Sunday," said Alex Halper.

It's never too late to donate and ensure our future in the Harrisburg Jewish Community! We have raised just under $600,000 of our $1.2 million with an over 12% increase. Need more specific information to donate? ## Almaya, a Quality Israeli Program

Following a recent article about direct giving to support Israeli programs, I was asked what I felt were some of the best. One of those, which maximizes the effect of every dollar, is Almaya.

Integration of the immigrant Ethiopian Jewish community is one of Israel's difficult tasks. Almaya is addressing the problem.

Almaya is a grassroots organization that both represents and serves the Ethiopian community in the Negev. Almaya's leadership, lay and professional, is excellent. The Executive Director herself came up through the ranks of Almaya, having served as a youth worker, coordinator of youth programs, interim director, and now director. The Board is good and representative of the community; the Executive Committee is committed and involved, a mix of members of the Ethiopian community and others.

Almaya's veteran programs continue, though at a reduced level for now due to budget restraints. These include the Home Visiting Program for young mothers and infants, Bama'aleh educational enrichment and support for grade school children, and Coor'at focusing on the performing arts for teens. Many of the children and youth in the programs come from difficult backgrounds and find pride in their identity and abilities through Almaya. Programs for the community, including celebrations, commemorations, and cultural events also continue. Almaya also runs Youth Centers in Beer Sheva, Sderot, and Arad.

Almaya sees itself becoming a leading Ethiopian grassroots association working to empower and develop local leadership within the community. Almaya strives to integrate community members into Israeli society. Almaya programs and activities answers a wide range of needs while stressing the values, heritage and traditions of the Ethiopian community. Almaya's programs encourage excellence in the community in the areas of education and culture, sports and arts.

Over the years, Almaya has developed programs that target infancy and early childhood development, academic excellence, teamwork, and leadership development, as well as culture and arts. The ultimate goal is always excellence well beyond the particular area of focus, giving the children and youth a sense of belonging and accomplishment, pride, skills, and often literally saving them from severe personal and family situations. Since its founding, Almaya has helped Ethiopian immigrants and their families integrate into Israeli life while preserving the uniqueness of the community's traditions.

Almaya has won numerous awards, including: The President's Award, Ben-Gurion University's Award for Innovative Training of Students, The Clore Foundation's 50th Anniversary Award, and the New York Federation Award for Family Care.

Taste it.

Certain Jewish foods have magical powers. For some, it's a piece of egg challah. For others, some flaky rugelach, a sweet noodle kugel, or a savory brisket. Magical foods might taste good, but they get their power from the memories they bring us — memories of home, community, heritage, and love. When you leave a Jewish legacy, you're setting a table for the future, ensuring that what you cherish about Jewish life continues to sustain, nurture, and delight the generations to come. ## Monte Carlo Night Draws a Full House

This year's Monte Carlo Night on February 2nd at the Harrisburg Jewish Community Center was bigger and better. People also enjoyed delicious appetizers and desserts, drinks, live music, dancing, a silent auction and a basket raffle.

It was gratifying to see a range of age groups represented among the attendees. The night was full of great camaraderie and people having an amazing time!

Proceeds from the event go to benefit the Day Camp scholarship fund and Green Hills improvements.

The Benefits of Massage

By Lisa M. Reed, L.M.T. PA #MSG000936

Absolute Massage Therapy

Have you thought about massage but think, I'm too busy? How can an hour actually help? You have work, phone calls to make, errands to run and the list goes on and on. But your knee hurts, your shoulders are sore, your back aches, and you are not sleeping right at night.

Here is how an hour of therapeutic massage can benefit you...

Imagine lying on a warm table between fresh crisp sheets, soft relaxing music playing in the background. The gentle sound of the massage lotion being warmed between your massage therapist's hands. The aching knee pain goes away. The throbbing, over stressed muscles, melt and feel soothed.

An hour later you get up from the table, walking in slow motion. You come out of the massage room and notice the smell of fresh air and feel the warmth of the sunshine on your face. All those reasons that kept you away from making that call to schedule your massage seem so far away. The problems of the world have faded into oblivion after 60 minutes of relief. All you can think is, did it have to end?

Why does this happen?

A tight, stressed muscle cannot hold much fluid nor can it allow blood or oxygen to pass through it. Think of your muscle like a sponge that is squeezed tight. It doesn't absorb water. When your muscles become tight or stressed, this decreases the circulation of your blood and increases the strain put on your heart. This can leave you feeling stressed, sore, fatigued and reduces your previous energy levels.

Massage therapy releases the contracted tight, stressed muscles and pushes blood towards the heart easing the strain on the vital organs. The increase in circulation brings much needed oxygen and energy-producing nutrients to your muscle cells. It also flushes the toxic waste that was stored in the muscles that caused you to feel lethargic and drained.

Massage therapy calms the nervous system and relaxes tense muscles causing your body's rhythm to slow down. When this happens, your heart rate settles, your blood pressure lowers and your breathing becomes deeper and more rhythmic, priming you for a perfect night's sleep.

Massage therapy increases your body's oxygen carrying red blood cell count helping to bring even more oxygen to your body's cells. Massage therapy not only increases your red blood cell count, but it increases the circulation of lymph fluid which helps the body fight off infection and speed your recovery time from injury and illness.

Health is our Greatest Wealth!!!

The Morrison Love Story: A musician, a wedding consultant and 59 years of devotion

By Mary Klaus

Al Morrison doesn't sing to his bride of 59 years. But when the iconic Harrisburg musician sits at the piano and plays "All the Things You Are" to his cherished wife, Fae, his sparkling eyes and heartfelt music speak volumes of an endless love.

"We've had a beautiful life," agreed the Morrises during an interview at The Residence on the campus of The Jewish Home. "We're best friends."

The Morrison love story began even before Al Morrison of Steelton met Fae Lightman of Harrisburg in the early 1950s at a dinner party on North Second Street, Harrisburg. Al, who grew up in Steelton and worked at the family's Morrison Shoe Store at 19 N. Front Street there, already was a musician when they met. "Music and I always liked each other," said Al, who in 1927 was enthralled by "The Jazz Singer" starring Al Jolson at the State Theater. "After seeing that film, I went to my grandmother's house, sat down at her upright piano in the dining room and began playing what I thought was jazz," he grinned. "The family liked it,"

Al's parents bought him a piano and signed him up for piano lessons. He joined the Steelton Drum and Bugle Corps when he was 8, played in the Steelton High School marching band and, as a teen-ager played at bars and grills throughout the area. He majored in music at Lebanon Valley College in Annville and continued his work as a musician even while in the Army.

Soon, Al was playing the piano everywhere in the area, from weddings to reunions and for everyone from Mamie Eisenhower to several governors -- while still working in the family shoe business. Meanwhile, his future wife, one of three daughters raised by her widowed father, was helping out at her family's Lightman's Cut Rate Store at 1127 N. Cameron St.

As young adults, Fae and Al met at a dinner party. Both were pleased. "She was really pretty," he said. "He was really nice," she said.

The couple, both members of the Jewish Community Center Young Adult Club, began dating and attending dances. Sometimes, Fae would accompany Al to functions where he and his musicians performed in everything from a trio to a full orchestra.

"Once, Al was playing at the dance for the Central Pennsylvania Teen Princess pageant at Zembo Mosque," Fae recalled. "He said on the speaker "now I want to dance with my princess." Then we danced as his band played for us."

The Morrisons got married on February 7, 1954 at Beth El Temple, where they still belong.

As Al's musical career grew, Fae balanced secretarial work with her new career as a wedding consultant. Soon, it became difficult to tell who was best known in the couple, the musician who was a staple at nearly all the social events in the Harrisburg area from 1939-2002 or the wedding consultant who from 1965-2005 arranged hundreds of weddings for couples of all faiths and in various settings.

"A woman would get engaged, call me and ask me to help do the wedding," Fae said. "I loved it. I would arrange flowers, cakes, receptions, music and more for weddings indoor and outdoor and for Jews, Christians, Unitarians and more. I worked with all budgets too."

In their spare time, the Morrisons enjoyed theater, opera and ballet. Fae also liked spending time in her kitchen, becoming known for her tasty kugels, brisket and mandlebroit.

Along the way, the Morrisons had a son, Douglas, now a psychologist in Chicago, and a daughter, Mindy, now a lawyer in Baltimore. They also have three grandchildren.

The Morrisons moved to The Residence in 2005 and say they love their apartment, friends, staff and activities. Their love for each other seems to grow stronger each year as each sings the praises of the other. "I love being with Fae," Al said. "She makes me happy." Fae called her husband "a kind, sweet man who never complains. We complement each other."

Asked the secret of a long and happy marriage, both smiled. "Love and respect each other," Al said. "Fae has taught me patience." Fae smiled lovingly at him, then added "never go to bed angry. Always talk things over. Pull the blind down on any bad things and be optimistic. If you love each other, everything works out."

Early Learning Center Contributes its Efforts to Super Sunday

In the spirit of involving all Federation departments in Super Sunday, the Brenner Family Early Learning Center was determined to be a part of this extraordinary day.

Under the direction of artist and Turning 4s teacher Jodie Raffensperger, the Turning 4s and other classes in the Early Learning Center put their hands (and a few feet) into the project – literally. The end product is this beautiful, colorful banner. Not only does it demonstrate creativity, it also represents a willingness and enthusiasm of the ELC students and teachers to be a part of the Super Sunday event.

A special Thank You goes out to Jodie Raffensperger and the Brenner Family Early Learning Center for the banner that now adorns the Atrium lobby.

A Purim Letter to Students -- and the Rest of Us

By Rabbi Akiva Males

Each year at this time, Ricki Gold leads Keshet Israel Congregation's effort in sending out Purim Care Packages to our college students. This is a beautiful project that our Shul is proud to carry out. Over the years, many students have told me how much these care packages have meant to them. I am always happy to write a short holiday letter to be included in the package.

After writing my letter for this year's Purim package, it struck me that while my letter was written for today's college students, the message below is one that applies to all of us – regardless of age.

Wishing you a Happy Purim!
Rabbi Akiva Males

Adar 5773 / February 2013

Dear KI students,

I hope you are well. Can you believe that it's Purim time already? I was just looking through the beginning of chapter 3 of the Megillah of Esther, and I think there's a message that clearly speaks to the contemporary Jewish student on campus.

Chapter 3 opens with Mordechai, a citizen of ancient Persia who was fully involved in his nation's affairs. As a Jew, he had no problem going about his daily business and playing a completely active role in the non-Jewish society around him. But then something fundamentally different occurs: a new trend begins, with Mordechai's contemporaries treating another human being -- Haman -- with the respect usually reserved for G-d alone.

At that point, Mordechai is forced to make a choice. Will he remain steadfast to his religious convictions, or will he go with the flow and violate his religious traditions and principles by bowing down to another human being as if he were G-d?

We all know what Mordechai chose to do and how the rest of the story played itself out.

The question we need to ask ourselves is: how to react when pressured by our peers to act in a manner inconsistent with our Jewish values and traditions? How will we respond when forced to choose between social acceptance and the tenets of our rich Jewish legacy?

It is no coincidence that the Megillah concludes by calling Mordechai "HaYehudi" – the Jew (Esther 10:3). Mordechai was the ultimate proud Jew we can all look to for direction.

While he played a full role in non-Jewish society and was an officer in the king's court, Mordechai continued to hold his head up as a proud Jew. He never lost sight of his Jewish values and principles. In fact, he used those very principles to shape his decisionmaking process.

When the going gets tough, I hope we'll all look to Mordechai for inspiration and guidance.

Layala and I wish you a wonderful Purim!
