A very generous member of our Jewish community has offered our Federation a life line!

At an emergency Board meeting held Monday evening, May 21st, the Federation Board of Trustees unanimously voted to obtain debt financing up to $1.1 million to help cover our cash emergency. This generous donor has offered to finance the debt payments for 2 years. The debt financing enables the Federation to continue operations and alleviates our short-term cash flow problems that were aggravated by last fall’s flood.

We plan to create and quickly act upon a new long-term business model for the Federation/JCC. Younger members of our community, especially those 50 years old and younger, have told us that they are committed and interested in supporting the JCC, an essential fixture that’s been a central part of the Harrisburg Jewish community for many years. Committees to create and implement an action plan are presently being formed. As these plans are being framed, we will advise all of you, our members, every step of the way.

The Board of our Jewish Federation, working with interested and dedicated volunteers and professional staff, is committed to finding a new model for our Federation/JCC, one that will allow us to sustain ourselves and prosper. We are also committed to continue providing not only those services and programs that our members have become accustomed but also new, exciting programs as we examine new ways to achieve this.

Updates will be communicated through the Community Review, email blasts, and Kol Harrisburg (to receive Kol Harrisburg as a bundled email, write to Kol_Harrisburg-subscribe@yahoogroups.com or “Like” Kol Harrisburg on Facebook) and on our Facebook page (“Like” The “Official” Page of Jewish Federation of Greater Harrisburg/JCC). Community members can call the JCC at 717-236-9555 or email members of the Board and management team at board@jewishfedhbg.org with questions and to volunteer their time and expertise as the action plan is developed.

JEWISH FEDERATIONS OF NORTH AMERICA SENDS AID TO HARRISBURG JEWISH FEDERATION

When natural disaster struck in Japan, New Orleans, Haiti and Southeast Asia, the Jewish Federations of North America (JFNA) were there to provide support for the people and infrastructure of these communities. But watching from afar, we never dreamed that Harrisburg would be one of these communities devastated by natural disaster.

In September 2011, when Tropical Storm Lee ambushed Harrisburg and destroyed the bottom floor of the Jewish Community Center on Front Street, we were in the same situation as those other areas. When people think of JFNA, they usually think of aid to Israel and other overseas Jewish communities. But JFNA is much more than that. “When communities like Harrisburg experience the profound challenges a natural disaster poses, the Jewish Federations are there to help,” said Cheryl Fishbein, chair of JFNA’s Emergency Committee. “From crises like the flooding in Harrisburg to tornadoes in the Midwest to wildfires in the West, the Jewish Federations provide critical, lifesaving emergency relief and long-term support, in the guiding spirit of tzedakah (charity).”

Earlier this month, the JFNA Emergency Committee authorized a grant in the amount of $100,000 to the Jewish Federation of Greater Harrisburg. The much needed dollars will help offset the shortfall in funding from flood insurance and FEMA funding.

Marilynn Abrams, President of the Jewish Federation of Greater Harrisburg said, “Over the years, the Harrisburg Jewish community was always one of the national leaders in per capita giving for Israel Emergency campaigns. We are grateful that when we were on the other end, JFNA was there to help us.”

Today, eight months after the devastating flood, we are still struggling to return to normalcy. It’s been a challenging time, but with the help of organizations like the Jewish Federation of North America and our community, we are headed in the right direction. The Harrisburg Jewish community is grateful for all continuing support.

Esther Boldes – A Woman of Valor

By Patti Bromley

I first made Esther Boldes’ acquaintance when she graciously volunteered to be a featured writer of the JCC Senior Adult Club’s activities for the Community Review. I was immediately struck by her quiet, gentle presence.

As the Nazi regime infiltrated other European countries, including Czechoslovakia, Esther’s parents decided that they needed to get to Palestine sooner rather than later. As Esther recalls, “The Germans had already started to slowly tighten the noose. The Jews had to surrender their modes of travel – bikes, cars, etc. – and all of our gold and jewelry had to be turned over to the Germans.” When Esther’s affidavit for Aliyah arrived before her parents’, they took her to the German office to get her passport stamped so that she could leave Germany – she was 13 years old. Esther’s parents had to have their passports stamped with a big “J” on the outside of it.

In July 1939, Esther’s parents brought her to the train station where she met other children who were also making Aliyah to Palestine. Her mother gave her a small throwaway camera, but when the Nazi police came onto the train and confiscated a lot of their possessions, Esther was so frightened that she threw the camera out the window to her mother. As Esther tells the story, “The windows of the train were all shuddered – you couldn’t see out of them. The soldiers kept moving us around on the train – the Germans were transporting munitions on the train to Poland.” She had never been away from home, and now she was traveling alone to a foreign land. The train took her to the port in Genoa, Italy where she stayed in a youth hostel before boarding a boat, “The Jerusalem,” bound for Palestine. “The Jerusalem” was the last legitimate transport of youth and children making Aliyah from Prague to Palestine. Esther left Europe two weeks before the outbreak of World War II and considers herself lucky that she was able to escape.

Esther’s parents never made it to Palestine, and she was never able to find out what happened to her father; the last letter that they received from him was from Ghetto Lodz in Poland. She and her sister received a postcard from the Red Cross informing them that their mother had died of cancer in a hospital in Germany, and the rest of her mother’s family was taken to the camps.

When Esther arrived in Palestine, she was put on a bus to Herzlia, where her sister lived. Since she had learned Hebrew and English at her school in Germany, she was able to converse with the locals. She was introduced to the youth in the village, of whom she was the youngest. They introduced her to the “underground,” which was a group that was formed to defend themselves from the Arabs; however, Esther explained that they had Arab neighbors who were very nice and very generous. The first settlements were always being attacked by the Arabs, and the only guns that they had were WW I issue; the British confiscated any weapons they could find out what happened to her father; the last letter that they received from him was from Ghetto Lodz in Poland. She and her sister received a postcard from the Red Cross informing them that their mother had died of cancer in a hospital in Germany, and the rest of her mother’s family was taken to the camps.

Building Community Together ... THE GOOD WE DO IS UP TO YOU!

I write this in the glow of the Susquehanna Tzedakah Society Dinner, honoring the founders of the Greater Harrisburg community, its agencies and congregations.

For the dinner, each of the organizations prepared a poster highlighting their founding; the men and women who worked to build the buildings and to provide for those who followed.

As I walked around the room listening to the comments of those scrutinizing the posters, I was fascinated to hear, “there is my cousin”, “that is my great grandmother”, “oh my, that is me as a child!”.

My mental notes the next day led me to learn more about the families whose pictures adorned the posters the night before. In most cases, they were prominent names with the Foundation as well; they were the men and women who built endowments to assure that their creations would continue.

It is no secret that there are fiscal issues in the Harrisburg Jewish community; the community has to decide whether the vision of the founders will continue or if the light will dim. The answer lies in each and every one of us. We must decide what it is that we want and need from our community.

It is apparent that the structure of the community must change to meet the needs of the times; the vision of the founders was focused on 1930’s, 40’s and 50’s. This focus will change, offering a new vision and a paradigm of community.

But this too will fail unless we, like the founders of the 30’s, 40’s and 50’s endow the institutions to help assure their success into the future. Contrary to the “disposable society” in which we now seem to live, we must have a solid foundation onto which our new structures rely.

Will your picture be on the posters in 50 years? Will your great grandchildren exclaim, “There is my great grandfather”? Will you be a part of the legacy that is the Jewish community of Greater Harrisburg?

Please join The Women of Vision Philanthropic Fund as it presents its Spring Event and Awards Presentation on June 7th at 7pm at the JCC. Pam Shultz will outline how to organize our lives and our spaces. Pam has built two companies since 2002. And lastly, Corky will discuss the issue of “Term Limits” for many Federal, State and Local elected leaders and why he believes it is essential for government on ALL levels.
The youth of the country - youth Aliyah and children who were born there - volunteered to form an army; they didn't want people with families to join the army. British intelligence officer Orde Charles Wingate took the boys to Lebanon for training, and they later formed the elite Palmach Force of the IDF.

They learned the communication systems of Morse code and semaphore and how to identify the various night noises that they heard while on patrol. The fighters and youth were all involved in the underground.

The army was made up of Arabs and Jews, but that changed when the Jews wanted their own flag and their own emblem on their uniforms.

Esther graduated from school when she was 17 and volunteered for the Auxiliary Territorial Service, which was the female branch of Palestine's army. She signed up to become a driver. They first sent her to training to become a soldier in Sarafend and then to a large camp in Egypt where she learned the mechanics of vehicles and how to drive in the desert. Esther was stationed in Cairo and in Haifa. In 1946, she was discharged and went to a school to study to be a pediatric nurse. She worked in hospitals and in a refugee camp in 1947-48, where she worked with babies and children. Everyone was getting ready for war. Esther took a course in first aid, where her future husband, Heinz, was the instructor. In 1948, the Arabs declared war on Palestine. She had a red card, which meant she could be drafted. In that same year, Esther and Heinz got engaged, got married, and she decided to enlist rather than be drafted. She drove pick-up trucks and a staff car for a captain in charge of civil defense in Chadera. When she got pregnant, Esther quit driving and assumed desk duty until she was discharged in 1949. Heinz was a major in the Israeli army and was in charge of a very specialized unit that could build a field hospital within 20 minutes. Esther and Heinz went on to have 1 daughter, Naava, and 1 son, Eitan. They decided to come to the United States in 1957. Heinz was in charge of first aid and traveled the entire country training people in first aid. "I was worried about Heinz traveling all the time when it was so dangerous. It was also frightening hearing the sirens, and the children were constantly afraid, so we decided it was time to leave." This was at a time when there was a war between Israel and the Arab countries. They left in July, and their daughter was born on July 4th. They left to Philadelphia, where her cousin lived, and then moved to Harrisburg in 1964.

Once they retired, Esther and Heinz traveled the world. Unfortunately, Heinz passed away in 1999. Since then, Esther has been very active in many Jewish organizations – a lifelong Hadassah member, ORT, and the Jewish Home. She is also active in the JCC Senior Adult Club, where she is currently vice president of membership and publicity.

She has been blessed with three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Esther often thought about her military service in Palestine, and she decided to write to Queen Elizabeth, through the British Consulate in Washington, D.C., to inquire as to how to obtain the medals she had earned during her service. In 2010, after many months, she finally received her medals, much to her delight and to the delight of her family.

I asked Esther if she could sum her life in one sentence. She responded, "I feel that I was lucky to get out of Germany when so many of my relatives did not. I felt that I wanted to leave a footprint." I am sure that after reading Esther's story, many of you will agree that she has, indeed, left a footprint.

Over the course of Shabbos April 27-28, Kesher Israel Congregation hosted the third annual Dave & Frances Cohen Volunteer Recognition Shabbaton.

In addition to honoring selected members of our congregation for their volunteer service to KI, Rabbi Benjamin Blech -- an internationally recognized educator, religious leader, best-selling author, and lecturer -- joined KI as its Scholar-in-Residence for the Shabbaton.

KI had the privilege of hearing Rabbi Blech deliver four fascinating -- and well-attended -- presentations over the course of the Shabbaton.

(KI thanks Judy and Dan Schulder, Cheryl and Norman Gras, and Layala Males for hosting Rabbi Blech.)

The Dave & Frances Cohen Volunteer Recognition Shabbaton is designed to enhance Kesher Israel’s appreciation of its congregation’s members who have been outstanding volunteers for the Shul.

This year, KI was proud to honor and thank Esther Katz and Rabbi Barry Nussbaum for their many years of volunteering time, services, and resources on its behalf. Both honorees are perfect examples of the legacy of volunteerism that Dave and Frances Cohen demonstrated during their lifetimes.

The events of the weekend were generously sponsored by Dr. Sid and Phyllis Cohen (Cleveland, OH), as an act of honor and respect for their parents -- and as a call to action for everyone in our Jewish community.

KI thanks the Cohens for creating such a meaningful tribute to their parents - of blessed memory.

A Reflection on Seven Years at Jewish Family Service

By Lori Weitzman, Senior Services Case Manager

It’s hard for me to believe that I just recently celebrated my 7th anniversary at Jewish Family Service. Now I don’t want to give anyone the wrong impression. There was no marching band, flowers sent, or visit from a celebrity of any kind. It basically was a normal day of the week, just like any other. But it made me think about the significance of the number seven in the Jewish Religion and the things that I have learned in this time period. The number seven is associated with Creation, G-d created the world in seven days. There are seven days of the week. We rest on Shabbat, the seventh day of the week. At every Jewish wedding, seven blessings are recited. Each Shabbat, seven people are called to the Torah. Tefillin straps are wrapped around the arm seven times. Each plague in Egypt lasted seven days. On Shabbat and holidays, we recite seven blessings in the silent Amidah. There are many more things associated with the number seven in the Jewish Religion, but I think I’ve made my point.

So as I reflect on seven years, I am reminded of the many clients that I have worked with who were in need of help in one way or another. Some people have needed Kosher Meals on Wheels; some people have needed help with grocery shopping, getting to a doctor appointment, extra support from a caregiver to provide assistance with personal care, housekeeping, etc. Some clients have no one else to assist them. And as they continue to grasp onto whatever independence is left, they are facing the most challenging time in their life, maintaining that independence. Sometimes, this can be easily remedied with the assistance of a dedicated volunteer. When I think of the volunteers that have been willing to take on some of the tasks that clients are faced with, it never ceases to amaze me. VOLUNTEERS are the lifeline of this agency. For the Two’s Company program and Kosher Meals on Wheels, they help keep these programs running successfully. But when I am confronted with the question, “What is the most difficult part of your job?” I would say that answer has not changed in seven years… finding volunteers. The need for help is always there. Older adults are living longer and continue to seek out ways of getting support services in order to remain at home safely for as long as possible.

Now, if someone asked me what my favorite part of the job is, I continue to have the same answer,” working with this age group.” I never stop learning from them. Everyone has a story to tell. Some of them are heartwarming, some of them are funny and entertaining, some can even tear at your heart strings, but everyone deserves to be given the respect of being heard. So often our older adults are overlooked in communities. They are not considered to have a voice in society once they reach a certain age. I disagree completely. I would encourage everyone to take some time out of their busy schedule to help someone in our community who is struggling with day-to-day challenges. I promise that you will make that individual’s day by offering to take them to the grocery store, or running an errand for them. Having the one-on-one time with someone can be very healing to a person who may be isolated in his or her home environment. None of us likes to think about what our future has in store for us when we face the “golden years.” But you might need someone to help you or a loved one at any given time.

Why not experience the mitzvah of giving back to others? It truly can be the greatest act of kindness and generosity you perform.

I want to extend a special thank you to every volunteer who has taken time out of their schedule to help a client of Jewish Family Service. Whether you have packed meals, delivered meals, schlepped to appointments, grocery stores, made phone calls, visited with a client for socialization, or any of the multiple other tasks my volunteers have performed over the years, I applaud you all and express my sincere gratitude. You are all special jewels in our community, and we are blessed to have you as a member of the Jewish Family Service “Family.”

Another thank you to all the holiday package volunteers over the years, including The Silver Academy 1st grade students who have been helping assemble these delectable items since the program first started in 1998.

Seven years of learning, growing, advocating for older adults, seven years of blood, sweat, and tears. I hope to be around for a long time, working with those people in our community who need some extra support. If you would like to find out more about volunteering for Jewish Family Service, please feel free to call me at 233-1681.

AMERICAN RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE PLEASE DONATE!!!

The JCC will be having another American Red Cross Blood Drive on Wednesday, June 20, 2012 from 1 PM to 6 PM in the Mary Sachs Auditorium. The Red Cross provides over 40% of the blood needs in the United States; responds to disasters both large and small; helps members of the military, veterans and their families; and teaches lifesaving skills. Maintaining sufficient blood to meet patient needs is a delicate balance between supply and demand. In addition to disaster-related blood needs, the Red Cross must collect enough blood each and every day to help accident victims, cancer patients, surgical candidates, children with blood disorders and others.

The Northeastern Pennsylvania region is responsible for collecting 102, 000 units of life saving blood in the coming fiscal year. To meet the needs of patients in hospitals that the region serves, over 400 units of blood must be collected daily. “Critical type” blood needed are O, A negative and B negative donors, whose blood is frequently in high demand by hospitals, but oftentimes is in short supply. There is a particular need for type O negative blood. All blood types can receive type O negative red blood cells. That’s why it’s used in emergencies when there is no time to determine the blood type of the patient.

Please help by donating blood if you can. For a specific time to come in, call Cheryl Yablons, 236-9555, ext. 3115. Drop-ins are welcome.
