Empathize: care for people in times of need locally and globally.

A stunning autobiographical one-man show by New York actor and playwright, Stephen Axelrod. The story of Axelrod's treadmill quest for identity that is relentlessly thwarted by a father intent on making him an extension of his own Queens blue-collar existence. Axelrod evokes a form of tragedy that emulates the rough poetry and human insights of Clifford Odets, Phillip Roth and Lenny Bruce.

"Axelrod injects humor, pathos, and an abundance of passion into his heart-rending tale."

When COMEDY Went to School

Sunday, October 13, 3:00 pm
Fox East Theatre, 4350 Perkiomen Avenue

Why are there so many Jewish comedians? When Comedy Went to School answers this question with an entertaining portrait of this country's greatest generation of comics the generation that includes the likes of Jerry Lewis, Sid Caesar, Jackie Mason, Mort Sahl and Jerry Stiller, all of whom make appearances in the film, telling jokes and telling their stories. The answer is also found in upstate New York's Catskill Mountains, aka the Borscht Belt, where Jewish immigrants transformed lush farmland into the 20th century's largest resort complex. Those Catskill hotels and bungalow colonies provided the setting for a remarkable group of young Jewish-American comedians to hone their craft and become worldwide legends. It was truly When Comedy Went to School.

"...a hilariously funny and delightfully nostalgic look at the era when stand up comics were the featured entertainment at top summer resorts in New York's Catskill Mountains." - Jennifer Merin, About.com Guide
