One Call Does It All

If your telephone rings on Super Sunday or during the following week and the caller says they are calling for the Federation 2009 Annual Campaign, it’s not just another solicitor you’ve never met calling for a cause you’ve never heard of.

It will be someone like you, who is Jewish, who lives in Savannah, asking for your help, asking you to sustain and build our local and global Jewish community.

That’s what the Savannah Jewish Federation is all about. The caller will be asking you to help maintain a program you’ve likely attended in the past, to support a community center that you frequent, a school where you’ve sent your children or grandchildren, the State of Israel that you’ve watched and loved since its inception.

The reality is that the gift you’re being asked to make means counseling and other services for a victim of a homicide bombing; providing food for the hungry whether it’s a single mom or a retiree unable to make ends meet, no matter if they are here, in the former Soviet Union, Israel or Cuba. It means job training for refugees arriving in Israel with no means of support. It means social services and aid for Jewish men, women, and children in need — here at home, in Israel, or in one of 38 countries around the world where the funds we raise here in Savannah provide relief and support.

It means helping to make sure there are a wide array of Jewish programs and services available to our community — whether it’s our shaliach and services available to our community — whether it’s our shaliach and partners in the State of Israel that you’ve watched and supported. It means grants to our local religious organizations, including, but not limited to the JFS, the Hebrew Academy, our local schools, church organizations, and others.

One Call Does It All. It means more than that, as in times of crises such as hurricanes or other disasters, it means more than that, as in times of crises such as hurricanes or other disasters.

Jewish Family Services
Gearing Up for Economic Down Turn

Larry Dane Kellogg, Jewish Family Services Director

In the Broadway musical (and movie), Fiddler on the Roof, a farmer spurns Nachum, the beggar, with the excuse that he (the farmer) had a bad week and therefore can give Nachum only one coin instead of two. Nachum asks him: “Why should I suffer just because you had a bad week?”

No one can argue that the economy has begun to take a nose dive and it has affected many of us in one way or another.

Jewish Family Services, a subsidiary of the Savannah Jewish Federation, is the primary safety net for those in Savannah’s Jewish community struggling to make ends meet. When the economy suffers a down turn, the ability of Jewish Family Services to respond to the charitable needs of the Jewish community is impacted two-fold: (1) the number of clients requesting financial assistance increases, and (2) the amount of charitable donations to fund that assistance decrease.

In the recently completed fiscal year, JFS witnessed a sizeable increase in both the number of clients requesting assistance and in the dollar amount of assistance required (and not by just a little bit). Requests overwhelmingly went toward payments of rent/mortgage but the funds also went to pay

Changing Perspectives

Here in the midst of the UJC/Federation campaign, I should be using this space to be a cheerleader. I should tell you that giving to the annual campaign helps Jews in need throughout the world and in our community, supports our schools and keeps the doors of the JEA open. I should tell you that contributing to the campaign is one of the most important obligations you have as a Jew fortunate enough to live in America, and that there is nothing you can do that will better serve your fellow Jews. So please forgive me if, just this one time, I don't.

Over the last twenty-three years or so I have often had the opportunity to brag about the friendliness, generosity and cohesiveness of the Savannah Jewish community. I tell people how easily and completely a couple of Yankees were welcomed here by people with roots over 200 years old. Over the last few weeks Carol and I have experienced tangible proof that all I have ever said is true. The concern and support we have received from all quarters has been heartfelt and sincere and beyond all expectations. It will take us a long time to individually thank all of you who have called, written, visited or nourished us recently.

It is human nature that we tend to focus on our differences and concentrate on problems. We spend a lot of time and energy dealing with those things on which we disagree and tend to dwell on them and embellish them until we begin to believe that these things really matter. Sometimes they do matter, especially when our perceived differences lead to acrimony and intolerance and when we are so focused on them that we lose sight of what we have in common. So I won't pretend that our differences don't matter. But I will say that they are less important than we think.

It is easy to say that we should all take stock of those things which are truly important and stop focusing on trivia, but that is not our nature. When life throws us a curve we resolve to change, but then fall back into our bad habits. I'm sure that in the not-too-distant future I will be drawn into another contentious issue between segments of our community full of high drama and perceived risk. But I have been forcefully reminded of how cohesive, generous and empathetic our Jewish community is, and I will try to keep that reality foremost in my thoughts and in shaping my perception of what our community can be like. One Jew helping another Jew—sort of sounds like a campaign slogan, doesn't it?

We couldn't do it without them! Help us thank our advertisers—Please support their businesses!

Thankful

Savannah's Jews—we are an opinionated bunch. Put two of us in a room together and you'll get three opinions, maybe four.

There is one thing about which we can all agree; our Jewish community needs to be united, as one people, regardless of our political beliefs, religious affiliation, Jewish activities, or level of Jewish activism.

We have so many important reasons to work together: raising the next generation of Jews, caring for our people in need, and working for Israel's continued survival. Who will care for us if we don't care for each other?

In his book, "A People Divided," Dr. Jack Wertheimer, the former Provost of the Jewish Theological Seminary, wrote about how "belligerence and intolerance have become the hallmarks of American Judaism."

Wertheimer claims, "it is no longer possible or wise to dismiss religious polarization as peripheral to Jewish life. The divided world of Judaism imperils the unity of the Jewish people in America...In addition, name-calling and invective are now routinely injected into Jewish public discourse."

Unfortunately, gossip, divisiveness, and finger-pointing have become all too common. Maybe it is my naivety, my positive outlook, or my hope for the Savannah Jewish community: I believe it is possible to have fundamental disagreement but that we can disagree in a civil manner.

I write this a week before Thanksgiving and am reflective of all the things we have to be thankful for in the Savannah Jewish community. I remain very positive about the course of our community. I am thankful (thanks to the support of the Slotin family) to be able to provide a new program like The PJ Library. I am very thankful for Young Jewish Savannah—in only a few months, many young adults have stepped forward to work with the group, but also in other projects throughout the community—talk about future leaders! I am thankful to have such great lay leadership: the officers of the JEA and Federation work tirelessly on all of our behalf. I am thankful that thus far our solicitors are having very positive responses for this year's campaign. Despite a very difficult economic climate, people are digging deep, people are making our Jewish community a priority. I am thankful for the response we get from the weekly community e-mails—hopefully there is something for everyone; hopefully they make you think. I learn from you all each and every week. I am thankful for the cultural and identity events that are taking place every day at the JEA. I am thankful that I have colleagues at the Federation and JEA who give so much of themselves—all in an attempt to make the Jewish community even more vibrant and welcoming.

And, I am thankful—Thankful for your support, your confidence, and your participation. Whatever the dispute, we can work it out; whatever the challenge, we can overcome; whatever the concern, we have the will to make things better.

Together We Are a Strong Light

What a month we just had. The elections are over, and, like many Israelis, I was curious to see who will be elected President of the United States. We also had elections for counsels and mayors in Israel, and a lot of people were very interested to know who is going to be the Mayor in different cities. A date was set for the election for Prime Minister in Israel, February 10, and the results will be significant for us as a society. Times are changing, and we are looking for political leaders to help lead our country in better days.

This month gave me a lot of material to think about. My parents sent me an article published in one of the bigger newspapers in Israel. It was about how the world economy is creating negative action against Jewish people. Neo Nazis broke synagogue windows and assaulted Jewish people in the streets in Europe. In Germany, a pig’s head was hanging on the Magen David of a gate in the entrance to a Jewish cemetery. Jewish organizations in Eastern Europe are worried about the increase in violent actions against Jewish people. The fear is that when the world economy is bad more anti-Semitic actions will occur. I think that we, the Jewish people, always stuck and helped each other in times of trouble. But I know we can change experiences and good days as well.

Being a schlich and being able to share holidays, happy events and tell about Israel, not only the problems and struggles people deal with but also the culture, achievements and celebrations, (and at the same time learn more about my self and different communities), for me, this is a door to a strong connection with Jewish people around the world and this bond is important always.

In November 1995, Yitzhak Rabin, who was Israel’s Prime Minister, was murdered in Tel Aviv, during a demonstration about the peace process. The murderer, Igal Amir, was a Jewish citizen who disagreed with Rabin’s political opinions and thought that the results of them will be dangerous for Israel. Many Israeli citizens were terrified after the murder. And I was too. I was 10 years old that year and I remember the hard feelings in the streets in Israel. I was so overwhelmed that I made an album with articles published that time. I thought to myself that no matter how people disagree, we should all be able to understand in the end that we all love Israel.

But one wonderful thing happened as a result of Rabin’s assassination: We now have a pre-army year called “Mechila” where young people from different streams of the society learn together and do community work together, and study each others experiences and opinions. Mechila is not required, but more and more people choose to do it each year, and along with other parts of army training that on how professional they found Georgia law enforcement, on how much they learned about its multi-jurisdictional structure and on how warmly they were received throughout Georgia during their visit.

The session with the high school students went very well and I am pleased with the positive feedback. Your kind introduction at Friday’s dinner and the community forum on October 31st is greatly appreciated. I was pleased with the attendance at the community forum. The interaction and exchange that took place were timely and showed the strong connection and care between Jews and Israelis. We also appreciated the assistance that Federation gave us with hotel rooms. On behalf of the IP delegation and GILEE, I thank you for the kind assistance you provided and the hospitality accorded to us. I hope that we will be able to generate the much needed support for the program in Savannah.

Your assistance to GILEE and Georgia State University is greatly appreciated. Thank you for everything you have done and I am looking forward to our continued cooperation on GILEE projects.

Letters to the Editor
Dear Friends,

I have been so overwhelmed by the warm wishes and prayers sent my way as Joel and I navigate through the world of cancer. From the people taking over my volunteer responsibilities at a moment’s notice, to the offers and delivery of services, food and drivers for not only me but my father as well, and the mitzvahs, prayers and donations to worthy causes made in merit of my healing, I have found it difficult to catch everyone to thank personally. So please hear in my words how sincerely blessed I feel to being living in this community and among people like all of you.

Thank you all so much for your continued thoughts and prayers—
Carol M. Towbin Greenberg

Dear Mr. Solender:

The GILEE Program for the 14th Israel Police delegation has ended and I am writing to thank you for your help in making it such a success. The eight members commented very favorably in this community and among people of trouble. But I know we can change experiences and good days as well.

Community to ‘Trade Places’ Again on Dec. 24 & 25; Volunteers Needed

For many of us, the holiday season elicits vivid imagery of families spending time together, office parties and other social get-togethers, the increasingly wintry weather, and, of course, giving and receiving. For more than fifteen years, the Savannah Jewish Community has been giving a very important gift to the larger Savannah community: a gift of their personal commitment to help others with the Savannah Jewish Federation’s annual community service project known as Trading Places.

Co-chaired this year by program veterans Vivian Slotin, Barbara Kooden and Rhoda Weiland, Trading Places is rewarding in many ways. Throughout this mitzvah, the Jewish community provides volunteers to organizations throughout Savannah, allowing their regular employees and volunteers a chance to be home with their families and loved ones for Christmas.

Co-chair Vivian Slotin explained: “Trading Places has always afforded families an opportunity to share the joy of tikkun olam together. This year, we are seeking to expand on the already popular sites we visit. In addition to providing comfort and hot meals at Old Savannah City Mission and Union Mission, we will be doing some really different things like helping to take care of abandoned dogs at Coastal Pet Rescue. If you love animals, then this will be a great opportunity for a family with young and old members alike! But in expanding our services, we’ve also expanded the number of volunteers we need, so I hope everyone reading this will ‘answer the call.’”

Young Jewish Savannah, the nascent group for 21-40 year olds, will be volunteering at the Ronald McDonald House, as they blend the mission of being a social organization with social justice. Michelle Russo, of YJS, is coordinating their plans for the day. Volunteers also will be preparing and delivering breakfast platters for area police precincts and firehouses, to thank them for all the hard work they do throughout the year.

The Interfaith Hospitality Network also has provided us with an opportunity to help those less fortunate at Wesley Monumental Church where we will help serve a holiday meal. Safe Shelter, an organization dedicated to helping victims of domestic abuse will be opening its doors to our volunteers so we can assist those who have been traumatized by unfortunate events. In addition, there will be the traditional volunteering opportunities at Buckingham South and of course at the JEA, so we can make sure that Sharon, Chelsea, and all of the others who keep our community center open every day can be with their families on their holiday.

Whether it is a chance to serve a homeless family a hot meal, feeding and caring for an animal, or providing other sources of comfort to those less fortunate in our city, Trading Places is a wonderful chance to express our support and love for our community during this special time of the year.

To volunteer for Trading Places, please fill out the coupon below and fax it back to us (355-8110) or drop it off at the JEA or go to the Savannah Jewish Federation website, www.savj.org, and use the online registration form or stop by the JEA and fill out a registration form at the front desk. For more information, please contact Ben Kwseskin (ben@savj.org, or 355.8111 x. 206) or Vivian Slotin at alvin.slotin@comcast.net.

Charitable IRA Rollover Extended

As part of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008, Congress extended for two years a provision in the tax code allowing individuals to take distributions from their IRAs and give them tax-free directly to charitable organizations. Taxpayers age 70½ and older are required to make annual distributions from their retirement accounts. Normally, the distributions are included in the taxpayers’ adjusted gross income (AGI), and are taxable. The Charitable IRA Rollover allows taxpayers to make donations totaling not more than $100,000 directly from their IRAs to charitable organizations, without counting those donations as part of their AGI and, consequently, without paying taxes on them.

The Charitable IRA Rollover is a wonderful way to start a Jewish legacy for your family and a wonderful way to make a difference for the Jewish community. A Charitable IRA Rollover can be used to start a fund within the Jewish Community Foundation of Savannah that will provide resources for programs or causes or scholarships that are dear to you that also help to ensure the future of our community. Whether it is to provide for social services for the needy or to provide scholarships for Jewish camping experiences or to perpetuate your annual gift to the Savannah Jewish Federation after you’re gone, a fund established with a Charitable IRA Rollover is a beautiful way to fulfill the mitzvah of tzedakah, and it’s smart tax planning, too!

Things to know about the IRA Rollover:

• Only contributions made by December 31, 2009 qualify.
• You must be 70½ or older at the time of the distribution.
• Your total combined rollover contributions cannot exceed $100,000 in one year.
• Contributions must go directly to a public charity. Before making an IRA rollover contribution, contact the recipient charity to confirm that it is eligible to receive tax-free gifts from IRAs. Distributions can be made only from traditional or Roth IRAs.
• You cannot receive any goods or services in return for these contributions and you must receive a written receipt from the recipient charity.

Please contact Lynn Levine (355-8110 or lynn@savj.org) to discuss how to use the Charitable IRA Rollover or for more information on establishing a fund within the Jewish Community Foundation of Savannah.

Psychotronic Film Society Brings Screening to JEA

For the past six years, local non-profit organization The Psychotronic Film Society has screened hundreds of rare, independent, foreign, underrated or simply little-known gems at a variety of venues throughout the area.

On Thursday, December 18 at 7:30 pm, the society is proud to host their first-ever screening in the JEA's auditorium. It is the critically praised documentary THE LIFE OF REILLY, an irreverent, humorous and touching look at the life and career of the late stage, film and television actor (and famed 1970s TV game show icon) CHARLES NELSON REILLY.

Shot not long before his untimely death, the film captures the final performance of Tony Award-winning actor Reilly's smash one-man show, in which he takes us through his bizarre, star-studded, tragic, hilarious and ultimately amazing life with a potent blend of tenderness and quick one-liners. It’s a must-see for anyone who remembers Reilly's risqué wit, deadpan timing and flamboyant demeanor. Advance tickets for this PG-rated film are only $7 for the general public, or half price ($3.50) for JEA members, and will be available at the JEA front desk starting Dec. 3rd. However, the discounted price applies only to tickets purchased in advance. If bought at the door the night of the film, all tickets will be $7.

The Psychotronic Film Society specializes in presenting either first-run features that would otherwise never be shown by Savannah's corporate-owned movie theaters, as well as unearthing "lost" films that are not currently available in the USA, and that likely have never been seen by anyone in this area in a public setting. In addition to their weekly Wednesday night screenings at the Sentient Bean Coffeehouse on Forsyth Park, they also have shown films at the historic Lucas Theatre and the Jepson Center for The Arts.

Once a year, they host Savannah's "other film festival," a two-week long showcase of strange and wonderful films from around the world. Their next Psychotronic Film Fest takes place from January 26, 2009 through February 6, 2009 at the Sentient Bean.

You can view the Psychotronic Film Society's full upcoming schedule, and watch previews for this and other films online at www.myspace.com/psychotronicfilms.

When: Thurs., December 18 at 7:30 pm What: The Psychotronic Film Society of Savannah presents: THE LIFE OF REILLY Where: JEA, 5111 Abercorn St. Cost: $7 gen. public / $3.50 for JEA Members (discount in advance only)

The TALI Educational Fund

Editor's Note: As part of the 2008 allocations process, the Savannah Jewish Federation included some overseas allocations targeted directly to organizations that reflected the passions and interests of the Savannah Jewish community. We are highlighting some of these organizations in the Savannah Jewish News. This month we are featuring the TALI Educational Fund.

Currently in 120 schools across Israel and growing, the TALI network (a Hebrew acronym for enriched Jewish Studies) reaches 22,000 school children giving them varying opportunities to learn about their rich Jewish heritage from kindergarten through high school. TALI aims to give students a Jewish, Zionist, and democratic education in a pluralistic and contemporary environment while soliciting cooperation among teachers and parents alike. It brings Jewish education into other secular Israeli public schools where previously there had been none.

The TALI Educational Fund (TEF) develops, promotes, and enriches Jewish studies programs within the general Israeli educational system in accordance with the principles of the Israeli Ministry of Education, thus serving as a unique organization that contributes to Israeli society by reaching Israeli youth through their religion and heritage. Schools that join TALI receive educational support and consulting from the Educational Fund for TALI schools, which lies under the auspices of the Schechter Institute of Jewish Studies, approved by the Ministry of Education as well as the Jewish Agency for Israel (JAFI).

In 1998, TALI opened an Early Childhood Division which would become responsible for Jewish educational programming for this age group. Over 2,000 children are currently served by this program in twenty-one communities located all over Israel.

In order to receive support from the Israeli government, TEF must follow and abide by these guidelines:

1. Provide ongoing support and services to schools and kindergartens that identify with the principles of TALI education, and have created a serious working plan for their subsequent implementation.

2. Develop "educational tracks" in the spirit of TALI principles beginning in kindergarten and continuing through high school.

3. Enrich the Judaic knowledge of TALI educators and develop in them skills for implementing TALI education.

4. Create educational materials, making them available to schools for the advancement and enrichment of pupils in the area of Judaic Studies.

5. Stimulate the interest of TALI teachers and pupils in the area of Judaic studies,

6. Nurture awareness of each TALI school community concerning the variety of Jewish expression, and encourage the community to define its own Jewish identity and approach to Judaism.

7. Make available to the general school system the cumulative knowledge, resources and experience of TEF in the area of Jewish studies.

In order to receive support from the TALI Educational Fund, the Savannah Jewish Federation must comply with these guidelines.
Community Strategic Planning Underway

The Savannah Jewish Federation (SJF) and the Jewish Educational Alliance (JEA) have embarked on an extensive strategic planning process for the Savannah Jewish community. This current strategic planning process was undertaken because the Jewish community has changed significantly from when the most recent planning process was completed almost seven years ago.

The Planning Committee, co-chaired by Jeffrey Lasky and Dr. Ken Tannenbaum, includes a broad cross-section of the Jewish community; it has been meeting since June of this year. The Vision Statement approved by the Planning Committee is that “Savannah’s Jewish community is dynamic, viable and united.”

In addition to adopting the Vision Statement, the Planning Committee has identified the strengths and weaknesses of the Jewish community, and is now in the process of developing recommendations for addressing the weaknesses while building upon the strengths. Those recommendations will be forwarded to the Boards of the SJF and the JEA, as may be appropriate, for consideration and possible implementation by the relevant organizations.

The key strengths of the Savannah Jewish community include:

- A strong and vibrant Jewish Community. Savannah, for more than 200 years and continuing through today, has a respected and unique history of maintaining a strong and vibrant Jewish Community, even though it has a relatively small Jewish population. This is demonstrated by:
  - A diverse array of services and programs through three synagogues, two schools, the JEA, a Jewish Family Services and other community organizations;
  - A large percentage of families within the Jewish community who have been connected to the community for multiple generations;
  - An expansive commitment from and involvement of volunteers;
  - Enormous pride and respect from the Jewish community and the general Savannah community for its Jewish Community.

The Savannah Jewish Federation, Savannah has an incredible history, through the Federation, of providing extraordinary financial support to its Jewish organizations and for Jewish causes. This is evidenced especially in times of great need, coupled with a high per-capita giving to the Federation Campaign.

Lady Lions Capture SPAL Trophy

For the second year in a row, the Rambam Day School Lady Lions varsity volleyball team captured SPAL’s (Savannah Parochial Athletic League) second place trophy. Rambam’s varsity team went into the double-elimination tournament with an 11-1 regular season. SPAL is a 17 team league. In the fall, Rambam fields teams in volleyball for the girls and flag football for the boys. The winter season brings basketball for both boys and girls; spring means the return of co-ed soccer. Although small in number, Rambam’s teams are highly respected and mighty in effort and other teams approach games against the Lions with a healthy dose of trepidation!

Coach Katherine Robinson (a St. Vincent’s junior who volunteers to coach the varsity volleyball team with the help of her mother, Diane Robinson, a pre- and middle-school teacher at Rambam) was somewhat concerned with the fact that, due to an injured player, the team entered the tournament with no subs on the bench! This did not hold back the Lady Lions as they dominated in the semi-final round shutting out St. Andrew’s School in the finals where they lost to St. Peter’s to take the second place trophy.

The varsity team, comprised of seventh and eighth grade girls, was just one of two teams who represented Rambam in the volleyball league this year. Rambam’s fourth – sixth grade girls fielded a junior varsity team who competed strongly and whose members certainly show promise for next year’s varsity team. Rambam’s sports teams’ schedules are posted on the school web site, www.rambamdayschool.org. Visit the site to view the dates and times of upcoming games during the year and come cheer our day school students.

For a number of reasons, many people come to Savannah and remain; it does not see the level of transience as do many other cities.

The current leadership of the Federation and the JEA share a common vision, mutual respect, work well together and are well-organized.

The key weaknesses of the Jewish community that have been identified include:

- The JEA must reflect the current and expected changes in the community. Fundraising is inadequate for the SJF and the JEA to meet the community’s programming and charitable needs. There is a lack of new leadership and leadership development. Open communications within the different elements of the Jewish community are sometimes problematic.

The Planning Committee expects to complete the strategic planning process before the middle of next year. At that point, it is anticipated that recommendations will be made to the governing Boards of the SJF and the JEA for their further action.

TAMPA BAY 02.01.09

The JEA, as a fundraiser, has obtained from the NFL, two (2) tickets to Super Bowl XLIII on February 1, 2009.

This year's game is close to home—Tampa, Florida.

We are asking a minimum of $3000 per ticket—tickets must be sold together.

This is an unbelievable price for a once-in-a-lifetime event! We have researched all ticket outlets to compare prices.

Give Kim Thebo a call at the JEA (355-8111) if you are interested or know of someone who might be interested in these tickets. Once the tickets are sold, we will provide information for the Tampa Super Bowl Host Committee to see what other events they are holding and where.

Put the “J” in Mah Jongg at the JEA

Most people think of mah-jongg as “that Chinese game with the noisy tiles.” And they’re right! Also known as mah-jongg, ma-diao, mah-cheuck, baak-ling, and pung-chow, playing mah-jongg can be as complicated as figuring out what to call it, but it’s also exciting, challenging, and a great gambling alternative to poker. But just because mah-jong can be intense doesn’t make it impossible.

What is Mah Jongg?

Mah-jongg dates back 4000 years to a time when Chinese aristocrats were the only people on the planet to play the game. The ruling class was so snobby about keeping the game to themselves, that they kept the rules a secret from the Chinese peasants. Mah-jongg only became public knowledge when China became a republic in 1911.

Mah Jongg is your relaxing getaway from a stressful day.

Mah Jongg: Mondays at 1:00 p.m. and Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. Free for JEA members.

Check Your Blood Pressure

By Elaine Fox, Health & Wellness Director

Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in the United States. Sure, you’ve heard that by now. You are at risk if you have parents who died of this major health problem, you smoke, have high blood pressure, and do not exercise.

High blood pressure is one of the symptoms that you may be developing Cardiovascular disease. Exercise, keeping your weight under control, and not smoking, can all reduce the risk of raising your blood pressure.

You can check your blood pressure at the JEA Fitness Center. We have one of the easiest to use blood pressure cuffs for your use. When you come in to workout, simply ask the Fitness Desk Clerk for the “cuff,” sit down at the table and press “Start.” If you’d like, we will even do it for you. Making note of it will give you an idea of your trends, so that when your next doctor’s visit rolls around, you can go with a record of your readings.

So, get to the Fitness Center, workout, and check your BP!

Gym Etiquette
Elaine Fox, Health & Wellness Director

You’ve decided to trim off those extra High Holiday pounds or get in shape for the winter cruise and you’re back at the JEA Fitness Center. Good for you! You realize, of course, that you are not alone. Some simple rules that we all learned when we were very young still apply in the social setting of the “gym.” Easy things like: Share. Clean up after yourself. Keep your voice down. Be modest in your dress and actions.

Share - Don’t hog your favorite cardio machine during the busiest times. We have a 30-minute limit on machines, so keep others in mind and plan your time well. Between sets of reps let someone else use the weights if you see someone waiting. If another member is watching you on a machine, it may be because he or she is waiting for you to finish. Take your rests off the machine.

Clean up - When you leave a machine wipe your sweat off. There are spritzer bottles around the gym for that purpose. Leave the machine in a way that you would want to use it. Your good healthy sweat is unhealthy to the next user.

Re-rack your weights. If you drop them to the floor it may mean either that you don’t care about the way the gym looks, others’ safety, or the weights are too much for you and you’ve lost control. Loud clanking disturbs other folks, can damage the weights, or may mean that they are too heavy for you.

Keep your voice down - Please leave your cell phone in your car. Phone conversations should be private. If a phone call is really important, please take it outside the gym. No one needs to listen to what you have to say to your honey or your client.

Effort in the gym is encouraged and expected. But, when you are grunting to the max, it makes others within earshot uncomfortable. Please be mindful of how you express yourself in the fitness room, and that includes expletives.

Be modest - Our gym is a family place, even if you need to be at least 15 to be there. Please dress in a shirt that covers your torso, pants that cover your underwear, and shoes that are tied. Yes, shirt and shoes are required. Modesty extends to the locker room, too. Please cover up. You may be proud of your newly acquired six pack, but as one member once said told me in regard to locker rooms, “There are some things that children should never see.” That applies to other adults, too.

So, dear friends, please be mindful of others when using the gym. Common courtesy should guide you. Leave your gym the way you’d want to find it, don’t be a hog, respect your own limits and others’ personal space. We will ALL enjoy our facilities more if we ALL cooperate. Thanks.

The bride and groom will honeymoon in Aruba. The couple will live in Atlanta, GA.

The bride and groom were thrilled to share their wedding ceremony with Marcey’s grandmother, Lillian Roth, in Houston, TX, via webcam. Relatives attending from California, Maryland, Massachusetts, Virginia, New Jersey and Texas helped make the weekend memorable.

Jewish Film Festival Ready for the Opening Scene

By Benjamin Kweskin

Where can one go to see foreign films in Savannah, filmed in such exotic places as France, Britain, Ethiopia, Israel, and Philadelphia (maybe not so exotic) to name but a few? Where can one see films in Hebrew, Spanish, German, Amharic, Arabic, and French? The 2009 Joan and Murray Gegen Memorial Savannah Jewish Film Festival! The Festival, which will run from February 28 through March 7, 2009, will showcase approximately 12 to 15 films comprising a variety of documentaries, touching dramas, and several comedies.

Steered by co-chairs Beth Vantosh and Miriam Hodess, the Festival's dedicated and diligent volunteer committee — Lynn Berkowitz, Robyn Jof- fe, Anita Karnibhadar, and Karen McGuffin — has been navigating its way through uncharted territory, pouring much time and energy into making this Film Festival the best one yet! Much like modeling, as these women will attest, screening and judging dozens of movies is just not as easy as it looks. If they look a little bleary-eyed the next time you see them, it’s understandable.

This year’s Festival will open with Praying with Lior, a documentary that has received Best Picture and Audience Favorite Awards at numerous Jewish Film Festivals throughout the US. It is the poignant story of a boy with Down syndrome who loves the action of prayer and of the struggles and commitment of his family and Day School to prepare him for his bar mitzvah. Also to be featured is Strangers, a Sundance Film Festival favorite. With political and religious undertones, this story is about an Israeli man and Palestinian woman who accidentally meet in Berlin against the backdrop of the World Cup and (spoiler alert) — fall in love. Sixty-Six, a comedy starring Helena Bonham Carter, is about a Bar Mitzvah boy in 1986 whose family is seemingly concerned with everything but his big day becoming a man, whether it’s their failing business or their own son’s Bar Mitzvah.

Among the other noteworthy films to be screened at varied venues throughout Savannah is Black over White, a documentary about the two Ethiopian members of the famous Israeli music group the Idan Raichel Project and the band’s performance in Ethiopia. Ladies, join us for tea when we screen Powder and the Glory, the story of Helena Rubenstein and Elizabeth Arden, two American Jewish entrepreneurs who became the founding mothers of the modern health and beauty industry. These original ‘mavericks’ rebelled against the male establishment and are truly an inspiration.

Jewish Communities United in Israel
From Linda Zoller

It was a hectic 3 days at the United Jewish Communities General Assembly, November 16-18, packed with speakers, break out sessions, visits to UJC programs, fabulous Israeli entertainment and over 4,000 Jews from the U.S. and Canada. It’s always a whirlwind, but even more so this year because of its location in the heart of Jerusalem. If there was an over-riding theme, it had to be outreach to the next generation. The meeting brought together over 900 young North Americans from various programs in Israel and the United States. I was amazed at how many American youth spend a year in Israel between high school and college and at what a spirited group they are.

The message to me was that if you want to see how Israel amazed us for three days with its wealth of talent, intellect, spirit, and political and religious underpinnings, then go to the Savannah Jewish Film Festival. This Film Festival is “mavericks” rebelled against the male establishment and are truly an inspiration.

Sponsors Available
Corporate or individual sponsorships are available: Producer’s Circle ($360) includes four Full Festival passes, name and/or logo in sponsorship video; listing in program and all printed promotional materials; Director’s Circle level ($180) includes two Full Festival passes, listing in program and all printed promotional materials.

More movies and festival fun are being planned, but we can’t divulge all of our secrets just yet! Ticket sales information and the full schedule will be in the mail soon, so keep a close eye on your mailbox! Also look for additional information in the E-news, on www.savj.org, and in the next issue of the Savannah Jewish News. See you at the movies; we’ve already started popping the popcorn!

As the calendar year ends, please consider helping those who have (some just recently) become less fortunate than many of us through your donations to the Savannah Jewish Federation and Jewish Family Services.

The financial crisis now impacting the United States has many charitable organizations worried about how they are going to manage their finances, raise money, and keep up with the growing demand for services. And of course, it is not only JFS that is impacted during these difficult times: Food-banks, services for the homeless, drug and alcohol treatment programs, domestic abuse centers, Veterans organizations as well as many other community response programs are all affected.

But the effect of the economy on these other organizations even further impacts JFS. Community resources that JFS has historically been able to depend on to collaboratively and collateral help clients, have less to offer. Therefore, many times, Jewish Family Services must pick up where these agencies leave off.

As the calendar year ends, please consider helping those who have (some just recently) become less fortunate than many of us through your donations to the Savannah Jewish Federation and Jewish Family Services.

MYTHS AND FACTS

A Guide to the Arab – Israeli Conflict

By Mitchell G. Bard

MYTH

The Arabs were willing to accept the internationalization of Jerusalem. The Jews opposed the idea. Because of their intransigence, Israel illegally occupies the entire city today.

FACT

When the United Nations took up the Palestine question in 1947, it recommended that all of Jerusalem be internationalized. The Vatican and many predominantly Catholic delegations pushed for this status, but a key reason for the UN decision was the Soviet Bloc's desire to embarrass Transjordan's King Abdullah and his British patrons by denying Abdullah control of the city.

The Jewish Agency, after much soul-searching, agreed to accept internationalization in the hope that in the short-run it would protect the city from bloodshed and the new state from conflict. Since the partition resolution called for a referendum on the city's status after 10 years, and Jews comprised a substantial majority, the expectation was that the city would later be incorporated into Israel. The Arab states were as bitterly opposed to the internationalization of Jerusalem as they were to the rest of the partition plan.

In May 1948, Jordan invaded and occupied East Jerusalem, dividing the city for the first time in its history, and driving thousands of Jews — whose families had lived in the city for centuries — into exile. The UN partition plan, including its proposal that Jerusalem be internationalized, had been overtaken by events.

After the Arab states' rejection of UN Resolution 181 and, on December 11, 1948, UN Resolution 194, establishing the UN Conciliation Commission for Palestine, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion declared that Israel would no longer accept the internationalization of Jerusalem.

From 1948-67, the city was divided between Israel and Jordan. Israel made western Jerusalem its capital; Jordan occupied the eastern section. Because Jordan — like all the Arab states at the time — maintained a state of war with Israel, the city became, in essence, two armed camps, replete with concrete walls and bunkers, barbed-wire fences, minefields and other military fortifications.

In 1967, Jordan ignored Israeli pleas to stay out of the Six-Day War and attacked the western part of the city. The Jordanians were routed by Israeli forces and driven out of East Jerusalem, allowing the city's unity to be restored. Teddy Kollek, Jerusalem's mayor for 28 years, called the reunification of the city "the practical realization of the Zionist movement's goals."

Because Israel was defending itself from aggression in the 1948 and 1967 wars, international legal scholar Steven Schwebel wrote, it has a better claim to sovereignty over Jerusalem than its Arab neighbors.

Thoughts from Rambam

Our Rambam students just experienced their Thrilling Thursday (the third week of every month our staff does a speciality with the students) instructed by the Judaic Staff. There were quite a few groups, all doing different things. We had a group learning how to make tzitzit, a group learning to juggle, students competed in the game RumiKe, a group made mezuzah covers and the elementary classes made menorahs. The children love the fun and the interaction with their teachers. As well, they are really enjoying the variety of activities that have been presented to them.

November II, was the memorial of Yitzchak Rabin. Our shaliach and good friend, Maia spoke with the middle school grades about Yitzchak Rabin; what he represented and his assassination. Maia engaged the students in a challenging conversation as to whether it was appropriate for Yigal Amir to murder Yitzchak Rabin because of his desire to give land to the Arabs. This decision would entitle them to live side by side with Jews. In the minds of many Jews, this treaty would be endangering their lives. The treaty was one that would be bringing to the minds of many Jews, this treaty would be endangering their lives. The treaty was one that would be bringing to Jewish jeopardy.

Maia spoke with the third and fourth grades about the elections in Israel and how everyone has a right to choose.

When you read this article, Thanksgiving would have come and gone. Rambam sponsors a lunch for k through 8th grade to be accompanied by two guests per family. It is our way of thanking our parents for entrusting Rambam with their most precious jewels. While Thanksgiving is a wonderful time to seize the opportunity to give thanks, Rambam students are well aware that in reality, every day is a blessing from the almighty and there is too much to be thankful for and only have one specific day to express it.

In the near future, the preschool will be sponsoring a day where they too can bring guests and share some special Rambam time with someone important to them.

From The Shalom School

Music and Dance form an integral part of the Judaic studies program at Shalom School, reinforcing and complementing the dynamic learning that goes on in the classroom.

I have always regarded synagogue music as an entry way for the Jewish soul to find the divine. To quote Rabbi Schneur Zalman of Liadi (1745 - 1812): “Words are the pen of the heart; melody is the pen of the soul.” And for us at Shalom School, we have the added blessing of having Julie Hirsch as our children’s music teacher. Julie is a renowned Jewish educator, cantorial soloist and currently Para-Rabbi at Congregation Mickve Israel, who brings to our children the vibrant melodies of the synagogue, not only the “traditional” ones that we have all sung for many years, but also those coming from Israel, our cantorial schools, Jews in other lands, and the many contemporary musicians who now grace the Jewish scene in America.

Shalom School’s music program complements our dynamic CHAI Curriculum, which has Avodah (Jewish worship) as one of its cornerstones. During each of our music classes, as Julie says, “We teach our children not just the words and the melodies but also the meanings of the words. As the children know, we must understand what it is we’re singing and why these words are important to us as Jews and to how we live and act. They enjoy learning more than one melody for the same words, too; there isn’t only one tune for them sung by every Jew around the world. In past years, we concentrated more on holidays and other varied music including personality

Do we nurture our students’ minds, bodies, or souls? Yes.

As a parent, you don’t have to choose between providing your child with a strong academic background or a positive personal identity.

Rambam Day School strives for excellence through a well-rounded curriculum in both secular and Jewish studies. Our experienced faculty emphasizes mathematics, English, science, art, and social studies while enriching each child’s education with Jewish history, laws and customs, language and values.

Campaign 2009

Do you remember canes, when Federation’s Jewish Family Services makes sure that our frail senior population is safe and properly situated?

Sometimes, it means “just” making sure that every Jew has the chance to be part of a Jewish community if they choose.

And the list goes on and on.

It all takes money. Or all it takes is money. Either way you look at it, with a single gift to the Savannah Jewish Federation, you can touch thousands of lives. And every single gift will make a difference in peoples’ lives, especially this year.

So if your telephone rings on Super Sunday, answer the call. It will be someone you know asking you to give for something you know and care about.

If you don’t get a call, don’t feel left out. Super Sunday is a large undertaking. You can take the opportunity to cut out the coupon on the back page of the paper and remember, Every Gift Matters.

L’Shalom.
