Allocations Decisions Difficult, Overseas Percentage Increased

The Savannah Jewish Federation's Allocation Committee is a committee of about 20 individuals, balanced from across synagogues and organizations and represents various interests and perspectives of the community. During these still challenging economic times and a period of changes in our Jewish community, raising the dollars and deciding how to allocate them was difficult.

Sitting on the allocations Committee for many meant having to put personal loyalties to the side and focus on what is best for our Savannah Jewish community. The committee acted in a manner that was dignified and respectful towards each other in the process of determining where and how each dollar would be best placed.

"Ever since I left the JEA last night after the final allocations meeting, a song kept playing through my mind. "In this world of ordinary people, extraordinary people, I'm glad there is you." Finding songs to fit events is not unusual for me, but these words seemed to be set on replay, just like Johnny Mathis was at my house when I was a teenager.

Each person at the meeting was, to me, extraordinary. No one missed one of the three meetings. No one left early. As a teacher, used to looking at a group and seeing who is and who is not engaged in the discussion, I knew that every single person was paying very close attention. No one was happy because every one there knew there were real needs in our community and not enough money to fulfill those needs. However, there was no acrimony, no judgments, no harsh words and no anger. Frustration, Yes. Determination? Yes!

Instead, I believe that we all were searching for ways to make next year's campaign more successful. Naturally, all of us hope that the general economy improves for more reasons than the Federation campaign. I hope that more new and enthusiastic people become involved, understanding the importance of the Federation and realizing that they can absolutely make a difference.

“The Allocations committee did a fabulous job making the hard decisions. I applaud them”

Tikvah Fund Created as Source of Hope for Jewish Family Services

Your gift will be matched—dollar for dollar

The Jewish Community Foundation of Savannah, a program of the Savannah Jewish Federation, is proud to announce the creation of the Tikvah Fund to support Jewish Family Services in Savannah. An anonymous donor has offered to match every gift, dollar for dollar, up to $20,000 to kick off this important fund.

In the past year, Jewish Family Services has supplied more than 125 food vouchers to members of the community, assisted with 17 utility bills, provided the counseling services of social workers to dozens of families and individuals, and provided shelter for those in need in the form of subsidized rents and mortgage payments. JFS also has granted funds for medicine, clothing, childcare and various scholarships. Working with area medical providers, JFS has made sure that community members have not had to go without vital dental, psychological and medical care.

In the last 18 months, JFS has provided almost $140,000 in aid to members of the community and the needs are not abating. Recognizing these unfortunate circumstances, this generous member of our community, who chooses to remain anonymous, has created the Tikvah Fund -- a permanent endowed fund -- as a source of hope and assets for the needs of Jewish Family Services in Savannah for generations to come.

Please make your tax deductible donation to the Savannah Jewish Federation Tikvah Fund, and know that each and every dollar contributed will be matched, doubling your charitable donation power.
The Importance of the Jewish Peoplehood

Dear Editor:

On June 11th, several of Ed Wexler's friends both within and outside the Savannah Jewish Community, are sponsoring a Kiddush luncheon in Ed's honor to salute Ed for the fantastic work and dedication to the community. The event will be at Congregation Agudath Achim, immediately following services Saturday morning.

Everyone is invited for services as well as the luncheon.

Ed Wexler has been actively involved in the leadership of all Jewish organizations in Savannah, from Rambam, to the JEA, Savannah Jewish Federation and Congregation Agudath Achim for over 30 years, as an officer and Board member. With Federation, during his first 10 years in Savannah, he was an officer and Board member, and Dr. Richard Bodzinier appointed Ed to serve two years on the Executive Committee during the first Long Range Planning Committee. Serving as General Fund Raising Chair of Federation, Ed has been a consistent fund raiser and project chair on 30 of the 31 years he has been in Savannah. At the JEA, Ed served as Treasurer for 8 years, and as Chairman of the Personnel Committee for 8 years. Ed joined with Aaron Levy to found Rambam Day School and wrote the formative constitution. Ed assisted with then President Julian Friedman of Congregation Mickve Israel to organize their fund raising for the recently completed extensive renovation of their Temple.

At Agudath Achim, he served 6 and then 13 year terms on the Board of Directors. As an officer, he was elected Treasurer for several years, then Vice President for several terms before becoming President. He was also chairman of the Rabbinical Review Committee and co-chaired the Rabbinical Search Committee.

Ed will be leaving Savannah some time in June. He will be moving to Atlanta, where his children and grandson reside, and where he can be closer to immediate help with his difficult physical problems. Savannah will certainly miss him. Please join this opportunity to say a collective "thanks" to a man who has given so much to this community in so many ways.

Sincerely,

Buddy Metzger
Luncheon Chair

Through the Jewish Family Service a program of the Savannah Jewish Federation, we are able to serve those in need of assistance. Be it someone needing the services of Social Worker, financial assistance to buy groceries for the family or just need to make ends meet to make it through the month. The Jewish Family Service helps sustain our community. Please support this part of our Jewish community through supporting the Savannah Jewish Federation.
Delegitimization

Our Federation is a “bite” of an even larger elephant called the Jewish Federations of North America (JFNA). Last November, I attended the General Assembly; the JFNA annual meeting affectionately called the “GA,” and learned how the work of our parent organization relates to what we do in Savannah.

Held in New Orleans, the GA offered three days of speakers, workshops, conversations, exhibits, entertainment, networking with other federations, and volunteering in the clean-up of hurricane Katrina. I even got to walk through a tent that was part of the Jamed Israeli field hospital used in Haiti after last year’s earthquake. Speakers included Vice President Joe Biden, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, former Russian dissident Natan Sharansky, and Israeli Knesset opposition leader Tzipi Livni. For fun, there was a celebration of New Orleans in an enormous warehouse filled with Mardi Gras floats and paraphernalia, replete with beads, music, and New Orleans food! I was amazed how the New Orleans Jewish Community organized to sponsor such an exceptional event in the midst the city’s recovery.

The word heard over and over that troubled me the most was “delegitimization.” It is a term used to describe a broad spectrum of anti-Israel protests that differ from legitimate criticism of Israel. The Presidents’ meeting dealt with it as did every subsequent speaker. Divestment campaigns (pressure to divert of Israeli securities) are a form of delegitimization. So are international boycotts of Israeli products; entertainment and networking with other federations, and volunteering in the clean-up of hurricane Katrina. I even got to walk through a tent that was part of the Jamed Israeli field hospital used in Haiti after last year’s earthquake. Speakers included Vice President Joe Biden, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, former Russian dissident Natan Sharansky, and Israeli Knesset opposition leader Tzipi Livni. The word heard over and over that troubled me the most was “delegitimization”. It is a term used to describe a broad spectrum of anti-Israel protests that differ from legitimate criticism of Israel. The Presidents’ meeting dealt with it as did every subsequent speaker. Divestment campaigns (pressure to divert of Israeli securities) are a form of delegitimization. So are international boycotts of Israeli products; entertainers refusing to perform in Israel; and university boycotts of Israeli academics. Natan Sharansky referred to delegitimization as one of the “Three Ds” that have emerged in the 21st Century, the other two being demonization and double standards.

At the GA, JFNA announced the formation of The Israel Action Network (IAN) to combat the assault on Israel’s legitimacy. Over the next three years $6 million will be allocated to the initia- tive. It is a joint effort with the Jewish Council on Public Affairs (JCPA) in response to requests by federations like Seattle, which had to counter an attempt to place stridently anti-Israel ads on public busses. While there are already organizations addressing threats to Israel’s legitimacy through media and political arenas, the JFNA/JCPA effort will mobilize community leaders to respond to allegations at the local level. Jerry Silverman, President and CEO of JFNA, likened the proposed work of the IAN to that of the Centers for Disease Control. He said the Net- work will monitor and detect the assault on Israel’s legitimacy, investigate and research it, develop interventions to prevent its spread, develop prevention and best practices to stem the out-break, and train federations to involve key community leadership to stop it. He described delegitimization as “…our 1948 issue, … our Soviet Jewry move- ment, … our grassroots movement … the opportunity for our next generation to stand up right now, show leadership, and stop it.” Since the GA, the IAN has been strengthening partnerships with college Hillels and recently helped De Paul and Princeton universities respond to efforts to boycott SABRA hummus on campus.

To me, delegitimization is an injus- tice and I don’t understand why the world does not recognize it. However, it is a force to be reckoned with and I am glad JFNA is addressing the chal- lenge. Want to know more? Go to http://jta.org/news/article/2010/10/24/ 274148/jfna-and-jcpa-create-6-million-network-to-fight-delegitimation-of-israel. Jewish GSU Grad Started Ultimate Mitzvah Project

By Ezra Salkin

When Andres Montes began the ultimate Mitzvah project—a free volunteer health and dental clinic in Statesboro, Ga., called The Heart and Hands Clinic—his greatest obstacle was making the community believe.

“The word ‘college’ kind of acted as a hot button, meaning it triggered images of wild and irresponsible kids.”

Montes, a graduate of Georgia Southern University’s honors program, said that the community didn’t think that a group of outsider college students could really sustain that type of commitment. “One thing to take away from this whole experience is that we showed that we, the younger generation, really can do something.”

They reached out to the church community first, which Montes says was very welcoming to the idea. Pastor John Long of The Son’s Light Fellowship Baptist Church was the first responder, allowing them to occupy and renovate part of his church, Fellowship Baptist Church was the organization, operated completely through grants. It has donated over $37,000 in dental care alone, and it boasts not only primary care but an ear, nose, and throat specialist and obstetrician-gynecologist, all free of charge, as well as a med bank, med coordinator, and pharmacist.

Those eligible for the Heart and Hands Clinic’s primary care services are the medically uninsured of Bulloch County who don’t have Medicare or Medicaid and whose income is 200 percent of the Federal Poverty Level or below. It is open on the second and fourth Tuesday, each month.

The clinic was able to launch, thanks in part to the help of one of Long’s congregants who had his own construction company. He financed the operation. “He said he could either buy a new BMW or do this,” Montes’ laughs. “He got in on the Mitzvah.”

After they secured a site, they had to find physicians and a board of directors willing to donate their time. They were fortunate to pluck most of them from the Statesboro community, helping to bridge the gap for doublers. Montes and his fellow students also appealed to the national non-profit group Volunteers in Medicine, VIM, which has one outlet in Hilton Head, consulted on start-up and sustainability.

Montes couldn’t help but be influenced by the news coverage during the 2008 election, when he and the other students were looking for a way to give back. “It didn’t hurt that President Obama was running on healthcare at the time. It kind of put the idea in our heads.”

Montes draws much of his altruistic spirit from his second major, philosophy, at Georgia Southern, though it seems like an odd pairing with chemistry. He quotes a Plato proverb. “Justice is in the right of the stronger.” The stronger, he explains, are those whose will is to do good. An active member of Mickve Israel, Montes also quotes the Talmud, saying, “He who saves one life saves the whole world,” a verse that is shared in the Quran.

The rest of his inspiration, he says, comes from his father, Ismael Montes. Ismael was born into extreme poverty in Mexico. The second youngest of nine children, Ismael liked to joke that when he entered Pre-Med at age 15 he entered barefoot, as he didn’t get his first pair of used shoes until he was six years old, Montes relates. Today, Ismael is a successful practitioner of emergency medicine here in the United States. “He taught me to give back. He lived the American dream and now he helps others share in that dream.” Ismael is also one of the volunteers at the Hearts and Hands Clinic.

Where does Hearts and Hands go from here? They’re going to have to find a way to open two more days a month, to accommodate the extreme amount of traffic, Montes notes.

As for Montes, himself? “Well, I always thought I’d follow in my Dad’s footsteps and be a doctor. So did my parents. My Mom Cathy has a photo of me when I was six months old, wearing scrubs. But as a friend of mine puts it: You can try to heal from the inside or you can try from the outside. I think this experience has taught me I’d like to try from the outside. Anything could happen, but I think I want to study law, with a focus on social justice.”

What is the Savannah Kollel?

By Nancie Meddin Clark

Would you like to learn more about Torah, services, prayer, Jewish thought and philosophy, Hebrew, Jewish heritage, Jewish women’s issues, Torah for teens, or just the holidays? There may be a class for that. If not, maybe there could be one. The Savannah Kollel is here for you.

The Kollel participates in a Daf Yomi Class, as well. Daf Yomi is a program operated worldwide from Jerusalem to China and here in Savannah that studies Talmud one page at a time each day for seven years. For this program, people, wherever they are, are on the same page on the same day.

The Savannah Kollel is currently operated out of Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob (BB Jacob) and led by Savannah native, Rabbi Ephraim Rabhan. Its objective is to transmit Torah in the broadest sense with all it entails. All rabbis are teachers, but the four who currently comprise the Kollel are here for the Savannah Jewish community and their classes are open to the entire Jewish Community regardless of affiliation. They are Rabbi Ephraim Rabhan, Rabbi Yoni Maccabee, Rabbi Reuvain Bauman and Rabbi Avi Nitikman.

Rabbi Ephraim Rabhan was born in Savannah. After graduating from Rambam Day School, he studied at Yeshiva Beth Moshe in Scranton, Pennsylvania for eight years. He continued his studies in Beth Midrash Govoha for the next seven years. His wife Sara Brana (nee Slatus) also is from Savannah and they have two children, Chana Raizel and Moshe.

Rabhan considers his father-in-law, Rabbi Avigdor Slatus, Rabbi of BB Jacob since 1981; the constant that guides the Kollel. His mother, Ester Rabhan, is the principal of Rambam Day School. One of his fondest memories is that of seeing his two grandfathers, Meyer Rabhan and Harry Yellin, each holding a Torah and flanking the Chazzan for Kol Nidre (the beginning service of Yom Kippur). “My family,” says Rabhan, “taught me that I have a responsibility to the community, to give back to the community and to help people spiritually. They were never outspoken. They just led by quiet example.”

Rabbi Yoni Maccabee grew up in Kingston and Monsey, New York. He studied at the Yeshiva in Scranton for nine years, then at the Lakewood Yeshiva for six years. His wife Rena (nee Schwartz), is from Silver Spring, MD. They have one child.

To reach the Savannah Kollel, you can call the BB Jacob office at 354-7721 or email Rabbi Rabhan at rabbirabhan@gmail.com.

What is Classical Reform Judaism

By B.H. Levy

In its May 2011 issue Savannah Jewish News presented the first part of a two-part article on Classical Reform Judaism. Part 1 reviewed the technical development of Classical Reform. Part 2 describes its major theological principles and their enduring significance.

The fundamental principle of Classical Reform is that the eternal Jewish Covenant with God is at the heart of our identity and history as Jews. While our faith engenders and empowers many different understandings and interpretations of the Divine, it is the religious quest for faith and meaning that is at the core of our Jewish identity. We believe that Judaism is primarily a universal religious faith, rather than an ethnic, cultural or nationalist identity.

As a spiritual community, we cherish the unique ties of history and destiny that link us to our fellow Jews throughout the ages and around the world today. We understand the Jewish People as a community of faith, bound together by our shared experience, and grounded in the distinctive teachings of the Jewish Religion. The rich and varied ethnic and cultural traditions of the Jewish experience throughout the ages offer meaningful dimensions for our religious identity, but our faith is timeless and universal in its aspirations. We uphold the historic Reform concept, linked to our emphasis on the ethical and moral vision of our Hebrew Prophets, of the “Mission of Israel.”

This belief holds that as Jews, we are called to be witnesses to the Unity of God and the unity of all humanity, and that we must work as individuals and as a community to bring justice and peace to the world. The leaders of the Classical Reform tradition have been in the forefront of these efforts and challenges, addressing the great social issues of American history with prophetic courage and action. We cherish the distinctive worship traditions of historic Reform – a meaningful, participatory liturgy that appeals to both mind and heart. This commitment embraces a primarily English language worship Service, enriched by the timeless elements of Hebrew texts and song that symbolically link us to our past and to our fellow Jews throughout the world. For us, what makes a worship experience truly “Jewish” is not its degree of Hebrew usage, but rather the ideals and values it reflects. Classical Reform worship also embraces the role of inspired choral and instrumental music that elevates the spirit and reflects the highest artistic standards; it draws on both the great historic musical traditions that have been the distinctive heritage of the Reform synagogue, as well as the compositions of contemporary creativity. Equally important to Classical Reformers is intellectually challenging preaching that offers the wisdom of our Jewish tradition in addressing both the pressing moral and social issues of our day, as well as our personal spiritual growth and the deeper meaning of our human experience. We believe that these characteristic qualities of Classical Reform worship services continue to offer a vital, creative option for many Jews today. This includes not only the members of our congregations who were raised in and cherish this tradition, but also countless younger people – who are searching for a meaningful and accessible form of Jewish identity and worship, based not on nostalgia nor ethnicity, but rather rooted in the realities of their experience in our contemporary, pluralistic society.

The question of our relationship as American Jews to the State of Israel is one of great importance and has a complex history in the development of the Classical Reform perspective, which embraces a broad diversity of opinion. However, there are a number of perspectives that many of us would share. The historic Reform position has always held that the national period in the early history of our people was an important formative chapter – creating the shared sense of experience and fostering the spiritual and ethical values that it was our destiny to proclaim and share with all humanity. While this dynamic view of Jewish history rejects the concept that we who live throughout the world today are in “exile,” we affirm that our link to the land of Israel is a deep and historic one and that the State of Israel has profound significance for the Jewish experience. We share with all Jews – and with any other people of good will – the hope and prayer for a secure, prosperous Israel, living in peace and justice with its neighbors. We celebrate the rich diversity within today’s changing Jewish community.

We are particularly committed to offering a warm, loving and unconditional welcome to the ever-increasing number of interfaith and multicultural families in our midst. We believe that we must support our young people and their partners and spouses with “open hearts and open doors” – celebrating their weddings and offering them a spiritual community that respects both of their identities and integrity. We believe that Classical Reform Judaism’s broad, universal message and embracing, accessible worship has a unique role to play in reaching out to our young people in interfaith relationships, empowering them to find a meaningful setting for sharing their experience of Jewish tradition together. Our contemporary Reform movement includes a broad diversity of interpretations and styles. The historic tradition of Classical Reform has enduring significance in the midst of the many rich streams of Jewish experience through the ages, and is recognized for its continuing vitality and potential to speak to a new generation of Jews today.

This article derives with permission from its original author, Rabbi Howard A. Berman, the Executive Director of The Society for Classical Reform Judaism. Founded in 2008 by a group of rabbis and lay leaders from congregations throughout the United States, the Society is the national voice of advocacy for the broad, universalistic ideals of the Classical Reform tradition. B.H. Levy, Jr is the Society’s founding Board President.
The Savannah Jewish Federation and the Jewish Educational Alliance have announced the recipients of the college and summer scholarships and the Harvey Rubin Award.

Jacob & Ida Ulman College Scholarship

The Jacob and Ida Ulman College Scholarship Fund is used to provide financial assistance to college bound, qualified Jewish students. This year Rachel Brody, Phillip Sadler and Natalie Eichelbaum received scholarships from this fund.

The Ulmans believed strongly in providing for the future generations of our Savannah Jewish community and their bequest makes it possible, year after year, for young adults to have a little something extra to help with their college expenses.

Henry W. Center College Scholarship Fund

The family of Henry W. Center and the Jewish Educational Alliance are pleased to inform the community that Natalie Eichelbaum and Phillip Sadler have been awarded grants from the JEA Henry W. Center College Scholarship Fund towards their college expenses at Bar Ilan University for the 2011-2012 academic year.

Henry Center, son of Leo Center and Miriam Center, died at the age of 15 and never had the opportunity to attend college. He was an excellent student with a terrific sense of humor who loved the JEA. His family established this fund in his memory.

The Center family and the JEA family are proud of Natalie’s and Phillip’s academic achievements and commitment to the Jewish people. The world today presents us with many difficult challenges. We know you will continue to use this opportunity to learn as much as you can so that you will be able to meet these challenges.

Jewish Teen Summer Leadership Programming Grants

The recipients of these grants; Aaron Solender, Elliot Kooden, David Sokolin, and Allison Hagan all are rising ninth through twelfth graders. These grants are offered through the Savannah Jewish Federation to provide subsidy for summer teen experiences that enhance Jewish identity and leadership amongst Jewish teens in Savannah.

Harvey Rubin Memorial Award

This prestigious award was established in memory of Harvey Rubin. Harvey spent the majority of his life promoting the importance of athletics in youth development. He felt that through athletics, a child learned the concepts of teamwork, self-discipline, leadership, and sportsmanship. Likewise, Harvey believed in helping the community, through involvement in JEA athletic programs and supporting academic achievement. This year’s award winner is Louis Brody.

If you would like more information as to how the Savannah Jewish Federation and the Jewish Educational Alliance can help your teen or young adult or if you wish to make a contribution that would help to send more Savannah Jewish teens and young adults to Israel or college, please contact the Savannah Jewish Federation Executive Director, Adam Solender, adam@savj.org, or Benjamin Bloom, programming@savj.org, Or you may call them at 355-8111.

Savannah's Society for Doing Good Deeds

The Hebrew gemiluth chessed (H.G.H.) society - the society for doing good deeds - is a fraternal philanthropic society organized in Savannah in 1911 as a social and support society for Jewish immigrants from Eastern Europe. The society was created as an economic and social support system for Eastern European immigrants in the United States. Today, membership includes business owners, professionals, and those who are interested in helping others.

The society, also known as the Society for Doing Good Deeds, was created as an economic and social support system for Jewish immigrants from Eastern Europe. The society was established to provide financial assistance to members and their families. The society also provided educational opportunities for its members and their families.

According to W. Leon Friedman in the book, the relief work of the organization extended far beyond Savannah. The society aided orphaned children in Europe, the victims of World War I, and Jewish communities in Palestine. The society continued its mission of helping others by contributing to various charities and community organizations.

JEAPool Opens
for the Summer!
Sunday, May 29th—11 am

Summer is almost here and with it, all that scorching heat! With the arrival of Memorial Day weekend comes the opening of the JEA Outdoor Pool—a great place to relax, cool off, have fun and play games. There are health benefits, too. Swimming is an effective cardiovascular exercise that has virtually zero impact. It builds endurance, improves muscle tone and strength, increases your heart rate and helps your body burn calories, all without putting additional strain on your joints.

Pool parties are a summer tradition at the JEA, and opening weekend is no exception. Join us at the pool and start your summer with a splash! Enjoy poolside music, Hotdogs and hamburgers will be for sale at the grill. Greet all your friends, work on your tan, get some exercise, play some water games or just cool off in our amazing pool. It’s a great time for the entire family!

The pool hours are as follows:

Outdoor
Sunday 11am – 4pm
Mon.–Thurs. 10am – 7:30pm
Friday 10 am – 4pm

Indoor
Sunday 9am – 4pm
Mon.–Thurs. 6am – 8:30pm
Friday 6am – 4pm

Congratulations Louis Brody
Harvey Rubin Award
Recipient 2011!

The Harvey Rubin Award was established in memory of Harvey Rubin, a warmly remembered member of Savannah’s Jewish community. During his life Mr. Rubin was a strong athletic presence, both in his own activities and in his support of athletics, especially among our youth. Following his death his family wanted to continue his support of young athletes and they established the Harvey Rubin Award. Recipients of the award must be strong both athletically and academically, and maintain an active involvement in the Jewish community.

This year the honor goes to Louis Brody. Louis has grown up in Savannah’s Jewish community, attending Rambam and being active in his synagogue, BBYO, and the Jewish community in general.

Louis has volunteered with the Special Olympics, Union Mission, Inner City Night Shelter, Buckingham South Nursing Home, the Humane Society, and the Second Harvest Food Bank. He also organized and co-chaired a ping-pong tournament at Savannah County Day School known as “Ping Pong for Africa” which was designed to raise money and awareness for children in South Africa whose parents have suffered from AIDS.

Louis started participating in athletics at an early age through the JEA. As his skills progressed, he took his athletic career to the next level playing with the Jenkins Boys’ Club. Louis made the varsity teams (all 4 years) at Savannah Country Day school for basketball and football.

Louis has also achieved on the academic front. His high school GPA is 4.0 (on a 4.0-point scale) and he has been on the honor roll all four years of high school. Louis has taken many advanced placement classes during his high school career as well. He plans on attending the University of Georgia next year. Our entire community joins in congratulating Louis on receiving the Harvey Rubin Award and wishing him luck in the future.

This year the Israeli Scouts will return to Camp Savannah on June 22nd, 2011, to spend the day with the campers. They will enthrall us with songs, dance, games and much, much, more. At 5:30 pm that evening, the Scouts will put on a show for the community, followed by a Bar-B-Q, where we can all meet and greet the Caravan members.
How to Read a Food Label

What's New About the Label?
It's Simple. Healthy eating has never been easier, thanks to the new nutrition label. Here's the good news:

• Most foods in the grocery store must now have a nutrition label and an ingredient list.

You can buy with confidence. Claims like "low cholesterol" and "fat free" can be used only if a food meets new legal standards set by the government.

You are looking at a new label if it's titled Nutrition Facts. Old labels may still be around for a while, so don't be surprised if you see them.

Why Read the Label?
Read the label to help choose foods that make up a healthful diet. Eating a healthful diet can help reduce your risk factors for some diseases. For example, too much saturated fat and cholesterol can raise blood cholesterol (a risk factor for heart disease). Too much sodium may be linked to high blood pressure. High blood pressure is a risk factor for heart attack and stroke. No one food can make you healthy. In addition to eating healthful foods, stay active, don’t smoke and watch your weight!

You Can Rely on the New Label
Rest assured, when you see key words and health claims on product labels, they mean what they say as defined by the government. For example:

• Fat Free- less than 0.5 gram of fat per serving
• Low Fat- 3 grams of fat (or less) per serving
• Lean- Less than 10 grams of fat, 4.5 grams of saturated fat, and no more than 95 milligrams of cholesterol per serving
• Light (Lite)- 1/3 less calories or no more than 1/3 the fat of the higher-calorie, higher-fat version; or no more than 1/3 the sodium of the higher-sodium version
• Cholesterol Free- Less than 2 milligrams of cholesterol and 2 grams (or less) of saturated fat per serving

The Food Nutrition Label
1. Title: When you see the title "Nutrition Facts," you know this is the current information label approved by the Food and Drug Administration.
2. Serving Size: Is your serving the same size as the one on the label? If you eat double the serving size listed, you need to double the nutrient and calorie values. If you eat one-half the serving size shown here, cut the nutrient and calorie values in half.
3. Calories: Are you overweight? Cut back a little on calories! Look here to see how a serving of the food adds to your daily total. A 5'4", 138-lb. active woman needs about 2,200 calories each day. A 5'10", 174-lb. active man needs about 2,900. How about you?
4. Daily Value: Feel like you're drowning in numbers? Let the Daily Value be your guide. Daily Values are listed for people who eat 2,000 or 2,500 calories a day. If you eat more, your personal daily value may be higher than what's listed on the label. If you eat less, your personal daily value may be lower. For fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium, choose foods with a low % Daily Value. For total carbohydrate, dietary fiber, vitamins and minerals, your daily value goal is to reach 100% of each.
5. Total Fat: Aim low: Most people need to cut back on fat! Too much fat may contribute to heart disease and cancer. Try to limit your calories from fat. For a healthy heart, choose foods with a big difference between the total number of calories and the number of calories from fat.
6. Saturated Fat: A new kind of fat? No--saturated fat is part of the total fat in food. It is listed separately because it's the key player in raising blood cholesterol and your risk of heart disease. Eat less!
7. Cholesterol: Too much cholesterol -- a second cousin to fat -- can lead to heart disease. Challenge yourself to eat less than 300 mg each day.
8. Sodium: You call it "salt," the label calls it "sodium." Either way, it may add up to high blood pressure in some people. So, keep your sodium intake low -- 2,400 to 3,000 mg or less each day.* The AHA recommends no more than 3,000 mg sodium per day for healthy adults.
9. Total Carbohydrate: When you cut down on fat, you can eat more carbohydrates. Carbohydrates are in foods like bread, potatoes, fruits and vegetables. Choose these often! They give you nutrients and energy.
10. Dietary Fiber: Grandmother called it "roughage," but her advice to eat more is still up-to-date! That goes for both soluble and insoluble kinds of dietary fiber. Fruits, vegetables, whole-grain foods, beans and peas are all good sources and can help reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer.
11. Protein: Most Americans get more protein than they need. Where there is animal protein, there is also fat and cholesterol. Eat small servings of lean meat, fish and poultry. Use skim or low-fat milk, yogurt and cheese. Try vegetable proteins like beans, grains and cereals.
12. Vitamins & Minerals: Your goal here is 100% of each for the day. Don't count on one food to do it all. Let a combination of foods add up to a winning score.

June Artist—Edward Jones

All the wood that I carve is recycled from trees that have fallen or had to be taken down. The cedar that I’ve carved is from sign or fence post. Hug a tree; feel its energy.

My name is Edward Richard Jones and I’m working hard at being an artist. I work as a regional maintenance supervisor for five apartment complexes. What I want to be doing is art full time. I’ve studied art, metal smiting and design at Rhode Island College and worked as a jewelry designer. I left the jewelry business because my head was going to explode. I was the only designer for the company and they seemed to suck the creativity out of me. I still make and sell jewelry, but I have to really be in the mood for sterling silver to be creative. What I work hard to do and think about is carving wood. The wood that I use for my art is recycled wood. That is, it is from trees that have fallen or had to be taken down. I also use cedar fence or sign post. I love to work with the figure and that is what I carve the most. I also love to work with geometric shapes in wood as well as in my jewelry designs. Last year I had my first One Man Show at Savannah State University. The show was even more than I expected; a great show.

Last year, I had an abbreviated one-man show at the JEA and it was so successful, we’re doing it again!

Mazel Tov to the 2011 High School and College Graduates

COLLEGE GRADUATES

Alexa Cohen
Savannah College of Art and Design

The daughter of Ruth and George Cohen, Alexa graduated from Savannah College of Art and Design with a degree in Fine Arts studying Motion Media Design. During college, she was in the SCAD swing dance club for four years, the Motion Media Club and in 2010 had a summer internship at Jump (motion graphics) in Atlanta. She made the Dean’s List and was the Treasurer and an Officer of the SCAD Swing Dance Club. Alexa plans on pursuing a career in motion graphics and the arts while continuing her food blog and online jewelry store. She hopes to be located near a huge swing dance scene and you can keep up with her at alexacoohen.com. Alexa attended Rambam Day School from kindergarten through sixth grade and she attended Shalom School from seventh through tenth grade.

Sara Hofstein
Barnard College of Columbia University

The daughter of Marian and Michael Hofstein, Sara graduated from Barnard College of Columbia University with a degree in Medieval and Renaissance Studies. During college, she worked at the Columbia Daily Spectator; she was an Associate A&O Editor, a Staff Writer, and a Senior Staff Blogger. Sara was also the TV Editor at The Eye, Columbia’s weekend arts magazine. She attended Rambam Day School from second through eighth grade.

Shira Malka Gordon
Long Island University, Brooklyn Campus

The daughter of Rabbi Jeffrey and Shelley Gordon, Shira graduated with a degree in Nursing from Long Island University, Brooklyn Campus. Shira served as President of the school’s chapter of the National Student Nurse’s Association. She plans on furthering her education by attending a Master’s level nursing program. Shira attended Rambam Day School from Kindergarten through eighth grade.

Halle Michelle Rubnitz
College of Charleston

The daughter of Laurie and Jeffrey Rubnitz, Halle graduated from the College of Charleston with a degree in Arts Management and a minor in Studio Art. She participated in Charleston Student Advocates for the Arts, the Jewish Student Union and the Visual Arts Club. Halle was the Marketing Director for the Visual Arts Club, Secretary of the Visual Arts Club and Outstanding Arts Management Student, Faculty Nominated and Awarded in 2011. Halle was a volunteer with YoArt Project and an intern with SCOOP Studios and Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art. She is currently the Media Relations Assistant in the Marketing and Public Relations Department of Spoleto Festival USA, America’s premier international performing arts festival. Following the festival, Halle is interested in continuing to pursue opportunities in the non-profit art world. Her long-term career goal and mission is to create connections between people and arts. She attended Rambam Day School from pre-kindergarten through eighth grade.

Beth Sadler
University of Georgia

The daughter of Jodi and Kenneth Sadler, Beth graduated from the University of Georgia with degrees in History and Sociology. During college, she participated in HandsOn Northeast Georgia, Athens Clark County Mentoring Program, Friends for Life Mentoring, Washington Semester Program, Sigma Delta Tau, Maimonides Jewish Leaders Fellowship, Invisible Children, Beth and Jeff Sandler Fund, and Wells Fargo’s Judge William F. Cohen Fund. In 2009, Beth served as a production assistant on the film “Rocco’s Dinner Party.” If she does not receive any job offers she’ll return to Savannah and work to complete a Master’s degree at Savannah College of Art and Design. She also is planning to apply to the University of York’s Centre for Medieval Studies in a couple of years to continue work on her thesis, which discussed Sir Thomas Malory’s “Le Morte Darthur” as a commentary on the Wars of the Roses. Ultimately, however, Sara wants to become a film producer or an executive at a studio.

Karli Zuckerman
University of Georgia

The daughter of Elaine and Joel Zuckerman, Karli volunteered at the Sexual Assault Hotline, the Boys and Girls Club and with the Oasis Catholic. She graduated Magna Cum Laude. Karli plans to pursue a Ph.D. in School Psychology at Teachers College at Columbia University in New York City to be a practicing Clinical Psychologist. She attended Rambam Day School from third through fifth grades and the Shalom School from sixth through eighth grades.

Four Questions for the Rest of the Year
John Young
Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob Head Custodian

1. What's most rewarding about working for Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob?

The most rewarding part about working for Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob is feeling and experiencing the love of the people as they conduct their worship on Shabbat and on the High Holy Days.

2. What's the funniest thing that ever happened to you at work?

One of the funniest things that has ever happened was the one time we had to call the Bomb Squad to come and investigate a suspicious package. It turns out that after they blew up the package that it was a case of mezuzahs.

3. Working in a Jewish house of worship, what’s the most challenging part of the job for you?

The most challenging part of the job is getting the teaching congregation to communicate about important holidays.

4. You’ve been there for a number of years; what have you learned that you want to share with our readers?

From my time spent working for Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob, I've learned to love the Torah for G-d.

It’s A Funny Thing
By Melinda Stein

1. What's most rewarding about working for Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob?

The most rewarding part about working for Congregation Bnai Brith Jacob is feeling and experiencing the love of the people as they conduct their worship on Shabbat and on the High Holy Days.

2. What's the funniest thing that ever happened to you at work?

One of the funniest things that has ever happened was the one time we had to call the Bomb Squad to come and investigate a suspicious package. It turns out that after they blew up the package that it was a case of mezuzahs.

3. Working in a Jewish house of worship, what’s the most challenging part of the job for you?

Rambam and the JEA are still working diligently to collaborate our efforts on behalf of an ECE preschool program. All those involved deserve a big applause for their time, effort and concern for the Jewish community.

Rambam is busy as we approach the end of the school year. The 8th grade with the assistance of other middle school students presented the play, Cinderella. It was a spin on the original version of Cinderella, only in this play it was a young man that was being mistreated. We had a wonderful turn out, over a 150 people in the audience and about 15 volunteers, among which we even had a grandparent. It was smashing success and the reviews were terrific.

May 11th our girls’ choir (grades one through four) performed with the assistance of our recorder group. The choir was under the direction of Peshy Russ, our 2y, 3y and 4y Judaic teacher and the recorder group was under the direction of Kerith Earlix, a member of the Jewish community. The performance was well attended and absolutely very much enjoyed.

Gershon, our community shaliach visited with the preschool children to teach them all about Israel so they could enrich their celebration of Yom HaAtzeit. Gershon handed out Israeli flags, played Israeli music and the children marched around. Gershon also taught the children some Hebrew words and showed them pictures of Israel.

Rambam’s PTO, the week of May 1st celebrated Teacher’s Appreciation Week. They showered the staff with food, gifts and a great finale of the PTO president, Wendy Cohen gathering all the students and teachers together expressing appreciation to all the staff and a poem that certainly boost the staff’s ego and sense of accomplishment.

Pre-K celebrated Mother’s Day by dressing their Mommies in pretty, flower hats that they made. They sang songs to their Mommies and then presented to them a beautiful flower pot.

All of Pre-School enjoyed their Pesach vacation and were thrilled to share all of their wonderful Pesach projects with their families. The older children also took home projects and Torah thoughts to share at the seder.

The 7th & 8th graders made a Holocaust presentation to Savannah Christian’s 5th grade class. The students showed a power point and explained each picture depicted on the power point. The children were very informative and not at all intimidated by all the questions. They were however, disappointed that most of the questions were about the Rambam students being Jewish and not about the Holocaust. They were quite comfortable answering the questions and I and Mrs. Wright (the assistant principal, responsible for setting up the visit) interleaved very little. I have included a letter from the 5th grade teacher at Savannah Christian;

Loving, the power point presentation today was spot on. Our class really enjoyed it and wanted more of it. I think we should keep it this way every year. BUT, next year I’l try to do better about getting y’all here sooner to present to us so we have longer for Q & A. It was so good to see you.

Angie

Great things are happening at Rambam. Please feel free to come by and see for yourself.

Perception is often a misperception of reality.

Stay In Touch

As summer is here and school ends, I wish that we’ll look for chances to make this special time another spiritually growing experience and find ways to show different aspects of our Judaism to our children.

Summer offers opportunities to do so many things that can be both enjoyable and meaningful. It could be going to new places or pursuing activities we did not have time for during the year. Arranging the family albums and adding new pictures to the collection is a good example. We Jews value our history and, more importantly, its transmission. Take time with your children to acquire or recall your family history through stories, pictures and artifacts. Often getting their version of our memories can be so surprising.

Many of us will be traveling this summer. Our journeys will take us to places in our region, in the United States and perhaps around the world. Jewish life is present nearly everywhere. Look for synagogues in the places you’ll be passing through. Show your children that Jews live everywhere and that Friday night services are not that different, even if in China. Or even look for the neighborhood Jewish grocery store. I promise you’ll get a lot of information about the local Jewish “folklore” in there.

Historical sites are another source to access our history and legacy. Your child might learn about it in his school books, but nothing is more rewarding than being able to say “I know, I’ve been there”. Even Valley Forge has Jewish heroes, just look for them.

Summer is a great time for reading. Add books of Jewish content to the reading list (characters like Sammy Spider can’t be trusted to be by themselves all summer!).

Summer can also be a time for acquiring new skills. Learn how to read Hebrew and let your child have a turn at being your teacher; learn how to chant Torah, or just learn a new blessing. And because arts and crafts are inevitable when you have kids at home, make sure to include a Jewish ritual object in some of your projects – we can never have enough Shabbat candlesticks!

Most important of all let them show off! When sharing a Friday dinner with the grandparents or the cousins visiting from Ohio, let your children help with the Kiddush or the HaMotzi! Nothing better than a Grandpas’ praises to keep them going.

Summer offers days filled with opportunity to include a Jewish component to almost any situation. Let’s look for them and let’s stay in touch!

Wishing you a fantastically Jewish summer.

Why Wait, Do it Now!
Coronation Chicken Salad from Gefilte Girl

Chat y’all!
The Royal Wedding got me thinking of one of my favorite salads, Coronation Chicken. It was originally prepared for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in 1953, and is still frequently served at British high tea (along with scones, smoked salmon, little cakes and crustless tea sandwiches.) I got to know this dish at one of my favorite pubs, The Blue Anchor, in Delray Beach, Florida. They serve it with greens, fresh fruit and extra mango chutney on the side. It is delish! My version of Coronation Chicken is a bit different from the original given to the Queen- which included sherry, red wine, bay leaf, tomato paste, etc. I prefer this lighter and fresher version, and I suspect that you will too.

CORONATION CHICKEN SALAD
For the dressing:
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 Tbs. curry powder (adjust it to your taste)
2 Tbs. mango chutney (if you can’t find it, substitute peach or apricot preserves) juice of 1/2 lemon
salt and pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients and refrigerate.

4 boneless and skinless chicken breasts- boiled, chilled and diced
1/2 red onion, fine dice
1/2 stalk celery, fine dice
1/4 cup currants
1/4 cup sliced almonds
1/2 granny smith apple, diced

Combine all ingredients and then coat with the dressing. Season with salt and pepper. Serve at your own high tea, or just keep in the fridge for a snack after a day at Tybee! Cheerio!

One Gift to Jewish Family Services, A Lifetime of Support for the Savannah Jewish Community

A community supporter who chooses to remain anonymous has established The Tikvah Fund in support of the Savannah Jewish Federation’s Jewish Family Services efforts.

Tikvah, meaning Hope, will provide funding in perpetuity for the social service needs of the community including rent/mortgage assistance, Kosher meals, case management, prescription medicines, clothing and other daily necessities for those who are unable to attend to themselves in times of need.

The Challenge
The fund’s creators have generously issued a challenge to the community to participate in the creation of the Tikvah Fund. For every dollar donated to the fund by members of the community (up to a total of $20,000), the fund’s creators will match the donations dollar for dollar!

“Welcome Home” – A Journey to Israel

By Kevin Richman

“Welcome Home, we’ve been waiting for you for over 2,000 years.” These were the first words spoken to us by our guide as 33 soon-to-be friends from across the USA settled into a bus which would be our means of transportation across Israel for the next 10 days. The journey would be a blur of joy, adventure, spirituality, bonding, and exhaustion as we trekked from the northern border with Lebanon to Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Masada, the Red Sea, and much more. Since returning, I’ve been asked the same question: What was your favorite part?

I have thought about this question a lot. My favorite part wasn’t floating in the Red Sea, hiking Masada, bonding with our 8 Israeli soldiers, partying with new friends, putting my face against the Western Wall on Shabbat with joyous singing echoing through the night, or the emotions of the Holocaust museum Yad Vashem. My favorite part was simply a feeling; a feeling of community. I have had the connection all revolving around one central theme – Judaism. I was not ultra-religious before this trip and am not now since my return, but I have gone to Shabbat services since returning and searched for young professionals’ events for Jews in the DC area. I want to recreate that feeling of community, I want to feel – home.

I encourage anyone between the ages of 18-26 that qualifies to go on Birthright. There are programs for everyone that provide unique experiences and perspectives that you can read more about here: http://www.birthrightisrael.com. More importantly, I encourage everyone to get involved and help create your own Jewish community, no matter where you are or how active the current community. Create your own home.

So, even though I was only alive when the song was written, the words have personal meaning for me as Chair of the campaign. “In this world of over-rated pleasures, of under-rated treasures, I’m so glad there is you.” These words are sent from me to you, thanking each of you for your gift, your hard work, and your being a part of the process of helping Savannah’s Jewish community succeed. I think you are extraordinary,” said Sherry Dolgoff about her Annual Campaign experience.

During this year’s allocations meetings in early May, many organizations came before the committee to present their organization’s successes from the past year and their anticipated upcoming needs.

In addition to learning about our local organizations and communal needs, the committee heard a presentation from our Jewish Agency for Israel (JAFI) Regional Representative, Yael Shmookler. She explained the history of JAFI, described its programs, and how lives are touched by those programs. For instance, within the past few years and the year coming up, nine individuals from Savannah will have been on a MASA Gap Year program. MASA programs are six months to a year in length, where individuals live and learn in Israel studying a variety of topics and have life changing Jewish and Israeli experiences.

With the 2011 Savannah Jewish Federation Annual Campaign results down from the previous year, difficult allocation decisions had to be made. With a shortfall of funds raised, the Allocation Committee agreed upon a fifteen percent reduction from last year’s allocations across all organizations except for Israel and Overseas. The Israel and Overseas allocation comprised about twenty-eight percent of the allocable dollars, an increase from the previous year’s campaign. It includes Savannah’s “core” allocation to the Jewish Federations of North America, distributed on our behalf to the Jewish Agency for Israel (JAFI) the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC), and Birthright Israel.

Linda Zoller, President of the Savannah Jewish Federation, “Allocations is always a challenging process but in a year that we had $780,590 in requests and only $575,066 to meet all the requests it was extremely difficult We were not able to fund over $200,000 in legitimate needs, which was very troubling. The allocations committee did a fabulous job making the hard decisions. I applaud them.”

Allocable funds are determined by taking the amount of pledges received during the campaign and subtracting a percentage for bad debt. Then, the Federation budget for the upcoming year is subtracted, incidental donations made to SJF over the year are added in, and any Federation budget savings from the previous year also are added. (Federation does not roll over unused budgeted dollars into the next budget; instead, the dollars go back into the community the next year.) Budget savings usually come from salaries saved when personnel positions are vacant, the Federation’s is a bare-bones budget.

Even though the allocations process has come to a conclusion, there’s still a huge need in our community and time to give. Please consider the possibility of what more can be done if you donate or increase your 2011 gift. Volunteer Opportunities with the Jewish Educational Alliance and Savannah Jewish Federation

Wanted: People with Open Hearts Who Want to Help by Serving the Savannah Jewish Community

Thursday Senior Lunch - There are volunteer opportunities to help with Senior Luncheons including greeting, taking payments, assisting with serving and providing company to our wonderful seniors. No previous experience necessary, just a desire to help. Thursdays from 11:30-1:30. If you are able to assist please contact Benjamin Bloom at programming@savj.org or by phone, 355-8111.

Publications Committee - Are you an ideas person? Interested in writing occasionally? The SJF Publications Committee which publishes the Savannah Jewish News is looking to add new members. The Committee meets once a month to critique the past edition and make plans for upcoming issues. We'd love some individuals who would occasionally write for the paper. Whatever your interest in the paper, we can accommodate you. Contact Lynn Levine by email, lynn@savj.org or Benjamin Bloom by email, programming@savj.org or call 355-8111 for volunteer details.

Control Desk Volunteers - JEA Health & Wellness Department is looking for volunteers to man the Control Desk entering the Health & Wellness facilities. Volunteers would be greeting members, checking membership cards, distributing equipment (basketballs, yoga mats, etc). Opportunities are available six days a week with 2-4 hour shifts. No lifting or physical exertion. Contact Stephanie Johnson at 355-8111 or stephanie@savj.org.

Youth Sports Coaches - Within the Youth Sports Department, we are always looking for Coaches, Assistant Coaches, and Score Keepers. If you have an ambition to make a difference in a child's life, then this is a great place to start. Contact Stephanie Johnson at 355-8111.

Administrative Assistance - From time to time the JEA and Federation have need for volunteers to help with campaign administrative functions, labeling the Savannah Jewish News for mailing, filing in the Finance department, etc. If you have a few hours to give from time to time, contact Office Administrator, Vicky Lunick at 355-8111 or vicky@savj.org.
