ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Since we recorded the burials in Congregation Beth Israel's cemeteries thirteen years ago, most of our work this time has been with Sherah Israel's cemeteries and we are indebted to Rabbi Aaron Rubinstein for the great amount of time he gave us.

Our Temple Rabbi Uri Goren was equally helpful, and we are indebted to both Rabbis for their efforts to educate us.

We must give profound thanks to Marvia Cleveland Mitchell, the present administrator of Macon's cemeteries. Without her great patience and cooperation, we could not have done the work.

A special thanks to Willard Rocker and his great staff at the Washington Memorial Library Genealogical Room, Jean Lyndon, Muriel McDowell, Betty Jean McGoldrick, Anne Rogers, and Margaret Stephens. I don't think Macon people realize what a priceless resource we have.

We are indebted to Jordan Jelks for the fine diagram showing all the Rose Hill locations and the new plot of Sherah Israel Cemetery.

We want to renew our appreciation to Don Rosen and his associate Judy Fellows for the updated work from the first book which we reproduced.

Thanks to the Riverside Cemetery Staff, Cecil R. Coke, Jr., Martha Sims, and Susan Gordon.

Many others went out of their way to be helpful: Milton Heard and his staff at Hart's Mortuary and particularly Lillian Davis, Lovick Culverhouse and his associates at Clark Memorials, Snow's Memorial Chapel personnel, Van Ellison at Memorial Park, and friends Lawrence "Ed" Hallman and Brenda Lester.

And thanks to Jean Williams at Temple Beth Israel and Linda Walker at Sherah Israel whose patience we tried.

PREFACE

This information was gathered as an historical record of the Jewish community of Macon. In addition to recording the information from every gravestone, we have gone through every book of the burial records of the Rose Hill Cemetery, beginning in 1844, and have gone through all the obituaries from the Macon newspapers as recorded in the Washington Memorial Library Genealogical Room. We searched these records for all familiar names and then for all the names that appeared to be Jewish, of which we had no previous knowledge.

The Rose Hill records are particularly interesting. They were recorded by the City Sexton of the period. In addition to the burial date and place in the cemetery, they often list the city or country of birth, the city of the death (and remember, Macon was apparently the only consecrated Jewish ground for about a hundred-mile radius), and the cause of death. The writings and styles of the various sextons over the 156-year period understandably vary. For example, our Jewish burial sites are designated as William Wolff, Hebrew Lot, New Hebrew Lot, Polish Lot, Russian Lot, and Jew Lot. Note the absence of the name Sherah Israel. As Louis Chanin discovered, for most of its existence, Sherah Israel's burial area was treated as an independent area and many of its burials were not listed.

Disturbing and shocking is the fact that there are no records of any burials of any denomination from 1848 to 1854, and none for the 16 years between 1880 and 1896. One theory for the earlier period is that the sexton was illiterate.

In working these records, we found many burials within designated Jewish burial areas for which there was no stone or marker. We have listed these burials with their information in the appropriate section following the listing of the visible stones.

In addition, we have found many burial records of people known to be Jewish without the section designated. We have listed these.

Further, we found other burials with no burial area designated and no positive Jewish identification, though we thought they were Jewish. We have listed these based on our assumptions from the name, from our knowledge of the families, and from any such information we could gather.

We have listed another group, likewise not identified, taken from the obituaries.

We also have listed burials in Riverside Cemetery, Macon Memorial Park, the Old City Cemetery, and unmarked cremations.

We searched for an explanation for the absence of the markers. Rabbis Goren and Rubinstein have explained to us that stillborn infants or early deaths do not usually have any burial ritual which would include markers. The failure to mark many graves of others, juvenile or adult, was possibly from economic hardship and, of course, some stones may have disappeared over the years.

In writing Hebrew dates, the 5000 is left off. Thus, this year, 5757, is written as 757. Though this is general practice, some earlier Rabbis felt it necessary to explain it. Therefore, some of our graves have the Hebrew word, "Lepak," which means "excluding the thousands."

We are certain that in compiling this information from many sources and with many speculations that we have made errors. We apologize in advance and hope you will send us the corrections.

HISTORY AND EXPLANATION OF THE JEWISH BURIALS

THE HEBREW BURIAL GROUND was purchased from the City in 1844, just four years after Rose Hill was developed. The first burial there was Leopold Bettman who died in August of that year in Perry, Georgia. The second burial was his brother, David Bettman, who died in Hawkinsville, Georgia in October of the same year. In 1859, when Congregation Beth Israel was established, it took over this cemetery. With the opening of William Wolff Cemetery of 1879, the area was not generally used, though there are some graves there into the early 1900s. When William Wolff became the Congregation's cemetery, some members wanted to move their graves to the new area. It was not permitted.

We also list the large number of unmarked graves in this burial area.

CONGREGATION B'NAI ISRAEL CEMETERY was established in 1870 apparently by individuals (names unknown) of North German (Prussian/Polish) origin who, we believe, were not pleased with the increasing Reform practices of Beth Israel. We do not know if the Congregation was actually formed or if they held services. In 1890, in the minutes of Congregation Beth Israel, it is referred to as the "Polish Cemetery" and the Cemetery Sexton at times so described it. We think the area was abandoned when the Hebrew Aid Society opened its burial area. It lay vine-covered and unknown until Louis Chanin discovered it.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

WILLIAM WOLFF CEMETERY, facing on Madison Street, was opened in 1879 by Congregation Beth Israel anticipating the need for more space than the HEBREW BURIAL GROUND afforded. The land was bought and given to the Congregation by William Wolff. The minutes state that it shall be called "WILLIAM WOLFF" after the benefactor in perpetuity. Additional land has been added twice.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

THE HEBREW AID SOCIETY burial ground was started in 1899 by the newly arriving eastern Europeans. (See copy of deed, page 114.) Congregation Sherah Israel gradually took it over, dividing the lots among the owning families in 1929. (See deed form, page 115.) Though these people were the original owners of the cemetery, space was provided for all. In general, it is not now used, though some individuals elect to be buried there with their other family members.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

SHERAH ISRAEL CEMETERY was started in 1923. (See Milton Doctor's letter, page 135.) The Congregation gradually took over the adjacent HEBREW AID SOCIETY area and removed the wall separating the two areas. It is still in use.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

THE WORKMAN'S CIRCLE (THE ARBETER RING) was organized in Macon in the 1920s. We think they purchased the grounds very soon thereafter. The first burial was in 1930.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

SHERAH ISRAEL, NEW SECTION, was opened in 1987.

OTHER BURIALS

There are Jewish burials in non-Jewish sections of Rose Hill, and we have included these.

There are Jewish burials which are unmarked and the area is not definite. We have listed these.

There are burials which we thought to be Jewish but are not so identified and the area is unlisted. From a great number of such burials, we have carefully chosen these.

There are deaths listed in the newspapers who appear to be Jewish though the information is, again, sometimes vague. We have a list taken from these.

RIVERSIDE CEMETERY is a privately owned cemetery facing on Riverside Drive. It begins at Madison Street across from WILLIAM WOLFF. The office from which you can find grave locations is on the corner.

MACON MEMORIAL PARK is a non-denominational private cemetery, using only flat standardized grave markers.

The OLD CITY CEMETERY is between Poplar and Cherry Streets on Seventh Street. It was used by the City prior to 1840. There are two burials there that Louis Chanin suggested might be Jewish. We have added two others from obituaries.

USING THIS BOOK

HEBREW BURIAL GROUND OF CONGREGATION BETH ISRAEL IN ROSE HILL CEMETERY

Enter the main entrance of Rose Hill Cemetery off Riverside Drive. After going through the gates, immediately turn right on Central Avenue Division East. Go straight down the hill (do not take the right fork) until you are just opposite the Confederate burial area which has multiple rows of upright stones. Two brick pillars on your right, with an arched sign, identify the Hebrew Burial Ground.

CONGREGATION B' NAI ISRAEL

CONGREGATION B'NAI ISRAEL CEMETERY was established in 1870 apparently by individuals (names unknown) of North German (Prussian/Polish) origin who, we believe, were not pleased with the increasing Reform practices of Beth Israel. We do not know if the Congregation was actually formed or if they held services. In 1890, in the minutes of Congregation Beth Israel, it is referred to as the "Polish Cemetery" and the Cemetery Sexton at times so described it. We think the area was abandoned when the Hebrew Aid Society opened its burial area. It lay vine-covered and unknown until Louis Chanin discovered it.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

WILLIAM WOLFF CEMETERY

WILLIAM WOLFF CEMETERY, facing on Madison Street, was opened in 1879 by Congregation Beth Israel anticipating the need for more space than the HEBREW BURIAL GROUND afforded. The land was bought and given to the Congregation by William Wolff. The minutes state that it shall be called "WILLIAM WOLFF" after the benefactor in perpetuity. Additional land has been added twice.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

HEBREW AID SOCIETY

THE HEBREW AID SOCIETY burial ground was started in 1899 by the newly arriving eastern Europeans. (See copy of deed, page 114.) Congregation Sherah Israel gradually took it over, dividing the lots among the owning families in 1929. (See deed form, page 115.) Though these people were the original owners of the cemetery, space was provided for all. In general, it is not now used, though some individuals elect to be buried there with their other family members.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

The names below taken from the Rose Hill records show burials in the above area; however, there are no markers or designation of the graves. Note that most of these are stillborn or infants. The Rabbis have explained that it is optional whether to mark such burials, and it is usually not done. We hope this listing causes no hurt to anyone, but we think that even this sadness is a part of our history.

CONGREGATION SHERAH ISRAEL CEMETERY

SHERAH ISRAEL CEMETERY was started in 1923. (See Milton Doctor's letter, page 135.) The Congregation gradually took over the adjacent HEBREW AID SOCIETY area and removed the wall separating the two areas. It is still in use.

We also list the unmarked graves in this burial area.

LETTER TO LEO BRAHN, SHERAH ISRAEL CEMETERY CHAIRMAN

May 16, 1981
529 Hillwood St.
Greensboro, N. C 27410

Dear Leo,

We just returned from a six week trip and found your two bills. I have never had any knowledge of this debt and am enclosing a check for $150.00 and will send the balance next month. I take it that this is a one time payment as it is Perpetual Care.

I am sure there are very few people left in the congregation who can remember the beginning of the cemetery. As a child I well remember how my grandfather wheedled out of the city an empty, useless lot. After that for a long time he had the city garbage dumped on the lot and he went out and personally burnt it. When he had enough landfill he seeded and planted. He worked so dilligently and for so many years that when he died the congregation honored him by giving him the first gravesite at the entrance of the cemetery free. When the arch was put up his name was cut in the wet cement.

I thought you might be interested in the story as beginnings become blurred as time passes.

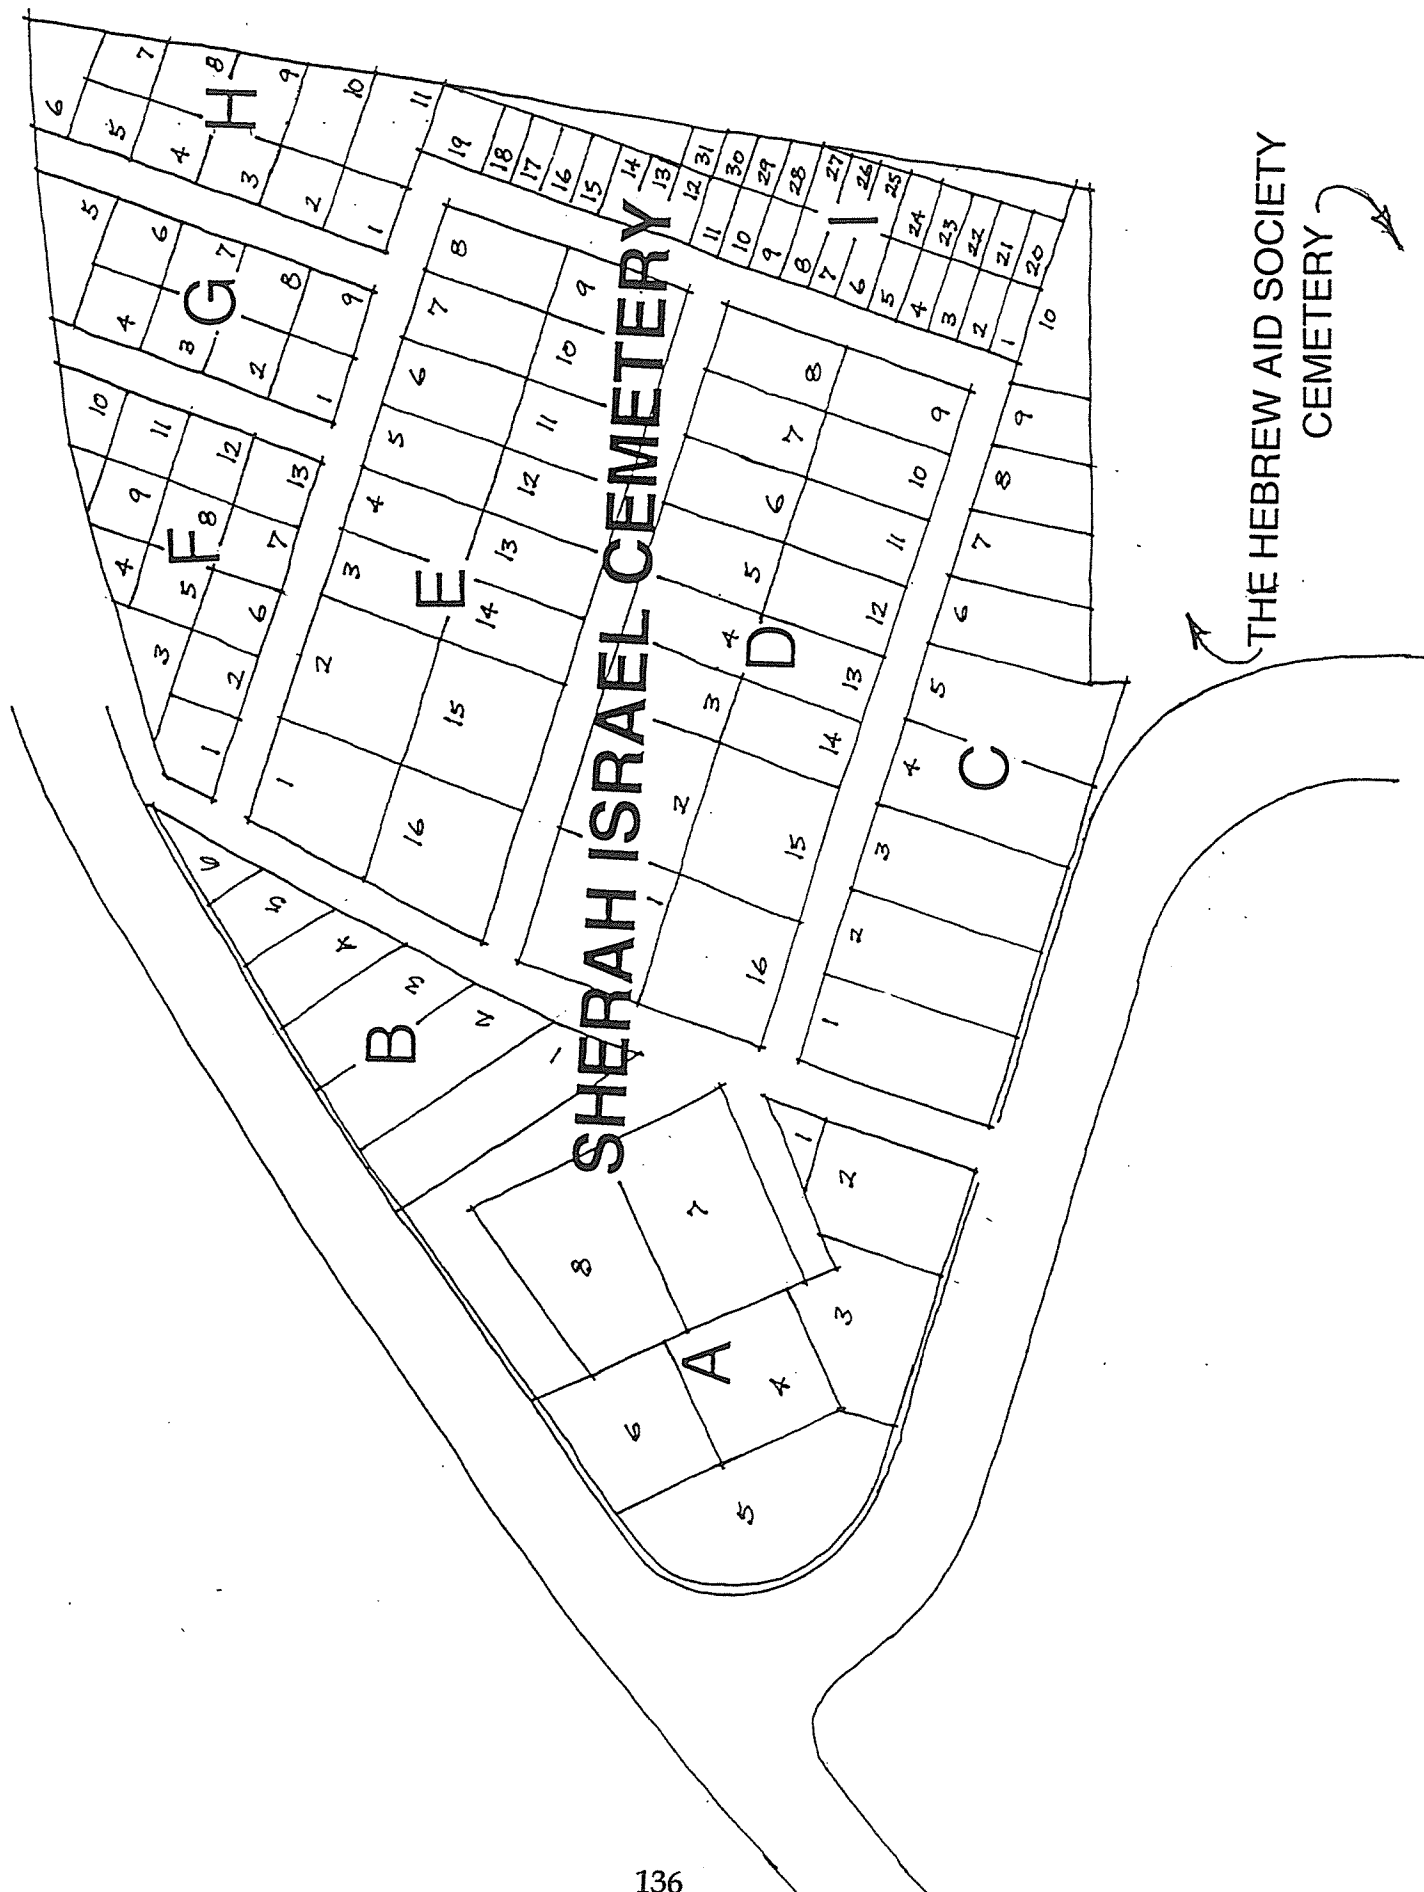

Sincerely yours,

MILTON DOCTOR

I might add that my grandfather was the first person buried in that cemetery.

The area about which Milton Doctor writes is the Sherah Israel Cemetery. His grandfather, Louis Doctor, is buried just to the right of the entrance-way in Section C, page 147. The date is November 22, 1922.

The names below taken from the Rose Hill records show burials in the above area; however, there are no markers or designation of the graves. Note that these are stillbirths or infants. The Rabbis have explained that it is optional whether to mark such a burial, and most do not. We hope this listing causes no hurt to anyone, but we feel that even this sadness is part of our history.

OTHER UNMARKED BURIALS, AREA NOT DESIGNATED

The names taken from the Rose Hill records show Jewish burials but in which of the Jewish areas is not clear and there are no markers or designation of the graves. By 1870 there were two Hebrew Lots. Note that many of these burials are very young infants. The Rabbis have explained that it is optional whether to mark such a burial, and it is usually not done. We hope that this listing causes no hurt to anyone but we think that even this sadness is part of our history.

A SPECIAL SITUATION: THE BERND-ISAACS FAMILY

ROSE HILL CEMETERY (Non-Jewish Section)

This branch of the Bernd-Isaacs families were descendants and relatives of two of Congregation Beth Israel's most dedicated families. They are properly buried in a non-Jewish portion of Rose Hill Cemetery, due to multiple intermarriages with Christian spouses, and they were often active in those churches. In spite of this, the families retained their close relationship with their Jewish relatives and with members of the Jewish community. In several generations there have been members who returned to Judaism.

One branch of the family was devoutly traditional and a descendant is considering moving to Israel.

Note they elected to be buried in an area close to the William Wolff Cemetery, at the bottom of the hill on the College Street level.

MACON MEMORIAL PARK

MACON MEMORIAL PARK, located at 4101 Mercer University Blvd., is a non-denominational burial ground with graves marked by ground-level brass markers. The graves are numbered in orderly rows and all are the same, thus egalitarian. Each has an insert for a flower vase and artificial flowers seem to be the norm.

OLD CITY CEMETERY

The OLD CITY CEMETERY is between Poplar and Cherry Streets on Seventh Street. It was used by the City prior to 1840 and the use of Rose Hill. There are two burials there that Louis Chanin suggested might be Jewish. We have added others from obituaries.
