San Antonio Jewish Community working to help those affected by Hurricanes Harvey and Irma

The force of Mother Nature during the past few weeks has heightened our responsibility to each other. Our neighbors in Houston and other cities and towns in Texas are dealing with catastrophic devastation from Hurricane Harvey. More than 70% of the Jewish community in Houston lives in parts of the city that were badly flooded, and that includes nearly 12,000 Jewish elderly.

Our family and friends in Florida were most recently impacted by Hurricane Irma, thankfully avoiding the great damage that was predicted.

PARTNERSHIP CORNER

Saving Syrians

A visit to a Nahariya hospital treating victims is healing and harrowing

Excerpted from Jerusalem Post Article By Shlomo Maital

It is midnight on a cold winter night in the Syrian part of the Golan Heights. A strange caravan wends its way along a rocky path toward a secret location on the border with Israel. Mothers in hijabs and parkas carry babies and small children swathed in bandages. Some children, crudely bandaged, ride in panniers slung over...
The door opened. The details taken care of. The courtesy done automatically. The word spoken softly and with sincerity. A hand placed just so to steady another’s step. They don’t really define caring, but they’re clues of its presence – pervasive and constant. And unobtrusive.

Because the focus of any memorial, any funeral, isn’t the service being provided. It’s the memory of the life being honored. It’s a lesson Porter Loring learned in his first years in the mortuary profession, and a legacy we’ve remembered and maintained for almost a century.
Hurricanes a reminder that life is fragile

We will celebrate the Jewish holiday of Sukkot later this month. This joyful eight day festival of “booths” feels more powerful to me this year in the wake of recent hurricanes and other natural disasters. We are commanded to dwell in these make-shift huts as a reminder that there is a larger universe than what we have created by the genius of human invention. We eat and gather in sukot in order to feel the elements of nature and experience the world God has created, as opposed to the manmade structures in which we dwell the rest of the year. Sukkot reminds us that we, human beings, are a small part of the greater existence of the world, with the intention of humbling us, balancing our egos and allowing us to start the New Year with a greater sense of God’s presence.

And it is with mixed emotions for many of us that we have experienced immense gratitude these past several weeks. Like many of you, my family in San Antonio and I were spared from the hurricanes. We may have experienced some frustration in filling up our cars with gas, but that was all.

We all know individuals in Houston and Corpus Christi and other small towns in Texas that are now attempting to rebuild from catastrophic devastation. Shortly after Hurricane Harvey, we sat in horror once again watching the state of Florida being pummeled by effects of Hurricane Irene. While I was comforted in knowing that my brother and his family in Miami had safely evacuated, my heart broke imagining the devastation they would face once they returned home.

What can we do? This was the question that so many of us asked, and it has been heartwarming to see the outpouring of love and support that individuals, families and corporations have extended to their fellow human beings. I was particularly proud to be part of the Jewish Federation system that immediately stepped into action. Days after Hurricane Harvey, we gathered needed cleaning supplies within hours and drove them to Houston, being the first truck load of supplies to be delivered to the Jewish community.

Millions of dollars have been raised for relief efforts from damage caused by Hurricane Harvey in Texas and Hurricane Irma in Florida. We can all feel proud of these efforts because we are part of a system and part of a family that cares for each other.

While it is easy to despair in times like these, I am grateful to be part of a tradition that embraces tikkun olam, the concept of “repairing the world.” Although we have witnessed tremendous destruction of recent, we have also seen tikkun olam in action, from meals being delivered to those in need to hugs being offered to those with broken spirits. Let this Sukkot be a reminder to us always that life is fragile and joy is always possible.

because we are present in all of these communities. Thank you to all of you who contributed to the JFNA Hurricane Harvey Relief Fund. As of September 11, Jewish Federations had raised over $10M, a third of the estimated $30M that will be needed to rebuild in the Houston Jewish community. Allocated dollars are being used to address the following priorities:

- Immediate cash grants for flood victims’ essential needs
- Extended day-camp programming to make up for delayed school opening
- Expanding capacity of Jewish Family Services to allow them to provide one-stop, comprehensive assistance
- Grants to individual rabbis’ discretionary funds to meet specific congregational needs
- Funds to the Hebrew Free Loan Association that will match resources from Cleveland, Los Angeles, New York, and San Francisco to create a new Hurricane Harvey loan pool

WHAT WE HAVE DONE IN SAN ANTONIO...

- On Wednesday Aug. 30, days after Harvey, we collected needed cleaning supplies and other essentials that were delivered by community member Harry Levy that evening; it was the first truck load of supplies to be delivered to the Houston Jewish community.
- With our Austin, Dallas and Ft. Worth Federation colleagues, we created a survey for individuals/families who would be willing to host displaced individuals from Houston. We collected over 100 replies. As of yet, there has not been a need to utilize this information.
- Our Jewish congregations, Chabad Center for Jewish Life & Learning, Congregation Agudas Achim, Temple Beth-El, Temple Chai and Rodfei Sholom should be applauded as well for their efforts.

San Antonio students explore the impact of the Holocaust

In the fall of 2016, applications began to arrive from area high school students interested in studying Holocaust History. As essays from applicants were read, it became apparent that these young people were thirsting for knowledge and eager to learn what was not being taught deeply enough in schools: the Holocaust and current world connections to that history. Proudly, we can now say these young people have acquired that knowledge and are prepared to identify and address anti-Semitism discrimination and prejudice in powerful ways.

The Holocaust Study Seminar was funded by the Sue and Richard Charitable Trust. Chris Busbee, executor of the Trust, greets Survivor Rose Williams. Chris addressed guests at the open house and in his remarks he spoke of being a teenager and traveling with his father to Munich. While in Munich, it was a visit to Dachau that he credits with the beginning of his moral development and his belief in the importance of teaching and learning from this history.

Among the over 220 guests that attended the open house, were, from l-r, HMMSA Docents Becky Hoag and Sharon Mullin, and Survivors and Sisters, Susanne Jalnos and Anna Rado. When asked about the event, Anna said, “It was very impressive that the young people are so interested in the Holocaust because the world is so messed up right now, and they want to make it better.”

Judy Palans learns from Study Seminar Student Abigail Lydon. Abigail was one of eight students that attended fifteen 3 hour sessions that culminated in a trip to Berlin, Krakow, and Budapest. Each student created an exhibition that demonstrated their understandings and connections to Holocaust History. For her exhibit, Abigail researched armed resistance in Auschwitz and Warsaw and examples of spiritual resistance demonstrated through literature, art, education, and religion in ghettos and concentration camps.

The Faith-Based Initiative: In the City for Good

By Ellen Ollervidez

As part of the City’s FY 2017 Budget, the Mayor and City Council approved the addition of a Faith-Based Community Liaison to facilitate ongoing collaboration between the City of San Antonio, faith-based and secular organizations.

This position was added to the Department of Human Services to lead the city’s Faith-Based Initiative with the primary goal of leveraging efforts and building capacity to improve the quality of life for vulnerable residents and distressed communities. Reverend Ann Helmke was appointed to lead implementation of this important effort and she addressed the Community Relations Council on Wednesday, Sept. 13 to provide history and information on the initiative. The top human service priorities are poverty, literacy, immigrants, homelessness and hunger, religious discrimination, public health, children in foster care, and mental health.

The Jewish Federation of San Antonio is known for its faithful commitment to the greater good within the San Antonio community. Ideally, we can harness the experiences, skills, and volunteer resources within the Jewish community to partner and coordinate efforts with the Faith-Based Initiative to develop relationships that ensure a healthy and prosperous future for all of San Antonio’s citizens. Please contact me at Ollervideze@jfsatx.org if you want to be a part of meaningful change and creating a resilient San Antonio community that is diverse and draws on our shared wisdom.

Q&A with Award-Winning Cookbook Author, Joan Nathan

Women’s Philanthropy of JFSA, along with Pomegranate Society Chairs Pat Kalmans and Lizette Feld, will host award-winning cookbook author Joan Nathan for an evening program on Thursday, Nov. 9. In addition to writing numerous cookbooks, Joan was the host of the popular PBS television series Jewish Cooking in America with Joan Nathan.

Do you have any favorite memories or stories of celebrating Sukkot?

When we moved into our new house, we built an open deck to have a sukkah. We did this little, stringing fresh fruits up rather than plastic ones and eating in the Sukkah. When they got older, we let the custom die but now that we are about to have grandchildren, perhaps we will start again.

Where did your journey writing cookbooks begin?

My journey began in Jerusalem where I was foreign press attaché to Teddy Kollek, the mayor of Jerusalem. Whenever I accompanied him on trips I noticed that the act of sitting down with someone and eating their food created a powerful bond.

What were early influences that piqued your interest in food?

My father was from Germany and he and his sister who lived near us made wonderful German pastries and exotic food like...

brains, something that my American born mother never made at home. I was totally captured.

What inspired your newest book, King Solomon’s Table?

A synagogue in Cochi which had a sign in the sanctuary saying that Jews had been in India since the time of King Solomon, seeking jewels, stones, peacocks and spices.

How has dedicating your life to Jewish food shaped your life?

I feel as if I have been on a constant scavenger hunt, looking for Jewish dishes the world over, that reflect their culture and history — it has been a great ride!

What has surprised you most about this quest?

How many recipes have been lost because of historical holocausts — and how many have been saved.

What does it feel like to cook a meal for your family or guests?

It is very gratifying as long as someone else cleans up! I love transferring and sharing the recipes I have gleaned for people and most often try them out on my family and friends.

PJ Library hosts Second Annual Back to School Concert

By Lauren Abraham & Debbie Denker, PJ Library Coordinators

PJ Library of San Antonio brought Jewish families together for a concert featuring Latin Grammy Award Winner and acclaimed PJ Library musician, Mister G. Dozens of families gathered at the Magik Theatre for an afternoon of singing and dancing on Sunday, Aug. 30. The concert included Spanish and Hebrew as well as lyrics about Jewish traditions. The highlight of the show was when Mister and Missus G invited the children up on stage for an interactive performance.

Both on and off stage, the kids spent one of their last weekends of summer jamming to various hits from the Parents Choice award winning CD, The Mitzvah Bus, and got an introduction to Mister G’s new album, Mundo Verde, released this year. The first twenty families to arrive got to bring home a free Mister G CD. After the concert, everyone had the opportunity to stay for a Meet and Greet, and take pictures.

On stage, the PJ Library kids pretended to fly like birds as Mister G sang the hit song, Cocodrilo.

Dennis Noll, CEO of the San Antonio Area Foundation provided additional motivation and solicitation tips to all in attendance.

B’nai B’rith launches year-long anniversary celebration

Alamo Brandeis B’nai B’rith will host its October event on Sunday, Oct. 8 at the JCC, Room 227 starting at 10:30 a.m., launching a year-long celebration leading up to B’nai B’rith’s 175 anniversary in October 2018.

B’nai B’rith was started by a group of 12 immigrants in a New York City cafe in 1843 who wanted to improve the condition of Jews in their community.

Today, B’nai B’rith has grown into a global force, working to protect the Jewish community all over the world by speaking out against anti-Semitism, defending the State of Israel from biased multilateral organizations, advocating for seniors and using the traditions passed down through our storied history to maintain a sense of Jewish identity and continuity.

To learn more about the Alamo Brandeis lodge or B’nai B’rith or to become a member, contact Irwin Barath at (210) 341-4502.
Temple Chai exploring move to new space

Temple Chai, now in its thirteenth year, has outgrown the space it has used since 2014. “It was a big step to strike out on our own and find a dedicated facility just for our use,” said president and founding member Jimmy Toubin. “Now the membership has grown so much since then that we’re out of room. We’ve had to rent more space for the holidays, and are unable to do everything we need to meet our members’ needs in the space we have.”

Besides Shabbat and holiday worship services, Temple Chai offers adult and childhood education, social and social action programming, volunteering, meals and more. The proposed new space will include dedicated worship space that can expand into a social hall, kitchen facilities, meeting rooms, classrooms, a gift shop and offices.

“We’re growing up and taking chances, and the members know that this is a once-in-a-lifetime chance to be on the ground floor of something that will be here for generations after we’re gone.”

For more information about Temple Chai’s changes and to see visualizations of the proposed space, visit www.templechaisa.org/newhome.

Agudas Achim Sisterhood Rummage Sale – October 25-26

Chabad offers new JLI course, Great Debates in Jewish History

The Chabad Center for Jewish Life & Learning will recount 2000 years of Jewish history through the lens of six epic debates that rocked the Jewish world and still resound powerfully today, offering a new course from the Rohr Jewish Learning Institute (JLI), titled Great Debates in Jewish History. The course is being offered at three different times: six Sunday mornings with Rabbi Yossi Marrus beginning October 29, 11 a.m.-12 p.m. at the Chabad Center, 14535 Blanco Rd.; six Tuesday afternoons with Rabbi Chaim Block beginning October 31, 12 p.m.-1:15 p.m. at the Law Office of Jackson Walker at Weston Centre, 112 E. Pecan Suite #2400, and six Wednesday evenings with Rabbi Levi Teldon beginning November 1, 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Chabad Center.

Great Debates in Jewish History raises such questions as: Why were the authors of the Dead Sea Scrolls opposed to rabbinic interpretation? What motivated the rebels at Masada? And what is the Jewish perspective on taking up arms in situations where defeat is inevitable? What role does nationalism play in Judaism? Are faith and reason mutually exclusive? What motivated the anti-Maimonideans in banning—and even burning—some of Maimonidean’s works? And is religion designed to be a private and personal experience, or one to be proudly paraded in the public domain?

Interested students may call (210) 764-0300 or visit www.ChabadSA.com/JLI for registration and information.

SAN ANTONIO JEWISH WOMEN GATHER FOR MEGA CHALLAH BAKE

The Mega Challah Bake, which included a social intermission in order for women to reunite and connect, served as the way to start the new year of 5778 with freshly baked bread and the sound of the shofar.

Women lay leaders from each congregation and partnering organizations offered prayers for the month of Elul, for our country, for those affected by Hurricane Harvey, and prayers for the bread, which each woman had the honor of mixing and braiding. Later in the evening, the women took their dough home to bake, sharing their “work” with their families and friends for a sweet new year.
New Mad Torah curriculum at Chabad Hebrew School

Chabad Hebrew School has launched a new program for students in grades 4-7 called Mad Torah: Where Science & Torah Collab.

The new Mad Torah curriculum indulges children’s natural curiosity with live scientific experiments, sparking lively discussions about the hidden Jewish life lessons erupting along the way. Children absorb best when engaged in Big-Bang level hands-on learning experiences. The goal is to create a greater understanding of science within G-d’s beautiful world.

Chabad Hebrew School is in session on Sundays, 9 a.m. – 12 p.m. for ages 5-12. The curriculum includes Hebrew Reading, Jewish History, Jewish holidays, Jewish Tradition, Jewish Values, Parsha and Prayer.

Also new for this year is Adventure with Alef: Where Hebrew Comes to Life for kinder and 1st, and Jewish Hero Collection Cards.

A few spots remain. To register and for more information, visit www.ChabadSA.com/HebrewSchool or contact Rochel Teldon, Director at (210) 764-0300 or rochel@chabadsa.com.

Scholar in synagogue architecture to visit Temple Beth-El

Dr. Samuel Gruber will be the scholar in residence at Temple Beth-El in October. Gruber, a leading scholar in synagogue architecture, will offer the annual Rabbi Samuel Stahl Lecture on Thursday, Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. His session will focus on the development of synagogue architecture. Gruber will also speak during Shabbat services on Friday, Oct. 20 and offer a lunch and learn following services on Saturday, October 21. Find details and RSVP information at www.bethelsa.org.

Gruber is a lecturer in Judaic Studies at Syracuse University where he teaches courses on The Art & Architecture of the Synagogue; Art & Memory in Jewish Tradition; and Jewish Space: Architecture in a Jewish Context. He also teaches in the Honors Program at Syracuse University and at LeMoyne College, also in Syracuse. His visit to Temple Beth-El is made possible by the Rabbi Samuel Stahl Lectureship Fund and the Jean and Jesse Wulfe Religious Enhancement Fund.

Congregation Agudas Achim volunteering at Food Bank and showing film on Six Day War

Congregation Agudas Achim will be participating in a day of service at the San Antonio Food Bank on Sunday, Oct. 22 from 1 to 4 p.m. The entire Jewish community is welcome to help pack food boxes and sort through donations. The congregation is also currently collecting food donations for the Food Bank through Friday, Oct. 20.

After the afternoon of volunteering, Agudas Achim will host a free screening of the documentary In Our Hands: The Battle for Jerusalem. The documentary tells the story of the Battle of Jerusalem in the Six Day War through the perspective of the Israeli Defense Force’s 55th Paratrooper Brigade and their deliverance of Jerusalem. The screening will begin at 5 p.m. and will be followed by a discussion led by Rabbi Jeffrey Abraham. For more information, call (210) 479-0307 or email info@agudas-achim.org.

Temple Beth-El Sisterhood to host tour of McNay exhibition

Temple Beth-El Sisterhood will host a docent-led tour of the McNay Art Museum on Thursday, Oct. 12 to celebrate the life and work of San Antonio artist Chuck Ramirez (1962-2010.)

Ramirez is the late brother of Temple Beth-El Sisterhood treasurer Patricia Marcus. The exhibition of large scale photographs, All This and Heaven Too, is listed as the first significant survey of his work.

The museum describes this exhibit as “humorous yet poignant perspective on our culture of consumption and waste, and the reality of fleeting life and mortality.” More information about the exhibit is posted at the mcnayart.org website.

The 45-minute docent tour will begin at 7 p.m. Participants are encouraged to arrive early to enjoy the food trucks and music in the museum parking lot beginning at 5 p.m.

There is no museum admission charge on Thursday evenings. The special exhibit fee of $10 has been waived for our docent group, but donations to the museum are always welcome.

Reservations are required by Thursday, Oct. 5 and may be made by emailing Sisterhood member and museum docent, Irene Burns, at knb9487@sbcglobal.net.

Please note the museum does not allow backpacks or large purses. You may take photos with the flash turned off.

Temple Chai partners with San Antonio Clubhouse for a year of social action

Temple Chai’s social action committee, chaired by Susan Ghertner, is an active group of volunteers that meets monthly to fulfill its mission to connect Temple Chai congregants with opportunities for gemilut chasadim (acts of loving kindness) and tikkun olam (repairing the world).

For the new Jewish year 5778, the committee has partnered with San Antonio Clubhouse for ongoing projects. Clubhouse director Mark Stoeltje spoke at a recent Shabbat service about the importance of the organization’s efforts to destigmatize mental illness. The Clubhouse members are able to interact meaningfully and do rewarding work through their involvement, and Temple Chai has adopted the Clubhouse for a Yom Kippur project and Christmas Day volunteering. All are welcome to join the committee’s volunteering opportunities.

For more information about Temple Chai and its social action committee, visit www.templechaisa.org/socialaction or call (210) 340-2090.
Beth-El Adult Ed with Rachel Stern

As part of its focus on adult Jewish learning, Temple Beth-El offers a monthly Sunday morning series for adults taught by Rachel Stern.

Stern holds Masters degrees in both Jewish Education and Jewish Non Profit Management and has been in Jewish education for over 20 years. She currently serves as the Director of Education at the Goldring/Woldenberg Institute of Southern Jewish Life.

The Sunday classes focus on a yearly theme and explore a multitude of angles. This year the topic is Israel. The class draws a diverse crowd and while there is great learning, the atmosphere is relaxed and comfortable ensuring to welcome and include all levels of learners. Some participants are parents of religious school students inspired to learn with their children, while others are exploring Judaism for themselves. Some participants attend all of the sessions, while others come for specific topics their interest. Everyone is welcome and everyone becomes part of the unique classroom community that Temple has fostered.

Perspective: Rodfei’s JWRP Men’s Trip recap

By Rabbi Avraham Scheinberg

This past August, Rodfei Sholom sponsored a JWRP mission, funded in part by a generous grant from the San Antonio Jewish Federation.

Nine San Antonio men had the opportunity to take the journey of a lifetime. A journey, because it was more than a trip. And of a lifetime not only because it was amazing and one we will never forget, but more importantly because the experiences we have affected our lives in a way that will last its entirety.

We visited many impactful, holy sites. Each was put, by our amazing guides, into context of what it meant for our history and our destiny. National and personal.

We prayed at many holy sites, some well known and some off the beaten track. We connected to our land through our own eyes and that of our friends. But, unbelievably, even more than we connected to our land and people we connected to each other. Strangers from all over the Jewish spectrum of San Antonio became brothers. We laughed together. We cried together. We debated each other. We learned from each other. We learned about each other. And we shared with each other. We shared something real. We shared the feeling of being home. We shared the feeling of searching together for life’s meaning. We shared Torah. We shared Judaism. We shared the feeling of being closer to HaShem. I am proud to call Andrew, Jim, Josh, David, Craig, Gal, Jon, and Arturo my Israeli brothers.

KBBQ

this year participants have the option to buy-in to get $1000 worth of chips for casino games and/or $45 for a VIP poker tournament.

Tickets for Sunday’s BBQ are $15 in advance, $20 at the door. Saturday night is $10, with combo tickets available for both Saturday and Sunday for just $25.

Last year, more than 5,000 people attended the daylong event featuring food, live music, and the activities-filled Kiddie Korral.

H-E-B is the title sponsor for the event, donating all of the kosher food. Each and every year the BBQ supports a different non-profit organization. This year the BBQ will benefit The 100 Club, which supports the San Antonio Police Department, San Antonio Fire Department and San Antonio Sheriff’s Department. In addition to the overall beneficiary, each winner of the people’s choice award will donate $250 to the charity of their choice.

Any active or retired military will receive a discount in honor of Veteran’s Day. For more information and discounted tickets, visit www.txkosherbbq.com or call (210) 479-0307.
Dedicated Israeli surgeons, doctors and nurses treat terrible wounds of a sort they have never seen before. In the US, hospital emergency rooms regularly treat gunshot wounds – Chicago, for instance, is notorious for daily gun violence.

Bullets fired by hand guns travel at low velocity – 830 feet per second (253 meters per second). Syrian snipers, in contrast, use high-velocity weapons. An M16 rifle fires bullets that travel 3,300 feet (one kilometer) per second. The shock wave created by such high-speed bullets inflicts massive damage to human tissue, blowing away huge chunks of flesh. It is this travesty that many of the Syrian wounded suffer, both children and adults, and that the Israeli surgeons work to repair.

All the patients know they eventually will return to the chaos and bloodshed of their own country – a country that has turned fiercely against them.

BACKGROUND

Modern Syria emerged from a World War I deal between Britain and France known as the Sykes-Picot Agreement, which divided up the Ottoman Arab provinces. In 1920, the Arab Kingdom of Syria was proclaimed – a hodgepodge of Druze, Alawites and Sunni Muslims – and was given to France as a mandate. At the end of World War II, France gave Syria its independence.

Syria’s disastrous civil war broke out more than six years ago on March 15, 2011. Many experts predicted the imminent fall of President Bashar Assad. They were wrong. Just when Assad’s fall looked close at hand, Russia came to his aid with air power in September 2015. Russia, under Putin, misses no opportunity to poke a finger in the eye of the US and its leaders.

The human toll of this bloody civil war has been immense. The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights estimates that some 500,000 persons have been killed, many or most of them civilians. The United Nations High Commission for Refugees claims 7.6 million Syrians have been displaced from their homes, and nearly 5 million refugees have fled the country.

IN THE SHADOW OF ROCKETS

Galilee Medical Center-Nahariya is just a few miles from the Lebanese border, in spitting range of Hezbollah Katyusha rockets. Founded in the early 1950s as a tiny hospital housed in Swedish huts, it has since become a world leader in the treatment of severe war wounds. It has 2,700 workers, and is one of the largest employers in the Galilee. Of these 1,180 are nurses, 450 are doctors, 250 are paramedics, 800 are caregivers and 600 work in maintenance and cleaning. There are 300 volunteers, a large group of which act as translators for the Syrian patients.

I toured the hospital and was struck by its clever modern design. Many of the buildings have atriums, or central courtyards, so that sunlight spills into the rooms. In the pediatric emergency room, children lying in beds stare not at blank ceilings but at panels that show clouds, sky and balloons.

For 18 years, the legendary Dr. Shaul Shasha was its director, until he was succeeded by the current head, Dr. Masoud Bar-houm. Among other decisions, Shasha built an entire hospital underground for emergencies, a decision for which he was mocked at the time. But when a Katyusha rocket scored a direct hit on the hospital during the 2006 Second Lebanon war, no one was hurt because, thanks to Shasha’s prescience, all the patients and staff were safely underground.

The remnants of the rocket are on display in the hospital’s entrance. Today, all the hospital’s patients can be whisked under ground to safety in about 20 minutes and the staff regularly practices these evacuations.

Because the identities of the Syrian wounded are carefully guarded against those who would do harm to them and their relatives back home, I saw wounded patients only on surgeons’ computer screens. In the office of Dr. Leonid Kogan, head of cosmetic surgery and burns, I saw a picture of the young Syrian man described above, much of whose face had been blown away by a sniper’s bullet. I had to look away. For me, the sight was almost unbearable. I could barely imagine the pain and suffering that young man endured.

The doctors and surgeons go to work to heal and rebuild what has been destroyed, with compassion and amazing skill, and for some, a few tears. Incredibly, this particular patient’s jaw was largely reconstructed.

Kogan studied medicine in Samarkand, Uzbekistan, and made Aliya in 1991 after the breakup of the Soviet Union. He has in- vented a unique material for treating burns that is based on algae. I promised to try to find those who can commercialize it.

I asked him how he and the other doctors deal with the mental stress of treating horrendous wounds. From his response, I understood that he brought to the task a challenging mixture of immense compassion and dispassionate professionalism.

IN THE COMMUNITY: YOUTH NEWS

Heintz Preschool’s Yad B’Yad Intergenerational Program begins its fourth year

Thanks to a generous grant from San Antonio Jewish Senior Services, Heintz Preschool of Congregation Agudas Achim is participating in the fourth year of its Yad B’Yad Intergenerational Program.

The program brings together Jewish seniors from around San Antonio with the Heintz Preschool students for monthly programs together based around the Jewish holidays, Jewish lifecycle events, and other secular happenings such as Rodeo Day and Fiesta.

The Red and Blue Birds (3-5 Year olds) also take field trips to Adante Senior Living and Madison Estates. The preschool students visit and work on craft projects with the residents and put on shows for the different major Jewish holidays.

For more information about Heintz Preschool or for a tour, contact director Taryn Bretado at t.bretado@agudas-achim.org or by phone at (210) 479-7023.

TASA enters its fifth year with many firsts

The Shmuel Bass Torah Academy of San Antonio began its fifth year of operation on August 24 with a number of notable “firsts.”

TASA welcomed a new slate of officers to its board of directors, headed by incoming president Ronen Bass. The school and the current board of directors expressed their appreciation to Aaron Sarfati and the outgoing board members for their service to the school. In an address to parents and faculty, Ronen Bass pointed out that “Five years ago we started the school year with 25 students and now we have over 50 and we look forward to continued growth.”

The school, which now has an eighth grade, has implemented two new curricular initiatives this year: the Math in Focus: Singapore Math curriculum for grades K-4th, and the Pearson Reading Street/My Perspectives Language Arts program for grades K-8.

The school also welcomed Gevert Michal Hadar and Erika Henderson to lead TASA’s Hebrew Language and Art departments.

JCC to screen Life, Animated

The Barshop Jewish Community Center is presenting a free screening of the feature length documentary film Life, Animated on Sunday, Nov. 5 at 4 p.m. in the Holzman Auditorium.

From Academy Award® winning director Roger Ross Williams, Life, Animated is the inspirational story based on journalist Ron Suskind’s 2014 book Life, Animated: A Story of Sidekicks, Heroes, and Autism, which tells the story of his son, Owen Suskind, a young man who was unable to speak as a child until he and his family discovered a unique way to communicate by immersing themselves in the world of classic Disney animated films. Upon its release, the film received rave reviews from critics and won numerous awards including the Sundance Film Festival award for Best Direction and the Special Achievement Annie Award. It was also nominated for the Academy Award for Best Documentary Feature category at the 89th Academy Awards in 2017.

This screening is recommended for audiences ages 13 and older, and is presented by the JCC Special Needs & Inclusion Project. To reserve a ticket, call (210) 302-6820 or visit www.jccsanantonio.org/lifeanimated.

Talmud After Dark discussion at Temple Beth-El

On November 9 at 7 p.m., Temple Beth-El’s Sisterhood and Library Committee will host award-winning author Maggie Anton as she discusses the topic Talmud After Dark. The program will take place at Temple Beth-El, 211 Belknap Place, in the Barshop Auditorium. It is generously underwritten by The Jean and Jesse Wulfe Religious Enhancement Fund.

Anton was born Margaret Antonofsky in Los Angeles, California, where she still resides. Raised in a secular, socialist household, she reached adulthood with little knowledge of her Jewish religion. All that changed when David Parkhurst, who was to become her husband, entered her life, and they both discovered Judaism as adults. That was the start of a lifetime of Jewish education, synagogue involvement, and ritual observance.

In 1992, Anton joined a women’s Talmud class taught by Rachel Adler, now a professor at Hebrew Union College in Los Angeles. To her surprise, she fell in love with Talmud, a passion that has continued unabated for twenty years. Intrigued that the great Talmudic scholar Rashi had no sons, only daughters, Anton researched the family and decided to write novels about them. Thus, the award-winning trilogy, Rashi’s Daughters, was born, to be followed by National Jewish Book Award finalist, Rav Hisda’s Daughter: Apprentice and its sequel, Enchantress. Still studying women and Talmud, Anton has lectured throughout North America and Israel about the history behind her novels.

Next at The Vex

An Act of God, a critically acclaimed play by David Javerbaum, opens at the Sheldon Vexler Theatre October 19. The play, which received rave reviews in its two limited Broadway runs, and is currently playing across the country as well as in Mexico City, is an irreverent play where God and his devoted angels answer some of the deepest questions that have plagued mankind since creation. He’s arrived to set the record straight, and he’s not holding back.

The cast includes John Stillwagon as God (previously seen at The Vex as Black Stache in Peter and the Starcatcher), Tyler Keyes as Michael and Michael Howard as Gabriel. The play is directed by Dylan Brainard.

An Act of God is a satirical view of how some beliefs and doctrines impact modern society and contemporary events, and is not intended to be taken literally. The play contains controversial topics with adult themes and language, and may not be suitable for all audiences.

Performances of An Act of God are Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., Saturdays at 8 p.m., and Sundays at 2:30 p.m., October 19 through November 12. Tickets may be purchased by calling The Vex Box Office at (210) 302-6835. Visit www.vexler.org/actofgod for more information.

Legendary character actor Stephen Tobolowsky to speak at the JCC

As part of the JCC Author & Speaker Series, Stephen Tobolowsky will present his book, My Adventures with God, on Sunday, Oct. 29 at 7 p.m.

Tobolowsky has appeared in over 100 movies and 200 television shows over his career. Many may recognize him from memorable roles in Groundhog Day, Glee, Mississippi Burning, and more recently, Silicon Valley, The Goldbergs, and Norman Lear’s One Day at a Time.

In My Adventures with God, Tobolowsky organizes stories from his own life into the 5 books of the Torah- all the while exploring his evolving relationship with God. He remarks that everyone has “Genesis stories”, his own largely influenced by growing up in Texas. Tobolowsky will share these stories and recollections during his presentation and will also be available for a Q&A session and book signing.

Tickets are $10 for general admission, $30 for admission plus a copy of the book, and can be purchased online at www.jccsanantonio.org/authorspeakerseries or by calling (210) 302-6820.
