U.S. to make Iran deal official this month, no date set for sanctions relief

WASHINGTON (JTA) — The formal adoption of the Iran nuclear deal will be October 18, but it is not yet clear how long it will take for Iran to satisfy conditions to relieve sanctions, top U.S. officials said.

The senior administration officials, speaking on September 17 in a conference call with reporters, outlined the steps Iran must take before inspectors with the International Atomic Energy Agency, the U.N. nuclear watchdog, confirm that Iran is in compliance with the nuclear deal reached in July between Iran and six major powers.

The call to reporters came the same day that the Obama administration announced that Stephen Mull, the outgoing ambassador to Poland, would be the point person for ensuring Iranian compliance with the deal.

Among other measures, Iran must remove thousands of centrifuges from its Natanz reactor, ship overseas all but 300 kilograms of 12,000 kilograms of enriched uranium and remove the center of its plutonium reactor, the officials said.

Because of how involved the measures are, the officials would not estimate how long it would take to get to “implementation day,” when the IAEA confirms compliance and sanctions are lifted.

JFNA CEO addresses area Federation leaders

By Susan Kariv, JFSA Chief Development Officer

Jewish Federation leaders gathered on September 1 at the home of Deborah and Morris Miller to support the Federation’s 2015 Annual Campaign and to hear from Jerry Silverman, CEO of Jewish Federations of North America (JFNA). Silverman addressed our community commitment to Israel, the needs of global Jewry, such as in the Ukraine, the Iran Nuclear agreement, the importance of investing in our young adults and future leaders, and how important the Federation’s work is to our local, national and global Jewish communities.

He spoke about the impactful work of the Federation’s Washington office, where professionals are representing the interests and concerns of all Jewish communities to members of Congress, where they advocate for key legislation that ensures the safety and security of Jewish institutions. He applauded the growth trend toward personal commitments over mandatory dues.

YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE THAT WE WANT FOR JUST ONE HOUR A WEEK

The San Antonio Jewish Coalition for Literacy wants to expand its program to help more elementary school students here in San Antonio, and we know that you are the one to make this expansion happen by tutoring a student in reading and math for just one hour a week. As experienced by other Coalition volunteers, you will have great feelings of accomplishment, satisfaction, and fulfillment by working with one student for the school year and making a positive difference in that student’s life. And guess what, you even get a three month summer vacation as a reward for your efforts! If you know that you are that one special person to accomplish this, please contact Nathan Ratner, Coalition Coordinator, at 210-302-6972 or via email message at ratnern@jfsatx.org, to learn more about the program. Come and join us since you are definitely the one that we want!

Letter from Our CEO

Ronit Sherwin
Chief Executive Officer

We are stronger together

I love Sukkot. Known in our tradition as z’man simchatenu, the time of our rejoicing, Sukkot is the first holiday of the new year and gives us the opportunity to make good on our promises and begin the year right. We embrace the festivities of Sukkot with a new spirit and the best of intentions.

The Jewish Federation is giving us all an opportunity to “do good” this month. Sunday Oct. 11 is Super Sunday, the day on which our community helps to ensure that financial resources are secured to provide for the needs of the global Jewish people and others close to home.

The funds raised through Super Sunday go directly to the Annual Campaign, and are then allocated to programs like senior meals at the Barshop JCC, Safety Net services with Jewish Family Services and Jewish education like the Shmuel Bass Torah Academy of San Antonio.

In Psalms (24:6) we read “This is the generation and those who seek its welfare.” WE are the generation responsible for today, and WE care about our community and its vibrancy. Please join me and so many others in person or on the phone Super Sunday. Make the call or answer the call, because we are all stronger together.

On Sukkot we eat and sleep in temporary shelters, mindful that so much of what we have and enjoy is fleeting. Together we can ensure that what we create for ourselves and others the rest of the year is sturdy and sound. Chag Sameach!

Ronit Sherwin
Chief Executive Officer

Make the call; Answer the call

Super Sunday is going to be SUPER this year! The community is invited to come out to the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Campus of the San Antonio Jewish Community, on Sunday, October 11, and help make calls in support of the 2015 Annual Campaign, the annual fundraising campaign that ensures our community's vitality and vibrancy in the year ahead.

There will be plenty of food, fun, friends, prizes, and mitzvahs as volunteers make calls between 10-4 pm. Israel, Jewish communities overseas, safety net services, Jewish camping, Jewish education, PJ Library, and the Holocaust Museum are just a few of the causes that will benefit from the Jewish Federation’s campaign dollars raised. Co-Chairs, Liz Rockstroh & Greg Davis and Danielle & Aaron Sarfati are looking forward to helping community volunteers “make the call.”

New features for young children this year include PJ Library “Be a Super Hero on Super Sunday” at 2pm, and Super Sunday Camp for children K-5.

To sign up for a shift at Super Sunday, please contact the Jewish Federation office, (210) 302-6960, or register online at www.jfsats.org. If you can’t make the call, then “take the call” and make a difference!

Through the collective dollars of the Federation’s Annual Campaign, we are able to make a difference in the lives of fellow San Antonians, as well as Jewish people in Israel and 60 countries around the world. We are STRONGER TOGETHER!

Federation hires new museum staff

Federation is pleased to welcome two new members to the Holocaust Memorial Museum staff: Education Associate Kristin Rodriguez and Programs Manager Matthew Faulkner.

Kristin Rodriguez is a graduate of the University of Texas at San Antonio with a Bachelor’s degree in History. She recently earned her Master’s in Museum Science from Texas Tech University. While at Texas Tech, she interned at the university’s museum as a graduate assistant to the registrar. Rodriguez also worked at the George Ranch Historical Park in Richmond, Texas, working as an interpreter and with educational programming. She is currently working on grants that deal with the preservation and storage of the museum collections. As Educational Associate she will be assisting in future educational projects.

Matthew Faulkner is a former Dr. Edward Westermann Holocaust Education Fellow, and recent graduate from Texas A&M University – San Antonio. Matthew has a Bachelor’s degree in Research History with a focus in European Studies and a minor in Communication Journalism. During his time as an intern, Matthew was able to assist with the museum’s largest movie screening in the Spring of 2015 and aided in improving portions of the educational program the museum has to offer during tours. As Programs Manager, Faulkner now oversees all aspects of tours of the museum and museum events.

Spotlight on: Michelle Vizurraga

Michelle Vizurraga, her husband David, and their two children Eve, 8, and Rennix, 6, moved to San Antonio in July of 2014. Since their arrival, they have become very involved in the San Antonio community. Vizurraga has served on the PJ Library committee all year and brought her expertise from her time as a Jewish educator in Atlanta, Georgia to enrich the PJ programs. Michelle worked for three years at the Davis (Jewish) Academy in Atlanta and two years at the JCC Preschool there as well. In addition to serving as Vice President of the PTA at Blattman Elementary, she is a new member of the Jewish Federation Board and the Yad B’Yad Intergenerational Coordinator at Heintz Preschool at Agudas Achim.

Michelle Vizurraga and her family.

We asked Michelle a few questions to get to know her better:

What brought you to San Antonio?

We came to San Antonio because my husband David was stationed here for the Air Force to be an orthopedic surgeon at San Antonio Army Medical Center (SAMC).

What is your strongest Jewish memory?

My strongest Jewish memory was that every year I sat at High Holiday services beside my Dad. He would always wrap me close in his Tallit (prayer shawl) and I would braid the tzitzit and we would say the prayers together. I can still picture it vividly in my head.

What volunteer activities do you find the most rewarding and why?

The volunteer activities I find the most rewarding are the ones that make a direct impact on others
San Antonio community gathers to address hate crimes

In reaction to anti-Semitic graffiti and vandalism at Congregations Rodfei Sholom and Agudas Achim and a northside neighborhood, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce organized a Community Conversation about Preventing Hate Crimes event at the Pearl Stables on September 1. The event was co-sponsored by the Jewish Federation of San Antonio and Catholic Charities.

Jerry Silverman, CEO of Jewish Federations of North America, told the attendees that in his childhood he spent many summers in San Antonio with his grandparents. His grandfather was the Hazzan at the Congregation Rodfei Sholom. He remembers meeting Rabbi Aryeh Scheinberg when he was a new young rabbi for the congregation.

PJ Library and Agudas Achim team up to celebrate the new year, 5776

By Lauren Abraham, PJ Library Coordinator

PJ Library celebrated the world’s 5776th birthday in partnership with Congregation Agudas Achim. The party, also celebrating PJ’s first year of programming in San Antonio, attracted over 65 children and many energized parents along with them. Our PJ readers entered the Gurinsky Family Social Hall to work on creative birthday activities, which included stations to decorate their own birthday hat, pin the Rosh Hashanah apple on the tree, make a Shanah Tovah (New Year’s) card for our Partnership community in the Western Galilee of Israel, and make a shofar that actually sounds.

Rabbi Jeffrey Abraham, Hazzan Jeremy Lipton, and Yad B Yad Coordinator Michelle Vizurraga led the children in songs and stories. Rabbi Abraham taught the children about the age of the “world” and read Happy Birthday World: A Rosh Hashanah Celebration. The families sang about a Happy New Year and Shofar blowing. Hazzan Lipton sounded the shofar and added energy and sound effects to the stories.

What is a birthday party without cake? The PJ Library committee built a life sized cake out of boxes and asked the children to write their wishes for the world on a small “cupcake.” Then to end the program, our PJ Library readers got to go and enjoy and decorate their own cupcakes and sing “Happy birthday to the world” in Hebrew and English.

“It was so amazing to see so many generations at this program,” said Agudas Achim Youth Director, Eric Steitz. “Teens working to help out, young children and older learning about the holiday and singing together. Parents, grandparents, and everyone came together for the community. This is a great sign for the future of the Jewish people in San Antonio.”

PJ Library San Antonio looks forward to its monthly programs and book arrivals at the homes of our young readers. Please like and check the PJ Library San Antonio Facebook page and follow us there for more exciting events to come.

PJ children and Rabbi Ariel Greenberg and Abby Klionsky of the Institute for Southern Jewish Life worked together to wish the world a Happy Birthday.
Partnership 2Gether

During a recent visit to San Antonio, Jan Goldstein, US Communities Partnership Director, spoke with Dr. Tara Frost and recent Young Leadership graduate Isadora Sintes about all of the educational twinning in our Western Galilee Partnership Region. They also discussed the upcoming Partnership Mission to Israel in 2016. To learn about upcoming parlor meetings and the trip to Israel, contact the Jewish Federation of San Antonio at (210) 302-6960.

Dave Ravitch, Partnership Consortium Co-chair from Benton Harbor, Michigan, recently took his first trip to Texas to share background and details about the Western Galilee Partnership and all of the potential for lay leaders to get involved, including in their task forces for Medical, education, arts and culture, and more. Ravitch (from left to right) enjoyed sharing stories and Israeli nosh with Rabbi Jeffrey Abraham, Ray Elias, and Daniel Laser of Golden Manor Jewish Senior Services.

“IT was such an informative visit and time of growth for us all, and we look forward to making more connections over the coming year between our partners in the Western Galilee and us in San Antonio.” said Lauren Abraham, JFSA Partnership Coordinator.

Pomegranate Society Demi Dinner to welcome P2G Artists

Each fall, the women of the Pomegranate Society of the Jewish Federation gather and organize an annual Demi Dinner. This special event recognizes women who make a gift in their own name of $1800 or greater to the Annual Campaign. Co-chairs for this year’s event are Ilene Franco, Simone Kboudi and Lauren Stanley.

For many years, the Demi Dinner has taken place in a private home and the women come together and share favorite homemade dishes. “The Demi Dinner has a long tradition in San Antonio,” said Leslie Tramer, a member of the Pomegranate society.

This year, however, the event will be held at The Grill at Leon Springs, on October 14 beginning at 7 p.m.

“We wanted to try something a little different,” said Kboudi. “It’s really going to be an exciting evening.” Interestingly, one of the restaurant’s co-owners, Armand Obadia, is a native of Israel and said he is thrilled to be hosting the event.

This year’s theme, The Art and Soul of the Partnership, will focus on Federation’s Partnership region in the Western Galilee of Israel. Special guests will be artists Joani Rothenberg and her Israeli cousin, Yael Buxbaum, who just completed a Tree of Life mosaic project, which hangs at the entrance to the new Women’s Health Wing at the Galilee Medical Center. They will share their inspiring story of this collaborative project. During the Demi Dinner, guests will have the opportunity to partake in a little community art project of their own.

Temple Beth-El moves to free will dues system

Temple Beth-El has introduced a new free will membership dues system. After an extensive process of research and conversations that began last year, the Temple’s Board of Trustees adopted a policy which it believes better fulfills its sacred mission, and will stimulate membership giving and growth.

The new policy moves away from a traditional dues structure, replacing it with a personal pledge system. Now, a member’s pledge is an individual choice. Instead of paying an assigned dues amount, each member household has the responsibility to fairly assess its own commitment level and give accordingly. Members are asked to contribute based on what the household determines is consistent with its ability to support, sustain, perpetuate and strengthen the congregation.

The new policy identifies a sustaining dues level as a guideline, which reflects the actual cost per membership to maintain its programs and facilities. It also outlines honorary Ner Tamid (Eternal Light) levels for those who are able to contribute above the sustaining level.

Temple Beth-El joins a small, but growing number of congregations throughout North America that have moved to this system. UJA-Federation of New York published an extensive study entitled Are Voluntary Dues Right for Your Synagogue earlier this year, closely examining 26 Reform, Conservative and Independent congregations that adopted a free will system, most within the last five years. While the study did not endorse any synagogue funding model, it described the repeated success of the free will or voluntary dues system.

The New York Times reported on February 2, 2015 that Rabbi Rick Jacobs, the President of the Union for Reform Judaism, said that “voluntary pledging is appealing not just for financial reasons, but also because it can shift the way synagogues are perceived. ‘The bond that holds the Jewish people to one another is not primarily and fundamentally a financial arrangement, and when we suggest that it might be, it undermines everything we stand for,’ he said.”

Temple Beth-El’s Executive Director, Rabbi Alan Berlin, noted that the policy hearkens back to the method that was used by the ancient Israelites to build their sacred space. “As Moses asked each individual in the ancient community of Israel to contribute in building the tabernacle according to their own ability,” he said, “we are asking our members to support Temple Beth-El in a manner which is meaningful to them. The new policy embraces this principle, adopting the slogan Give to your Heart’s Content.”

David Adelman, Senior Vice President of the Temple Beth-El Board, was a champion of this change and is leading the effort to roll out the new structure together with Vice President, Gayle Alterman. Adelman, a third generation Temple member, emphasized that one of his primary motivations for the change was to strengthen the congregation for future generations. A father of two teenage daughters, he wants the congregation to be a place to which his children will want to belong and support when they are adults.

Details about the new policy are available at www.beth-elsa.org or www.givetoyourheartscontent.org.

UT Professor provides compelling facts on Iran deal

Michael Ozer
San Antonio Chair, Israel Bonds

Dr. Alan Kuperman, Associate Professor of Public Affairs and coordinator of the Nuclear Proliferation Project at the University of Texas at Austin detailed important scientific information regarding the Iran deal to an audience of 75 at Congregation Rodfei Sholom on Sunday morning, August 30th. The lecture was co-sponsored by Israel Bonds and Rodfei Sholom’s Israel Public Affairs Committee.

Using basic science and math, Dr. Kuperman clearly explained to the breakfast meeting that under the proposed deal, Iran’s breakout time to produce a nuclear weapon would be no more than 3 months, not the one year that the Obama administration has claimed.

“Breakout time is determined by three primary factors: the number and type of centrifuges, the enrichment of the starting material, and the amount of enriched uranium required for a nuclear weapon.”

Iran will be allowed to keep an additional 14,000 disconnected centrifuges for spare parts under the deal, in addition to the 5,060 centrifuges allowed for uranium enrichment. Dr. Kuperman argued that these extra centrifuges could be easily reconnected and brought up to speed, vastly increasing Iran’s ability to quickly enrich uranium.

Furthermore, although the deal permits Iran to keep only a small amount of enriched uranium in gaseous form, it is allowed to keep much larger amounts in solid form. This can be rapidly converted to the gaseous form in a few weeks, again shortening the breakout time.

Finally, Dr. Kuperman contended that the administration’s argument that 59 pounds of enriched uranium is required to make an atomic weapon is flawed. “A 1995 study by the National Resources Defense Council concluded that a nuclear weapon with the explosive force of the Hiroshima bomb required just 29 pounds of weapons-grade uranium.”

Following a contentious debate in the U.S. Senate, opponents of the deal, although in the majority, were unable to overcome the filibuster rule requiring a 60 vote majority. The accord is expected to be formally adopted on October 19.

Where does the soul go after it departs this world?

Chabad, GMJSS, JFS & Porter Loring Co-Sponsor JLI’s Journey of the Soul

Some questions are universal to the human experience. Is there life after death? What happens to the soul after we die? What is it like for those who have traveled over to the Great Beyond? These are but a few of the questions addressed in the newest course from the Rohr Jewish Learning Institute (JLI), The Journey of the Soul, the institute’s new six-session fall 2015 course.

The Chabad Center for Jewish Life & Learning will offer The Journey of the Soul at two different times: six Tuesday afternoons with Rabbi Chaim Block, beginning October 27, 12 p.m.-1:15 p.m. at the Law Office of Golden Steves Cohen & Gordon, 300 Convent St., Suite 2600, and six Wednesday evenings with Rabbi Levi Teldon, beginning October 28, 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Chabad Center, 14535 Blanco Rd. A third time and location is in the works.

The Journey of the Soul examines the soul and its journey through refreshing and eye-opening Talmudic teachings, as well as ancient Jewish wisdom that sheds light on the philosophical, emotional, and practical aspects of coping with death and mourning.

The course is being offered in joint sponsorship with the Washington School of Psychiatry, enabling medical and mental health professionals to earn up to 7.5 AMA, APA, CBBS, and ASWB continuing education credits for their participation.

This JLI course is co-sponsored by Golden Manor Jewish Senior Services, Jewish Family Service, and Porter Loring Mortuaries. Call (210) 764-0300 or visit www.myJLI.com for registration and other course-related information.

KIDSPACE Family Learning launched at Temple Chai

KIDSPACE, a new monthly Shabbat educational program for families and their children ages 5-12, begins on Saturday, Oct. 10 from 10:30 a.m.-11:45 a.m. at Temple Chai, 2121 Lockhill-Selma (corner NW Military Hwy). Fun-filled learning activities, focusing on Jewish values, ritual and holidays for kids, concurrent with discussions of Judaic topics for adults, provide an opportunity for Jewish learning for people of all ages.

“Because Temple Chai is small in membership and space, we have an opportunity to offer supplemental Jewish education in a more personal, informal manner,” explained Rabbi David Komorofsky, who leads the classes. “Our focus is on values and holidays. We’ll do fun and simple art projects. Take the ‘v’ahavat’ prayer, about love. Younger kids can create a mezuzah, as the verse commands. Older kids can explore the concept of loving neighbors and others using song or art. The verses are studied by parents, emphasizing rituals to provide greater Jewish knowledge, even reading Israeli love poetry.

“As with school, lessons, and extracurricular sports during the week, this Saturday Jewish experience is more accessible, and allows the family a more relaxed schedule of its own on Sundays,” noted Komorofsky. “KIDSPACE supplements its monthly program with home learning for children and parents who don’t always have prior supplemental Jewish education or camp experiences themselves. This is enrichment for the busy family, not bar/bat mitzvah preparation, or religious school like you’ve ever known it before.”

KIDSPACE is included with Temple Chai membership; non-members may register for $18/child for the entire year. Call (210) 340-2090 or go to www.templechaisa.org/kidspace to register.

San Antonio lawyer to speak about anti-terrorism conference in Jerusalem

The L’Chayim Club of Congregation Rodfei Sholom will host an informative program with attorney Jon Powell during their monthly program on Wednesday, Oct. 14 from 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. Powell, of the Powell Law Firm in San Antonio, spent one week in Jerusalem this summer attending the Activist Lawyer’s Training Seminar held by Shurat Hadin - the Israel Law Center. Seventy attorneys from across the globe came together at this conference to utilize their legal skills, experience, knowledge and passion to help safeguard the United States, Israel, and the world’s Judeo-Christian community from radical Islamic terrorism.

In addition to lectures and workshops taught by legal scholars such as Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz, attendees took field trips to destinations that are inaccessible to the general public. Powell will share details on how to become better advocates for Israel. The program will be preceded by a D’var Torah in honor of Rosh Chodesh Cheshvan. The event will include a home-cooked meal and the opportunity to socialize and celebrate September and October simchas.

All seniors are invited to attend at no charge thanks to a generous grant from Golden Manor and co-sponsorship of Rodfei Sholom. Everyone else is invited to attend at $5 per person. For more information and to RSVP by Friday, Oct. 9, contact the synagogue office at (210) 493-3557 or by e-mail to rodfeisa@gmail.com.

IN THE COMMUNITY: YOUNG CHILDREN

Block and Dreeben School for Young Children teaches Jewish values

The Block and Dreeben School for Young Children will introduce a Jewish Value of the Month, beginning in October. Teachers will study a text related to the value and contemplate how to bring that value to the children and families.

Each month teachers will study a Mishna from Pirkei Avot and other Jewish texts which relate to the Jewish value of the month.

In October, the value of Shmirat Haguf, taking care of one’s body, will be introduced. Included in the focus of this value will be the children’s participation in Discover Catch, a Jewish Community Center Association program focused on physical activity and healthy eating. Levey Baugh, “hopes the children and families will integrate these values into their daily lives in meaningful ways.”

Rodfei’s JWRP ‘MOMentum’ Trip to Israel

When I first heard about the Jewish Women’s Renaissance Project’s (JWRP) Momentum trip to Israel, I was very pumped-up and, at the same time, wary if women of our community would understand the trip. Would there be enough women in San Antonio who would want to join this experience? It was difficult to sell and explain the experience, having never been on it myself. However, I was convinced this was a trip that all Jewish mothers should try to be a part of after hearing from past “trippers” words like “magical” and “transformative.”

The purpose of this trip is to allow us Jewish mothers to access our best selves - wife, mother, friend - by teaching and inspiring us with Jewish wisdom and values. As JWRP’s motto goes “Inspire a woman, you inspire a family. Inspire enough families, you inspire a community. Inspire enough communities, you can change the world.”

July 5, 2015, seven women from San Antonio, Shira Bass, Janice Fagen, Melissa Fiero, Sandy Frydberg, Jordana Pazin, Barbara Powell, and I joined 200 others from around the USA in Israel.

Our group (of the many that travel throughout the year) was exceedingly fortunate to have Adrienne Gold - past Canadian TV host and current teacher at the Village Shul in Toronto - as our speaker, and what a speaker she was! Finally, someone was talking about aspects of life that are usually deemed unimportant. Here was a woman who recognized that they were worthy, that we wanted to know how to approach them, needed to be heard. She gave us voice gracefully, articulately, and kindly – all the while guiding us toward becoming Jewish Women 2.0.

Along with Adrienne Gold, there were many other captivating speakers on the trip. Rabbi Gavriel Friedman woke us up with his energetic lecture on Shabbat morning. We were amazed by this man’s spunk, charm, and 90’s song references. Rachelli Fraenkel, mother of one of the kidnapped Israeli teens, stunned us with her strength and determination. Estee Yarmush awed us with her adoption story and total number of children she has – 14!

Besides trip leaders speakers, hosts, and lecturers, we enjoyed the wisdom of our tour guides as we toured beautiful Tiberius, traveled to mystical Tsfat, toured the Old City of Jerusalem, explored the impressive Masada fortress and floated in the Dead Sea. Other highlights of our trip include visiting Yad V’Shem (Israel’s Holocaust Memorial), rafting on the Jordan River, meeting soldiers at an army base and presenting them with care packages.

The JWRP has partnered with an organization “Thank Israeli Soldiers.” We were privileged to go to an army base and also to have sendah shlishit and havdalah at a private home with a group of soldiers. We were honored to meet some incredible young people who are protecting our homeland. One young commander (19 years old) at our table had to get special permission from his parents to be a warrior since he is an only child. We asked him what kind of things he might need that we could get for him and send when we returned home. He said he didn’t need anything physical—that our appreciation was enough. There wasn’t a dry eye at the table.

I came home with my cup full and am very thankful to have been a part of this year’s San Antonio contingency. On this trip, we became a whole. We were only acquaintances before we left for Israel. We bonded quickly and learned to lean on each other as we went through all the emotions that this Israel experience brought us. Overall, going to Israel on this trip was definitely one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life.
New Play
Bad Jews at The Vex

This October and November, the Sheldon Vexler Theatre will be presenting a play that is both “a scalding comedy” and a “serious Jewish drama.”

In Joshua Harmon’s “dramedy”, Bad Jews, Daphna Feygenbaum swears she is the most devout Jew in her family. When her less observant cousin arrives to claim a treasured family heirloom and religious symbol from their late grandfather, a Holocaust survivor, a devastating and devastatingly funny battle of Old Testament proportions ignites.

The New York Times commented on one of the subjects in the script: “the question of who’s the good Jew and who’s the bad Jew — can a better Jew be a worse person? — might well be a question that a dozen Talmudic scholars could argue over for a good long time.”

Audiences should be aware that the play contains adult language and is intended for mature audiences only. Tickets, ranging in price from $16 to $22, may be purchased by calling The Vex Box Office at (210) 302-6835. Bad Jews opens Saturday, Oct. 3 and runs through November 14. There will not be a performance Saturday, Oct. 31.

Agudas Achim Sisterhood book review explores Israel’s role as a technology powerhouse

Agudas Achim Sisterhood opens its 2015-2016 book review season on Tuesday, Nov. 10 with special guest Mike Winakur, who will be reviewing The Israel Test: Why the World’s Most Besieged State is a Beacon of Freedom and Hope for the World Economy by George Gilder. A world famous economist and tech guru, Gilder reveals Israel as an emerging technology powerhouse, second only to the U.S. and far surpassing all European rivals in launching new industry-leading hi-tech firms. Gilder calls Israel the leading battleground for capitalism and freedom today.

The November 10 review will be held on at 10 a.m. in the Gurinsky Family Social Hall. Light refreshments will be served. For more information contact Suzan Mendlovitz at (210) 344.1108.
What is a Yahrzeit?

The Yahrzeit, meaning “time of the year” in Yiddish, is the anniversary of the death of a relative and is observed as a solemn occasion in all branches of Judaism. A special candle is lit, burning for the full 24 hours of the anniversary date.

When a loved one passes away, it is traditional to observe the seven days of Shivah. A yahrzeit marks both the end of the year of mourning, and the anniversary of death. Jews are required to commemorate the death of parents, siblings, spouses, or children. A 24-hour candle is lit the eve, or evening, before the yarzeit. This custom is deeply ingrained in Jewish communities, and is seen as a way to honor the memory and souls of the deceased.

Direct family members attend synagogue for the evening of the previous day (Maariv), morning (Shacharit), and afternoon services (Mincha) and recite the Mourner’s Kaddish, the memorial prayer. Most synagogues keep a list of the Hebrew dates of members’ death, and remind family members of the date on the Shabbat before the Yahrzeit is observed. Although people are encouraged to come to synagogue on the Hebrew date of the Yahrzeit, Kaddish is always recited after the Rabbi reads the list of upcoming Yahrzeits in case mourners cannot attend weekday services on the Yahrzeit.

Kaddish Yatom, the “Mourner’s” Kaddish, is said at all prayer services, as well as at funerals and memorials. Customs for reciting the Mourner’s Kaddish vary among Jewish communities. In many synagogues, particularly Orthodox ones, it is customary that everyone in the synagogue stand. In other synagogues, the custom is that only the mourners themselves stand and recite the prayer, while the rest of the congregation sits, chanting only responsively. Some say Kaddish for deceased friends or non-direct family members, such as grandparents; others simply stand out of respect while the Kaddish is recited.

Honor the memory of your loved one. Create a memorial to share with family and friends.

Clinical reports have indicated that Iran is likely to comply with conditions in from between six months to a year from adoption of the deal.

“All of this will take a lot of effort and probably a fair amount of time,” said an official. “The ball is in Iran’s court – it’s hard to predict how long it will be before sanctions relief is implemented.”

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity.

One condition the Iranians must complete prior to October 18, or “adoption day,” is to report to the IAEA on the possible military dimensions of its past nuclear activity. Iran has insisted its nuclear research is for civilian purposes only. The deadline for Iran’s report to the IAEA is October 15.

The Obama administration on September 17 said the way was clear to launch the deal now that Congress has reached the deadline to pass a bill that would kill the deal. Senate Democrats used parliamentary procedures to block votes on three occasions.

Republicans oppose the deal. The Obama administration and opponents of the deal, which include Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, have for the last several months fiercely battled to influence Democrats and also the U.S. Jewish community on the deal.

Opponents said the deal leaves Iran a nuclear threshold state, while the Obama administration argued that it was the best means of keeping Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapon.

Adam Szubin, nominated to be the Treasury undersecretary who manages sanctions relief, was a key player, reassuring Israelis and pro-Israel figures that non-nuclear sanctions against Iran – for its backing for terrorism and its human rights abuses – would not only be sustained, but intensified.

Szubin, testifying on September 17 to the Senate Banking Committee, which must approve his nomination, invoked his Jewish heritage. His father, he noted, had fled Nazi-occupied Europe.

“My parents raised us to be conscious of the existence of real evil in the world, evil not as an abstract concept, but as an all too real threat that they had seen in their lifetimes: regimes — leaders and willing followers — who pursued murder and even genocide, in the Holocaust and, sadly, in other places in the decades that followed,” he said.

San Antonio lawyer attends anti-terrorism law conference in Jerusalem

Jon Powell, of the Powell Law Firm in San Antonio, joined seventy attorneys from across the globe this summer, attending an Activist Lawyer’s Training Seminar held by Shurat HaDin – the Israel Law Center in Jerusalem. The program focused on ways the group can utilize their legal skills, experience, knowledge and passion to help safeguard the United States, Israel, and the world’s Judeo-Christian community from radical Islamic terrorism.

Attendees were trained on the process of confronting terrorism in the courtroom. They learned about suing terrorist organizations and the companies and financial institutions that help them collect and move money intended to be spent on terrorist operations. Specifically, by tracking assets and bank accounts of terror groups and legally restricting their funds, Shurat HaDin-Israel Law Center and the lawyers who work with it hope to economically destroy Middle Eastern Islamic hate groups. The lawyers who attended the seminar were trained at the seminar to send demand letters, to file legal actions, and to draft and promote legislation all in an effort to safeguard world Jewry and Christianity from terrorist attacks.

One notable example of such litigation is a case filed in Manhattan federal court under the U.S. Antiterrorism Act on behalf of citizens of the United States who were injured or killed in six terrorist attacks in Israel more than a decade ago. These attacks were supported by the Palestinian Authority and the Palestine Liberation Organization. The case entitled Sokolow v. PLO was prosecuted by seminar speaker Kent Yalowitz of Arnold & Porter, LLP and by Nitsana Darshan-Leitner, the Director of Shurat HaDin – the Israel Law Center and tried before a federal jury. In February 2015, the federal jury in that case found the Palestinian Authority and the Palestine Liberation Organization liable for supporting the terrorist attacks and ordered them to pay $218.5 million to the American victims and their families. The verdict was automatically tripled under the U.S. Antiterrorism Act, amounting to a $655 million final judgment.

The Activist Lawyer’s Training Seminar featured lectures and workshops taught by jurists and legal scholars including Canadian MP Irwin Cotler, former Israeli Supreme Court Justice Gabriel Bach, Israeli peace negotiator and international law expert Daniel Reisner and Harvard Law Professor Alan M. Dershowitz. In addition to learning about the terror victim litigation to bankrupt terrorist organizations, training sessions, lectures and hands-on workshops were designed to provide skills and strategies for litigating against the Boycott-Divest-Sanctions (BDS) movement and anti-Israel delegitimization campaign, advocating on behalf of the Jewish State, defending Israeli Defense Forces (IDF) officers from war crimes allegations and confronting anti-Semitism in local communities.

Attendees took field trips to destinations that are inaccessible to the general public, such as military courts, Israeli security agencies, IDF bases, and Lebanese and Syrian border crossings. Additionally, participants met with senior Israeli officials, judges and prominent international attorneys and discussed the activities of the Iranian supported terrorist group Hezbollah.

Conference participants were also offered cutting-edge social media training sessions designed to advocate for Israel and against terrorism. Additional conference topics included Article 49 of the Geneva Convention, the laws of war and war crimes committed by Hamas in the Gaza strip, such as indiscriminately targeting Israeli citizens.
Jewish publication may drop Coulter over profane, inflammatory tweet

(JTA) — The online conservative Jewish publication Jewish World Review (JWR) may drop conservative political pundit Ann Coulter’s column in the wake of her tweet slamming Republican candidates for pandering to “f—ing Jews.”

Coulter’s column, which appeared on the JWR website on September 17, a day after the CNN Republican debate and her infamous tweet and follow-up tweets, included an editor’s note reading: “This column was prepared before the author’s anti-Semitic rant. JWR reached out to her and awaits her reply.”

Her column has been appearing on the website since 2000.

“Could have been drunk, she could have been high, I don’t know, I have to give her the benefit of the doubt … but I don’t have to delude myself,” founder Binyamin Jolkovsky told The Daily Beast. “Pandering to Jewish money is about as anti-Semitic a stereotype as you could put forth. Her ‘eff-ing Jews’ comment is not identifying Israel — it’s identifying Jews, plural, and all Jews. There is no excuse for that. You can’t just wiggle out of something that vile and hateful.”

Jolkovsky said he has not yet decided whether to pull her column, but that many readers would like to see that happen. Coulter defended her tweet.

Israeli Beverage maker offers to take in Syrian refugees

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Israeli company SodaStream has offered to take in Syrian refugees and employ them in its new factory in the Negev Desert.

SodaStream and the mayor of Rahat, which is near the home beverage maker’s factory, said they can absorb up to 200 families. Some 30 percent of the 1,100 workers at the factory live in the Bedouin city led by Mayor Talal Al-Krenawi.

“As the son of a Holocaust survivor, I refuse to stand by and observe this human tragedy unfold right across the border in Syria,” said SodaStream CEO Daniel Birnbaum said in a statement. “Just as we have always done our best to help our Palestinian brothers and sisters in the West Bank, the time has come for local business and municipal leaders to address the Syrian humanitarian crisis and take the initiative to help those in need. We cannot expect our politicians to bear the entire burden of providing aid for the refugees.”

SodaStream announced a year ago that it would close its controversial West Bank factory and move its operations to southern Israel. The move was widely seen as due to international pressure from the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions movement, which seeks to hurt Israel’s economy over its policies toward the Palestinians.
WE ARE STRONGER TOGETHER!

Through the collective dollars of our Annual Campaign, we are able to make a difference in the lives of our fellow San Antonians, as well as Jewish People around the world. Here are some examples of what our collective dollars fund and support.

LOCALY

PJ Library - over 350 children between the ages of 0 and 7 receive books, free of charge, every month. Parents and grandparents are reading books about Jewish values and Jewish holidays with their children and grandchildren. They are experiencing “Jewish” together. These young families are also meeting each other at monthly events put on here in San Antonio.

In a recent survey of PJ families, 80% of the families that participate said they are NOW attending Jewish community events.

Young Adults - Young adults are meeting each other and networking through “The Tribe” social events and monthly “JnetSA” networking meetings.

Holocaust Memorial Museum - Through onsite visits and educational curriculum, The Holocaust Memorial Museum provided over 16,000 students and adults with education around issues of tolerance, bullying and genocide.

Jewish Education - Through formal and informal Jewish education, children and young adults are developing their Jewish Identity at the Shmuel Bass Torah Academy of San Antonio, the Jewish after School (JAS) program at the JCC, Jewish overnight camps, and on Israel trips. Federation provides camperships, scholarships and support to ensure a life-changing Jewish experience.

Older Adult - Senior services are provided by the JCC through programs like the weekday senior meals program that allows local seniors to enjoy hot meals in the company of their peers. Critical Safety Net services are provided through Jewish Family Service.

Advocacy on Capitol Hill - Professionals in the Federation’s Washington office represent Federations’ interests and concerns to members of Congress, and advocated for key legislation that supports our work and ensures the safety and security of Jewish institutions.

ISRAEL AND OVERSEAS

Israel - Our Federation dollars provided round the clock care for Elder Adults in Israel, who last summer could not make it to a shelter when the rockets hit. Today, these adults are still enjoying daily programming and support. In the aftermath of the war last summer, children and adults alike were left with post traumatic symptoms.

NATAL – the Israel Trauma Center, which is funded by Federation dollars, has touched the lives of over 130,000 men, women, and children. The center employs 150 mental health professionals who work across Israel helping individuals and families get back on their feet.

Partnership2Gether - Through our partnership with the Western Galilee, Hebrew school students at Agudas Achim and Temple Beth El are studying together with Israeli students, via Skype, and developing personal relationships that will last a lifetime; Educators are meeting and sharing best practices; Young adults leaders from the partnership are meeting with young adults in San Antonio, building new friendships and supporting each other as they take on leadership roles.

Ukraine - Amid ongoing political and economic instability in Ukraine, Federation has been a lifeline for vulnerable and displaced Jews throughout the country. Over 4 million dollars has been allocated to meet the needs of Ukrainian Jews and facilitate Aliyah for those who want to relocate.

Europe - Fatal attacks in France as well as vandalism against synagogues and other Jewish facilities in Europe have been shocking and disturbing. Federation in coordination with Israel’s Prime Minister’s office have been working to coordinate security services for the Jewish schools and institutions in France.

We fund programs that strengthen our people, advocate on behalf of our shared values, and educate every generation to ensure our traditions endure. By supporting our community, the Federation enhances Jewish continuity and sustains each of us.

2 Jews shot with BB guns in Orthodox section of New York City

(JTA) — Two Jews were shot with BB guns in separate incidents in a heavily Orthodox neighborhood of New York City.

City Councilman Rory Lancman said that the victims, neither of whom was seriously injured, were shot in mid September in the Kew Gardens Hills section of Queens.

The New York Police Department is investigating the incidents as potential anti-Semitic hate crimes.

Both victims were wearing clothing traditionally worn by Orthodox Jews. The gender of the first victim was not specified, but the second one was male.

New York State Assemblyman Michael Simanowitz issued a statement saying, “I am deeply saddened to hear about the recent incident that betrays an unfortunate prejudice alive in our neighborhood. We live in a community that should celebrate and be proud of our diversity. Acts of bigotry will not be tolerated or go unpunished. I am confident that all perpetrators will be brought to justice, ending a recent string of shameful crimes.”

Queens, one of New York City’s five boroughs, is one of the most ethnically diverse counties in the United States. Kew Gardens Hills, which is home to Lander College for Men and various yeshivas, has a large haredi Orthodox population.

New York Times criticized for chart singling out Jewish lawmakers

(JNS.org) The New York Times drew fire for a chart that it published on September 10 about Democratic opposition to the Iran nuclear deal. The chart highlighted the Jewishness of the opposing lawmakers and their Jewish constituencies.

Appearing in the international section of the newspaper under “Lawmakers Against the Iran Nuclear Deal,” the chart listed Congressional Democrats opposing the deal followed by a column headed “Jewish?” Another column showed the lawmaker’s “district and estimated Jewish population.”

“The newspaper’s decision to signal that Jewishness is the central factor to be scrutinized when looking at opponents of the deal evokes a number of dark and dangerous stereotypes,” the Committee for Accuracy in Middle East Reporting in America (CAMERA) watchdog group said in email alert about the chart.

Jonathan Greenblatt, national director of the Anti-Defamation League, said the chart was “offensive” and that the newspaper should print an “admission of error.”

The chart “reinforces stereotypes about American Jews and dual loyalty, distracts from real issues,” Greenblatt said.

While the New York Times removed the “Jewish?” column of the chart by the following day, the editor behind the chart stood by his decision.

New York Times deputy Washington editor Jonathan Weisman said on Twitter, “As I said, I take responsibility for graphic & don’t apologize. We kept data, just put it into intro. I’m Jewish.”

Former Nazi concentration camp Dachau houses refugees amid Europe’s crisis

(JNS.org) A portion of the former Nazi concentration camp Dachau is being used to house dozens of refugees, the German town’s mayor says.

The concentration camp, which bears the infamous inscription “Arbeit Macht Frei”— “Work Will Set You Free”—has seen its former herb garden turned into a shelter for refugees, international news agency AFP reported.

According to Mayor Florian Hartmann, the town is facing a housing shortage and did not have room to accommodate the influx of refugees and migrants amid Europe’s crisis on that issue. The camp site houses “about 50 people…who have lost their homes” and “serves as accommodation for people who cannot afford housing on the [open] market,” Hartmann said in a statement.

“These are the weakest members of society. This building has been burdened by history but can now take on a useful social role,” said Hartmann.

Chicago TV station atones for Yom Kippur faux pas

(JNS.org) A local television network in Chicago, WGN, used a stock image of the yellow Star of David—the patch the Nazis forced the Jews to wear on their clothing during the Holocaust—as the graphic accompanying a story about the Jewish holy day of Yom Kippur this week.

The symbol was used during the Holocaust as a way to distinguish and dehumanize Jews.

Viewers were quick to react, taking to twitter to blast the station. WGN was quick to apologize online.

While some viewers were unsatisfied with the apology, others blamed the education system for failing to teach “young people” about the Holocaust and its symbols.

Violence spikes in Jerusalem

By Ben Sales

TEL AVIV (JTA) — For Israelis, the Ten Days of Repentance from Rosh Hashanah to Yom Kippur turned into days of deadly violence. Unrest swelled in Jerusalem following an Israeli ban on a protest group at the Temple Mount, the holy site known to Muslims as the Haram al-Sharif.

The clashes have been matched by a war of words, with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu declaring “war” on Palestinian stone throwers and Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas vowing that Jews will not be allowed to “dirty” the Temple Mount.

Here’s how the clashes started, what’s driving the violence and how Israel, the Palestinians and the world are responding.

Clashes at the Temple Mount are nothing new, particularly around the Jewish High Holidays. The latest round broke out following Israel’s decision on September 9 to bar an Islamist protest group from entering the site. Israel said the group, known as the Murabitat, and its corresponding men’s faction have been yelling at Jewish visitors and throwing stones at them.

“The aforesaid organizations strive to undermine Israeli sovereignty on the Temple Mount, change the existing reality and arrangements at the site and infringe on freedom of worship,” said the Israeli statement announcing the ban.

Omar Kiswani, who directs the Al-Aqsa mosque on the mount, told the Guardian that Israel should not have the authority to restrict Muslims from entering the site.

“We call upon all Muslims to be present in Al-Aqsa,” he said. “It is the home of all Muslims and their presence in this place would intensify their connection to this place.”

Clashes between Israeli police and Palestinian protesters followed, leading to multiple injuries and one death.

Three days later, Israeli police raided the mount on the eve of the Jewish New Year, uncovering a stockpile of pipe bombs, firebombs and rocks that they feared would be aimed at Jewish worshippers. That night, a Jewish-Israeli, Alexander Levlovich, 64, was attacked by Palestinian protesters in the eastern Jerusalem neighborhood of Armon Hanatziv. They pelted his car with rocks, causing Levlovich to lose control of the vehicle and smash into a pole. He died the following morning.

Clashes between Israeli police and Palestinian protesters continued the following day, with two Israelis injured. On the third day of rioting, 26 Palestinians and five Israeli police officers were lightly wounded at the Temple Mount, according to Reuters.

On September 18, police barred Muslim men under 40 from the mount in anticipation of unrest following Friday prayers. Some 200 Palestinians protested the move at the Damascus Gate to Jerusalem’s Old City and near the site where Levlovich was killed. Overall, according to Haaretz, three Israeli policemen and 21 Palestinians were injured in the clashes.

Israeli Police spokesman Micky Rosenfeld said that since September 18, an increased police presence in eastern Jerusalem has tamped down the violence. Neither side is happy about restrictions on the Temple Mount.

Controversy over who can do what at the holy site has been festering for decades. Although Israel has overall control of the area, a joint Jordanian-Palestinian Islamic religious body called the Waqf governs it.

Under current regulations, Muslims may visit and pray on the mount. Jews may also visit during limited hours, but are prohibited from praying or doing a range of things — kneeling, bowing, even crying — that resemble worship.

Jewish activists have called for greater access, but the Israeli government has resisted the call so as not to upset the delicate balance at the site. Some Muslims are also unhappy, claiming that Israel should not be permitted to control access to the Temple Mount.

“Israel will not be allowed to continue its steps,” Abbas said, according to reports. “The Al-Aqsa mosque is ours. They have no right to dirty it with their filthy feet. We will not allow them to do that.”

Jews make up a small minority of visitors to the Temple Mount. Just 12,000 Jews visit per year, compared to 3 million to 4 million Muslims.

Israel has upped its police presence and increased penalties for stone throwers. Netanyahu has stepped up its rhetoric and police presence to combat the unrest. Israel added 800 officers to its Old City contingent, bringing the total number of police there to 3,500, according to Rosenfeld.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu also declared “war” on stone throwers. Netanyahu is pushing through a new law that would allow police to fire more quickly on Palestinian stone throwers, as well as increase the stone throwers’ prison sentences and fines.

“We attest to the fact that we decided to change the policy and declare war on those who throw stones and firebombs, shoot and riot,” Netanyahu said. “In the State of Israel, people do not throw firebombs, or shoot at trains, or throw stones at will. Those who do so will pay a very heavy price.”

World leaders urge restraint.

On September 21, the U.S. State Department called on all sides to “refrain from provocative actions and rhetoric.” The United Nations Security Council used similar language in a statement on September 17, adding that “Muslim worshippers at the Haram Al-Sharif must be allowed to worship in peace, free from violence, threats and provocations.”

Neither statement explicitly cast blame on either Israelis or Palestinians for the clashes. But Jordan’s King Abdullah II criticized Israel’s actions, saying that “any more provocation in Jerusalem will affect the relationship between Jordan and Israel,” according to the French news agency AFP.

Israel insists that it is committed to maintaining the status quo. Its actions, Netanyahu said, have come only to prevent violence at the site.

“Israel will maintain the status quo,” Netanyahu told his Cabinet on September 20. “We have no plans to change them, but we also have no intention of allowing anyone to cause the deterioration of the arrangements on the Temple Mount by resorting to explosive and widespread violence.”
