2015 Columbia Jewish Federation Campaign Off To A Strong Start

BARRY ABELS
CJF and JCC Executive Director

Thanks to our Women’s Lion of Judah Division and others from our Women’s Division who made an early pledge, our board members who stepped forward at the October Federation meeting to make their pledges, and the leadership pledges from our Co-chairs, John Baker and Jerry Kline, the 2015 Campaign has recorded pledges of over $160,000. John is joined by Steve Anastasion in making their pledge on behalf of the Baker and Baker Foundation. The Federation is honored to have the leadership of John and Jerry for 2015, not only because of their strong history of community support, but also due to the funding needs within our local community and the troubling world situation. This year, more so than any year in the recent past, we must reach our campaign goal of $545,000.

We have been given a great start, and now it is up to the rest of us to step forward for the betterment of our community and the support, and even protection, of our family abroad.

“I am honored and humbled to serve as the General Campaign Chair for the 2015 Columbia Jewish Federation drive. I am also honored that Jerry Kline has agreed to serve as my co-chair.

“As you all know, this past year has been a challenging one for all Jews in the United...”

From the President

DR. NAOMI FARBER
CJF President

My father, Mannie Farber, passed away recently, leaving a substantial bequest to the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto, the city in which he grew up and subsequently left because he knew that the virulent anti-Semitism of the 1940s would limit his opportunities as a scientist. When his grandson, Sam, learned of this gift, he commented, “That’s really a wonderful gesture from Grandpa. I’m sure he felt it was his duty and was happy to give.” Indeed. He felt it was his duty, and he was happy to give.

In the months preceding my father’s death at 95, as his health began to decline, I became more involved in assisting him with his daily affairs. I discovered that although he was living on a fixed retirement income, he had, for many...”

JCC welcomes all veterans November 9

Shelley Kriegshaber Contributor

Veterans and their families are invited to spend the afternoon swimming, playing, eating, and relaxing at the Kahn Jewish Community Center on Sunday, November 9 from 1 to 4 p.m. The invitation is the JCC’s way of saying thank-you to veterans for dedicating a time in their lives to serving their country.

The Kahn JCC is one of six Jewish Community Centers in the country selected to participate in a pilot program called Project Welcome Home, an outreach to men and women who are returning from military service and are transitioning into civilian life.

“With Fort Jackson in our backyard and Shaw Air Force Base nearby, it’s a natural fit that our community was selected for this pilot project,” said Barry Abels, Executive Director of the Kahn JCC. “We want to welcome those coming home from deployment, but we also want to want to acknowledge all veterans in the community.”

The afternoon will feature an indoor swim party, bounce house, arts and crafts, and hot dogs with all the fixings. In addition, professionals will be available to talk to veterans about medical- and employment-related issues and transitioning back into the community. Photos from recent Honor Flights from the Midlands will be featured, and much more.

Members of the JCC will also participate in the Veterans Day parade on November 11 in downtown Columbia.

States and throughout the world,” said Campaign Co-Chair John Baker. “In order to meet the growing needs in our community and worldwide, we need your support more than ever. I hope and pray that when your doorbell rings or when you answer the phone, that you welcome each volunteer with your great support.

During 2014 we were able to fund our local requests and provide funding for Jewish Family Service, Young Adult Division, and small community grant funding around the same levels as 2013. Yet those allocations were at best one-third to one-half of the allocations requested locally, and our allocation to the National Federation System, the mechanism through which we most efficiently fund Israel and other overseas needs, was lower than in earlier years. Thanks to the Krauss Trust gift we will be able to do more prior to the year’s end, but even with that generous addition, if 2015 requests are at levels similar to this year, our goal of $545,000 must be achieved.

Several members of our community sent in an increased pledge upon receipt of our campaign letter earlier this fall. Anyone wishing to renew their campaign pledge may do the same. However, if you do get a call from a campaign volunteer asking you to meet for coffee, make your pledge over the phone, or invite you to their home to learn more about campaign, we hope that you will respond gladly and with generosity in your heart. When you do, you can feel good about what we all will accomplish together, strengthening our Jewish community, providing a hand up to those who need it, and helping the people of Israel through difficult and trying times. Together as a community we will do this.

The mitzvah of tzedakah, do it. It will make you feel good.

Shalom, Y’all!

The Columbia Jewish Federation is proud to launch Shalom Y’all, intended to welcome Jewish families that are new to the Columbia area. This program provides gifts, such as a mezuzah, to welcome them to their new home, as well as invaluable local resources to help make their transition easier. If you are new to Columbia or know a family who has recently moved here, please contact Cheryl Nail at cheryln@jewishcolumbia.org or 803.787.2023 x. 211.

What Will Be Your Legacy?

Giving (tzedakah) is at the core of Jewish life. For millennia, Jewish dreamers have embody our ancestors’ devotion, and taught us during our lifetimes.

Whatever you have done, you have done with passion. For millennia, Jewish dreamers have nourished us, strengthened us, guided us, and taught us during our lifetimes. Together as a community we will do this.

Shalom, Y’all! Don’t wander the real estate desert alone!

The truce holds, but it’s not time to relax

BARRY ABELS
CJF and JCC Executive Director

It has been several weeks since the IDF and Hamas have clashed. Terrorists are not coming from tunnels, and rockets are not flying over Israel. Both sides claim some level of victory, and negotiations are ongoing to try and bring a lasting peace. Yet the same points of contention that never seem to resolve are still on the table. The Palestinian Authority objects to Israel continuing to allow new settlements in East Jerusalem and the West Bank. They want a return to pre-1967 borders; East Jerusalem as the capital of the PA; the right of return for Arabs who left Israel after the declaration of the state; as well as control of the boarders of Gaza, to name a few.

Israel wants (and deserves) official recognition of its statehood by the PA; a return to the PA as the sole governing authority for both the West Bank and Gaza and ending the inclusion of Hamas; the disarming of Hamas and assurances that no more tunnels are built or rockets fired into Israel;

If all or most of this sounds familiar, it should. Perhaps this time progress will be made. In the meantime Israel is also busy rebuilding infrastructure and lives disrupted by damage done during the Protective Edge campaign. Much of the ability to put things back in order, whether it is helping to provide food; temporary shelter; rebuilding or psychological counseling, has come from you and me and the rest of the Federation system through the Stop the Sirens campaign. System-wide we raised millions of dollars, and over 18 million dollars have been distributed to organizations throughout Israel. They were used to increase staffing in hospitals; train more volunteers for crisis response; for psychological and trauma counseling; to provide special activity kits for children in shelters; respite care; and now for rebuilding and economic recovery.

As important and helpful as Stop the Sirens was, Federations, and all of us at home, cannot rest. Worldwide we are experiencing increased crises impacting our extended Jewish families. The fighting in the Ukraine has endangered many, Jews and non-Jews, destroying homes, creating food shortages and endangering lives. Anti-Semitism has risen throughout Europe, and we are not left out here at home. Leonard Petlakh, director of the Kings Bay Y, said protestors shouting “Free Palestine” and “Your people are murderers,” attacked him as he left a basketball game between the Brooklyn Nets and the Maccabi Tel Aviv team. Closer to home, the AEPI house at Emory University was painted with swastikas and anti-Semitic slogans. Both of these incidents occurred in just the last few weeks.

One of our roles as your Federation is to be an extra set of eyes and ears for our community, keeping tabs on world and local events and situations that could impact our community. To that end we monitor websites and news feeds, we work with the Secure Communities Network, a collaboration between the JFNA, JCCA and other Jewish organizations that monitors terror and anti-Semitic activities worldwide and sends us alerts, and we work with our local FBI special agents who visit with us throughout the year and remain accessible anytime we call.

At this time of year we have launched our annual campaign, beginning the activity that is the backbone of our Federation, the successful completion of Campaign 2015. The campaign begins this year on October 24, 2014, and concludes on January 31, 2015. Over the course of the campaign we will focus on just a few key areas: security, future and endowment, and of course the Federation’s general resources.

The truce holds, but it’s not time to relax. If all or most of this sounds familiar, it should. Perhaps this time progress will be made. In the meantime Israel is also busy rebuilding infrastructure and lives disrupted by damage done during the Protective Edge campaign. Much of the ability to put things back in order, whether it is helping to provide food; temporary shelter; rebuilding or psychological counseling, has come from you and me and the rest of the Federation system through the Stop the Sirens campaign. A new year, a new website!

The Columbia Jewish Federation is pleased to launch its new website at www.jewshcolumbia.org.

More comprehensive and easier to navigate, the new website is designed to provide up-to-date information about Federation programs; community events and resources; and local, national, and worldwide Jewish news.

Perhaps the most improved feature is our community calendar, which is now fully searchable. You can even filter for events based on specific criteria, such as audience or host organization.

As we strive to continue improving your online experience, we welcome your feedback.

years, been contributing at least 40% of his yearly income to charity. As a concerned citizen of the world, his donations went to American Indian education funds, veterans’ organizations, the Democratic Party, the Southern Poverty Law Center, symphonies, animal shelters, and numerous other causes he felt represented urgent needs and were consistent with his Jewish values. His most significant support, however, went to Israeli orphans and medical institutions, the dissemination of Yiddish literature and culture, efforts to attain peace in the Middle East, the Holocaust Museum, and a host of other organizations, in Columbia and across the world, that tend to the immediate wellbeing and seek to secure the future of communities and generations of Jews. When I asked him if he might consider reserving more of his resources for his own needs, he replied rather sharply, “There are so many needs in the world. Someone has to give, and I can, so I do.”

In particular, he believed that ensuring the continued existence of the Jewish people was a paramount responsibility of ours, of him.

As I approach the conclusion of my term as president of the Columbia Jewish Federation, I reflect on many successes and frustrations I have encountered in the last two years of service. Happily, the incoming president of the Federation, John Baker, is beginning his term with a stronger, more stable and vital organization primarily because of the outstanding leadership of Barry Abels, who came to us just a few months after I became president.

With the unwavering support and wisdom of the JCC president, Keith Babcock, the Federation has begun to recover from the recent decline in Campaign income and, more importantly, regain its rightful role of supporting and facilitating collaboration among Jewish organizations, providing an increasing range of important services through Jewish Family Service, and serving as a strong voice in and for the Columbia Jewish Community.

Less happily, however, we face ever greater threats to the security and future of Jews worldwide; in fact, in some respects, in some places across the world the threats are more widespread, more dire. So, the gains we have made here in Columbia could not reassure us that we have fulfilled our responsibility to the wider Jewish community now or for the future of our people. Over the past two years of my tenure, I had the privilege of witnessing the continuing to allow new settlements in East Jerusalem and the West Bank.

Thank you for investing your resources in—and demonstrating your commitment to—our local Jewish community and the well-being of Jews in Israel, Europe and around the world.

It's the right thing to do.

Meet the CJF Board:
DR. NAOMI FARBER

In this regular feature of the Jewish News, members of the Columbia Jewish Federation Board of Directors will tell us about themselves. This month’s featured member is President Dr. Naomi Farber.

Jewish News: When did you become a CJF Board Member?

I became a Board member (I think) in 2008 in my capacity as Chair of the Advisory Committee of JFS.

JN: What leadership roles have you had in our community?

I became an involvement as a member of the JFS Advisory Committee. I then became the Chair. When Shelley Kreighsahber became Board President, the Nominating Committee invited me to serve as President-Elect and here I am! I was [also] the Chair of the Advisory School Board at the Tree of Life.

JN: Tell us about your family.

My husband, Steven Grosby, is a professor of Religion and Philosophy at Clemson University where he teaches, among other subjects, Old Testament. Steven is closely involved in supporting academic and policy work in Israel. We have four children, the oldest, Sam, who is a senior at the Eastern School of Music at the University of Rochester. He studies voice and opera. For the past two years Sam has sung, professionally, with the large Reform temple in Rochester for the High Holidays. I think that Sam’s experience growing up Jewish in Columbia has given him a deep and lasting Jewish identity. Though he was, like other Jewish kids here, one of a very few Jews in his school, the close-knit friendships he formed at Tree of Life Religious School and BBYO have contributed to his commitment to Judaism.

JN: What’s your day job, and how did you get there?

I am on the faculty of the USC College of Social Work. I’m the MSW Program Director and currently serve as Interim Associate Dean. I’ve been in social work education for a long time! I got my MSW at the University of Michigan, practiced psychiatric social work in Thunder Bay, Ontario, and then returned for my doctorate at the University of Chicago to focus more on teaching and research. Steven and I met there when he returned for his doctorate at the Committee on Social Thought. Our path from Chicago to Columbia was significantly influenced by the challenges of finding two academic positions in the same place (at least the same state)!

JN: How did you make your way to the CJF Board?

By way of JFS, when Cheri Shapiro asked me to join the Advisor Committee. I continue to credit Cheri largely with the crucial change that brought JFS directly in the Federation as our “service arm.”

JN: What’s going on at the Federation?

A lot is going on at the Federation! Since the time that I became involved with the CJF, we have expanded the range of our programs in the community. As the Jewish community has become increasingly diverse, with new families moving to Columbia, and has developed a more visible presence, the Federation has had the opportunity to provide support to many traditional and new forms of Jewish life. I am so pleased, for example, with the growing presence of Jewish life on the USC campus with Hillel, AEPI, and the Jewish Studies Program. Part of the reason for this increased level of activity in the Jewish community is that a few years ago the Board requested all applications for funding through the Federation to demonstrate a clear effort to collaborate with other organizations. This has increased the synergy in our small but active Jewish community. Under Barry’s leadership as Executive Director of the CJF and JCC, the two entities have created a special synergy of their own in providing leadership in an increasing variety of kinds of Jewish programming. Of course at this moment the CJF is gearing up for the 2015 Campaign, with plans for several exciting events! The BSA, honoring Lyssa Harvey, is coming up soon on October 30. In addition to celebrating Lyssa’s remarkable contributions with an evening of artistic excellence, this event will officially kick off the Campaign. One of the indications of the CJF’s vital presence in the community is the new website, which will make it easier than ever to stay up to date on the many programs and activities in Jewish Columbia!

JN: What’s the best part of our community?

Of course the best part is the people who make up the Columbia Jewish community. In every community there are bound to be strong differences of opinions and perspectives! Still, there is an amazing capacity for members of our community to come together to support individuals and families locally, and also as members of the larger community of Jews worldwide. It is a source of great pride to me to be a member of this community, and a deep honor to have served as the CJF president.

What is YAD?

We, the Young Adult Division of the Columbia Jewish Federation, are a group of Jewish Professionals, Grad Students, and Parents with young kids who get together on a regular basis to build Jewish Community through Leadership, Religious, Volunteer, and Social Events. We work with all of the Jewish groups in Columbia and encourage Columbia’s 24-40 crowd to get more involved in Columbia’s Jewish Community and assume leadership roles in areas that suit their interests.

Masquerade Ball, Relay for Life & Jewish Historic Columbia

We are already planning our annual Masquerade Ball around Purim in 2015. We are working with Historic Columbia to host the event at the Big Apple to make the event bigger and better this year. We plan to use some of the money raised to support our Relay For Life team event in May 2015. If you are interested in joining our Relay For Life team, please contact Brian.Brodkin@gmail.com. We are also helping Historic Columbia create a program for Jewish Historic Columbia and are seeking members of the community with insight to share about Columbia’s Jewish past. Please contact davepolen@gmail.com.

Jewish Family Service

A Season of Helping
LANEY COHEN, JFS Director

It’s Fall! My favorite time of the year. A time that we celebrate under the stars with Sukkot, and an end beginning with Simchat Torah. Leaves are changing colors and falling. I love the change that Fall brings - the invigoration of the spirit. A time of reflection and, with the New Year having begun, a continuation of working on a new you. There is an energy around of wanting to help others, to make our community a better place. With this time of reflection, please consider helping JFS if possible:

Jewish Family Service is in need of a few things - things that I ask for your help with. The need for senior transportation is at an all-time high. If you have a few spare moments, and would like to make a difference in a senior’s life, please consider being a volunteer driver for JFS. Also, right before the Christmas holiday, the Columbia Jewish Federation, along with the JCC, will be hosting Mitzvah Day. Please mark your calendars and keep your eyes open for opportunities to get involved. Jewish Family Service is always looking for food and clothing donations. Calls for food assistance are non-stop from community members. Please consider making a food donation to the JFS food pantry (you can drop off at the JCC, or call Laney, and a pick-up can be arranged)! Please remember to check for expiration dates before donating!

Thank you for your help with these things. The need never seems to end. With this time of reflection, please consider helping JFS if possible:

Jewish Family Service staff the Ronald McDonald House during the Christmas holiday so that their staff can celebrate with their families. Volunteer shifts are in two-hour increments (but you are more than welcome to sign up for more). This is a fun and easy way to give back and help families in our community!

Volunteer shifts will begin Wednesday, December 24th at 10:00 am and end through Friday, December 26th at 2:00 pm. There is one overnight shift on the 25th available.

Please contact Laney @ 787-2023 ext. 220 for more information and to sign up!

Steve Terner Jewish Camp Scholarship Fund

For children and young adults, overnight Jewish summer camp experiences are among the strongest influences on Jewish identity; however, the overnight camps can be expensive. To alleviate some of the burden, the Columbia Jewish Federation established the Steve Terner Jewish Camp Scholarship Fund. Thanks to the generosity of donors, the fund provided supplemental funding for 11 youths to participate in Jewish overnight camps this summer. Here, scholarship recipients share their camp experiences.

Thank you for the grant that helped me go to Camp Coleman! I really enjoy being able to see my friends and learning more and more about Judaism. I’m really excited to go back, and I’m already counting down the days until I can go again. Later I might even go back to be a counselor! I really appreciate the opportunity to go.

Thanks again!
Will Cason

Dear Federation,
Thank you for helping me go to camp this summer. I had a great experience. This year, I was in the unit “Tsofim,” which means “scouts.” In Tsofim, we get to do more exciting and different experiences. The main one is called “Appy,” which is short for the Appalachian Trail. Appy is an out-of-camp, three-day hike along the Appalachian Trail (a total of 21 miles). Though it was a physical challenge, it was a great bonding experience with my cabin. Another experience we got to do this year is a water-ski trip. The water-ski trip is another out-of-camp trip where we went to Lake Burton, and we got to tube behind a boat and swim in the lake. We also got to go on this thing called Rocket. The Rocket is another great cabin bonding experience and is a very thrilling activity. You are hooked into a harness, and your cabin pulls you up very high. When you are ready, you pull a string, and you are released by your cabin, and you swing back and forth over the lake. Finally, another great experience this year, specifically to me, was the Camp Barney Medintz Band. Three other kids and I performed at multiple shows and concerts, and we were known camp-wide. We hope to continue next year. But the best day of the week was Friday Shabbat. Shabbat is very special at Camp Barney Medintz. The service is very interactive with music. And when my unit led Shabbat, we had someone get to read from the Torah. Shabbat at Camp is very special because it is a time where the whole camp can feel connected, and the bonds with your cabin become greater. Also, when my unit led Shabbat, I got the chance to read the prayer for Israel. This was really special to me with all that is going on there right now. But the best part of camp is that it’s a Jewish environment. Everyone can relate to each other, and I feel that is special. And the Jewish friendships I made at camp are different than school friendships. I feel very close to my Jewish friends because I can relate to them, and because I only see my friends once a year, makes that time more meaningful when I do see them.

Overall, I had a great camping experience this year at Camp Barney Medintz.
- Aaron Stark

Dear Federation,
Hi, my name is David Stark. I just recently went to Camp Barney Medintz, and would like to thank you for giving me a scholarship to camp. This year I was in Shomrim, which means guardians. That also means we got to lead a Friday night Shabbat. There were different types of Shabbat groups from making challah to making a skit. But I was in the prayer group [that leads] all the prayers for the service. I [led] Lecha Dodi and the prayer for Israel. I would have done more if there were less people in the group. After the service we [participated in] an oneg, which is a unit program. In the unit program we learned that we need to protect our bodies and words. Playing games, such as telephone, [we learned] that if you spread a message around it could change into something hurtful to another person. This year in camp we got to do the flying squirrel, which is a rope connected to a tree in the air, and you are harnessed in, but your cabin mates are pulling you back so you fly into the air. This year we also got to do the tubing trip. It is a trip you take only in Shomrim. First you tube down a river for about one hour; then you take a bus to a water park where you spend the rest of the morning riding water slides.

I just want to thank you one more time for giving me a scholarship to camp.

The Kahn JCC’s first annual Kite Festival

“Day at the J” campers celebrate Sukkot with PJ Library and the Kahn JCC.
A love story that survived the ashes of the Holocaust: special program on anniversary of Kristallnacht at JCC

Couple’s story featured on classic 1950s TV show This Is Your Life

Hanna and Walter Kohner had one of the few Holocaust stories with a happy ending. The two were childhood sweethearts in Czechoslovakia before the war, with big plans for the future. When Hitler’s armies closed in, Walter managed to get to the States, where his brothers were living. Hanna was arrested and miraculously survived internment in four concentration camps, including Auschwitz.

After the war, Walter learned from an American sergeant who helped liberate her that Hanna was still alive. He eventually found her in Amsterdam, and they were soon married. Settling in Los Angeles in 1946, Walter became a theatrical agent and, with Hanna, wrote their amazing story, Hanna and Walter, A Love Story, published by iUniverse Press in 2008.

Julie Kohner carries on their legacy by telling her parents’ story to school and community groups throughout the country. Her presentation, Voices of the Generations, has won raves from rabbis and educators. Julie recounts the story, shows a video about her parents that was broadcast as an episode of This Is Your Life in 1953, and answers questions about her parents and the Holocaust. Join us as she visits the Katie & Irwin Kahn Jewish Community Center on Sunday, November 9 at 6:30 pm.

Chai Society Breakfasts

There will be two Chai Society Breakfasts in November. On November 5 our guest speaker is Columbia Mayor Stephen Benjamin; and on November 12 USC President Harris Pastides will be joining us. Breakfast begins at 7:15 AM, with speakers beginning at 7:45 AM.

If you are not a member of the Chai Society and are interested in learning more, please contact Barry Abels at 787-2023.

Hanukkah Shines Bright at the JCC

LAURIE SLACK
JCC Jewish Programs Director

Bring in the warmth of the Hanukkah Lights this December with the Columbia Community at the JCC. As always, we'll be lighting our amazing giant oil menorah each night outside of the JCC’s front doors. Everyone is welcome to come and enjoy its glow. On Sunday, December 21, we'll be gathering in the JCC lobby at 5:00 pm for latkes, jelly doughnuts, hot cocoa, games and crafts for children with the PJ Library, and community fun before we light the community menorah at 5:30 pm.

Out and about during Hanukkah? Stop by the Rosewood Market on Thursday, December 18 to sample some delicious gourmet oils as the JCC, Columbia Jewish Federation, and the Jewish Outreach Institute partner together to bring “8 Days of Oil: Hanukkah Olive Oil Tasting” to Columbia. Look for more details on the JCC website and Facebook page!

Of course, we here at the JCC wish you the brightest, warmest, most joyful Hanukkah yet, and want to remind you that you’re always welcome at the Katie & Irwin Kahn Jewish Community Center. No matter if you know the JCC well, are new to town, or perhaps just haven’t gotten as involved as you’d like, we’d love to see you and spend time with you at one of our many events! Chag Sameach from our JCC family to yours!
Kahn JCC welcomes new Sports & Fitness Director, Ben Rosenberg

Ben Rosenberg is excited to serve the Kahn JCC as the new Sports and Fitness Director because it brings together a number of his interests. Ben has been passionate about wellness and about helping his community with health and fitness in a variety of settings for over nine years. He is a certified Master Personal Trainer through ASFA and has competed in multiple ironman triathlons and lived to tell about it. He received his undergraduate degree from Emory University with dual majors in Psychology and Sociology and minors in Visual Arts and Economics. Ben went on to receive masters’ degrees in both business and healthcare administration from Georgia State University. He remains interested in learning and is looking forward to getting to know members, staff, and the broader JCC community. He is originally from Atlanta and has lived in Columbia for a little more than a year.

Introducing Craft & Kvell at the JCC!

Do you have a pile of photos you want to get into your scrapbook? Have you been pinning things on Pinterest but haven’t had a quiet moment to do any crafting? Is your yarn stash getting a little out of hand? Bring your projects to the JCC for a day of fun crafting with new and old friends at our Craft & Kvell. We’ll provide table space, light refreshments, and a raffle to win a prize pack - you bring your paper, yarn, deco mesh, paints, die cutter - or whatever else you use to create! Sunday, January 11, 2015 | 8:30 am - 5:30 pm
Please RSVP to lauries@jcccolumbia.org or call 803-787-2023 so we can have enough tables out for everyone! Invite a friend!

Smoothie Bar is now OPEN!

We’re excited to announce that the Kahn JCC smoothie bar is now officially open for business! You can choose from three nutritious and delicious V8 Fusion flavors: Strawberry Banana, Raspberry Watermelon, or Peach Mango for only $3. Add a shot of various protein powders and seeds for only $1 each. We also feature a “Smoothie of the Day ($4),” which is made with a variety of all-natural fruits, vegetables, and protein powders.

Call for Speakers:
Columbia Holocaust Education Commission:

The Columbia Holocaust Education Commission is in the process of forming a Speaker’s Bureau to fulfill requests for speakers about the Holocaust. If you have family members who are/were survivors of the Holocaust, or you are otherwise knowledgeable about the Holocaust, please consider volunteering your time to speak with students and community members. Most recently, Henry and Minda Miller spoke to eighth-grade students at Maywood Middle School in Sumter about his father’s Holocaust experience. If you are interested in being added to the Speaker’s Bureau, please contact Esther Greenberg at 803-254-9338 or 803-736-3140.

Call for Nominations:
Jewish Cultural Arts Committee

The Jewish Cultural Arts Committee is looking for new members with an interest in bringing Jewish art, music, dance, literature, and speakers to the Midlands area. The committee works to initiate, coordinate, and assist programming throughout the community - including events such as the Columbia Jewish Film Festival, The Columbia Jewish Book Festival, and the JCC’s Summer Cultural Series. If you have a desire to keep Jewish art and culture thriving in Columbia, an interest in arts and culture, and the enthusiasm to bring your ideas and energy to bear on Jewish community cultural and arts events, we would like to hear from you.

Nominations, including self-nominations, for this committee should be sent to Stan Dubinsky at dubinsky@sc.edu. Before nominating someone else, please insure their willingness to serve.

Nominations should include the nominee’s name and contact information (email and phone), and a short (100 word) statement describing the nominee’s interest in, and experience with, arts and culture.

A gift that will keep giving
Thank you, Sidney Krauss

BARRY ABELS
CJF and JCC Executive Director

After serving as a Marine captain in WWII and then working for many years in New York, Sidney Krauss moved to Columbia and went to work for J. Rubin and Son. He later became a sales representative for the Fruit of the Loom Company. He spent many good years with the company until his retirement. He was a member of Tree of Life and, as a former Marine officer, played golf at Fort Jackson. He met and married his second wife, Edith. After her passing from cancer, he later met and married Anne. His years here must have been full of meaning and good relationships, for prior to Sidney’s passing he planned ahead and made provisions to support several area organizations that grew to be important to him. Through two different trusts, that also supported Anne prior to her passing, Sidney and his estate have made a wonderful impact on the lives of people in the area. Through these trusts Sidney chose to support a couple of Columbia community institutions, but closer to our Jewish community, Sidney left gifts to Tree of Life, Beth Shalom, and the Columbia Jewish Federation. Although the organizations became aware of these plans a couple of years ago with Anne’s passing, the Federation did not have previous knowledge of Sidney’s generosity, and the gifts were unsolicited. Although the Federation and the JCC are now working on legacy gift planning, at the time there was no organized effort to encourage gifts through estate planning. Although it does not happen extremely often, the receipt of a generous gift from an estate occurs like this from time to time.

The generosity of Sidney Krauss will go on for years to come. The gift is endowed by a substantial principal fund, and we will receive a portion of the income of this fund on an annual basis. Coupled with our annual campaign, this gift will extend the charitable reach of the Federation. In our case there are stipulations that we allocate a percentage consistent with our mission to needs within our local area or around the nation, a percentage overseas, and a portion to support the worthwhile work of the Anti-Defamation League.

With our first allocation received late this summer we were able to send $10,000 to the Stop the Sirens campaign to aid Israel during this latest crisis, and here at home we invested $1,000 in the Shofar Factory that provided a wonderful experience to all of the students of the Tree of Life and Beth Shalom Religious Schools and the Cutler Jewish Day School. The Federation board will explore how we will distribute the remaining funds in ways that will support Israel, our extended Jewish family worldwide, and our Columbia Jewish community. We humbly thank Sidney Krauss, his estate, and the trustees of the fund for including the Columbia Jewish Federation in his family’s thoughtful estate planning. We will continue to work together with all of you to grow our annual campaign, and combined with this generous gift, we will be better able to meet the requests of our Jewish organizations, create more Jewish experiences for our children, and support the wide variety of programs and populations within Eastern Europe and Israel. Thank you again, Sidney, for your acts of tzedakah. Your memory and your actions shall be as a blessing on our Columbia community.

RISA STRAUSS
TOL Education Director

Many of us are familiar with the proverb, “Give someone a fish and you feed them for a day; teach someone to fish and you feed them for a lifetime.” Though most educators, I am sure, never actually have taught anyone to fish at a synagogue, it is analogous of what all educators try to do for their students in Religious School. Learning, scholarship, and doing are supremely valued in the Jewish tradition.

Every religion has ceremonies to mark rites of passage. At our Temple, Confirmation recognizes the approach to adulthood, the Bar/Bat Mitzvah the development of the emergent adolescent, and Consecration the beginning of formal Jewish study. How wonderful to begin a child’s Jewish education with celebration!

Being Jewish is about making the journey and finding the path to connect to ourselves, our family, our traditions, our history, our ethics, and our community. At Tree of Life on Shabbat-Chol haMoed Sukkot, our newest of Religious School students, under the warmth of the Rabbi’s tallit and with the Rabbi’s blessing, began the journey of their Religious School education. As a congregation and community, we pray that these young people will always enjoy a shelter of peace – a sukkat shalom – and that the words of Torah will always be like honey on their lips.

COFTY-Columbia Federation of Temple Youth has gotten off to a great start this year. For our home opener we enjoyed watching football, making Havdalah, and eating a great sub supper at the home of COFTY President, Micah Feinstein. We all also participated in collecting, sorting, and organizing canned and boxed food for JFS, Harvest Hope, and the RNE foodbank.

A highlight in October was bringing friends to join us for a meal in our Sukkah, and then assisting Zack Helman with beautifying the rain garden for his Mitzvah Project.

We are looking forward to NFTY Fall Kallah in Roswell, GA in October!

Chabad CJDS

RABBI MEIR MULLER, Ph.D.
CJDS Principal

The Cutler Jewish Day School has begun a project of turning the wooded area around the school into a natural play scape. The school envisions that this multi-stage project will include an outdoor classroom, amphitheater, field, Torah and Israel garden, nature trials, and other areas. School principal Rabbi Meir Muller commented, “I have recently read The Last Child and believe that many children in our modern society experience what the author terms ‘nature deficit disorder.’ I am thrilled that at CJDS children will have more opportunities to play in nature.”

Rabbi Meir also shared research reporting that the US schools that use outdoor classrooms and other forms of nature-based experiential experiences see significant student gains in social studies, science, language arts, and math. Students in outdoor science programs improved their science testing scores by 27% (American Institutes for Research, 2005). Ms. Kelly Stanton, CJDS assistant principal, shared that being allowed to play in nature reduces children’s stress and helps with a host of social-emotional skills. While this will be a long-term project with many phases, the school hopes students will be able to explore some facets of the project as soon as this month.

BBYO in Columbia will soon be reorganizing and reestablishing the adult committee while recruiting new members to the Lena Karesh chapter, BBG, and the Paul Schwartz chapter, AZA.

BBYO is the leading pluralistic teen movement aspiring to involve Jewish teens in meaningful Jewish experiences. For 90 years, BBYO has sought to provide identity enrichment and leadership development for hundreds of thousands of Jewish teens.

“It’s important to emphasize that BBYO is a teen-led movement,” said Brendan George, president of Leviticus AZA in Stamford, Connecticut. “With every program, event and fundraiser being planned by the members, it is inevitable that the youth involved gain skills essential to success in the world today.

“From public speaking, to motivating others, to assessing both the big picture and the intricate details, this is where our leadership begins,” he said.

“Leadership experience as a teenager is an empowering sensation,” said Rachel Katz, president of Tikvah BBG in Stamford. “It inspires, provides confidence and leaves us with a desire to continue to achieve,” she said.

BBYO also has a program for pre-teens in middle school called BBYO Connect. Programs are planned by their advisors.
