In addition to being advocates for the families whose student(s) have experienced antisemitism in school, the Jewish Federation of Greater Portland conducts professional development training for administrators around antisemitism. Specifically, our workshop explores what antisemitism is (and what it is not) from both the far right and far left, how it has evolved over time, and, most importantly, how it is being normalized in society. It also delves into the reasons why antisemitism is often overlooked or even dismissed by those working in the area of diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI).

Facing History and Ourselves

Facing History provides free teaching resources and professional development opportunities that help educators prepare middle and high school students to participate in civic life—using intellect, empathy, ethics, historical case studies and choice to stand up to antisemitism and racism in their own lives, communities, and schools. The contemporary antisemitism team at Facing History creates lessons, explainers, videos, webinars and educator training about current manifestations of antisemitism; its various impacts; how it intersects with other forms of racism and bigotry; and what we can do to combat this particular form of hate. Anyone who creates a Facing History account can access these resources.

Our mental-health clinicians strive to provide a safe space for targets or victims of antisemitic behavior. We strive, further, to ensure the space provided is informed, clinically appropriate and allows clients the ability to address shock, grief and other psychological responses to traumatic experiences generally and antisemitism specifically.

StandWithUs offers a variety of programs and resources to address the rise in antisemitic incidents throughout the culture, many of which take place in our schools. Our Center for Combating Antisemitism, Saidoff Legal Department, Campus Department, and High School Department offer strategy meetings, policy analysis, legal and/or moral clarity letters to administrators and school boards, publicity campaigns, and legal education to inform both students and parents about their rights when facing antisemitism. When necessary, we make use of available legal tools, including Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, to address unlawful antisemitic activity, especially on university campuses. Our Research and Strategy Department tracks governmental action as it relates to antisemitism and reviews educational materials for antisemitic bias, and our Holocaust Education Center provides innovative and customizable Holocaust-related presentations, as well as lesson plans for educators to deliver these programs themselves.

Western States Center envisions inclusive democratic movements and societies rooted in justice and equity. We strengthen the organizing capacity of often-marginalized communities, provide training and capacity support to social justice movement leaders, and help communities and civil society effectively respond to anti-democratic social movements. As part of our Momentum program, we work with schools, educators, parents, caregivers, and youth to push back on hate in schools and build inclusive and safe school communities.
