We continue to offer the community truly meaningful experiences through our expanded programming and events.

Jeannie Opdyke-Smith’s empowering story of her mother’s journey as a Righteous Gentile at two recent Women’s Philanthropy events is an example of what one person’s compassion can do to save many lives. See page 7 for photos from the events.

Our annual campaign kickoff brought “The Soap Myth,” starring Ed Asner, a concert reading that reminded us to never forget that there is still so much we can learn from the Holocaust and our pledge of never again. See page 8 for more information from our kickoff.

A panel of speakers on the history of The Power of Protest movement to Free Soviet Jews shared firsthand experiences this spring. See page 12 for a recap of the series.

The opportunity to learn something, see something and taste something Israeli was offered to the entire community during a free celebration of Israel called Israel in the Park. See photos from our event on page 6.

Our partner organizations and agencies are also able to share in our increased engagement goals by providing educational experiences through our collaboration grants. Learn more about this year’s recipients on page 16.

These programs and events help strengthen Jewish identity, and there are other ways we contribute to this outside of the Indianapolis community. We are fortunate to have funded many Jewish overnight camp experiences and Israel trips for our youth and young adults. According to our Indianapolis Jewish Community Study, 17 percent of Jewish children age 6-17 attended/worked at a Jewish overnight camp in 2017. We also know that 52 percent of Jewish households contain a person who visited Israel, including 32 percent who visited with a Jewish group. Lastly, we know people are more likely to be Jewishly involved if someone in their immediate family has been to Israel. This year we have given out $44,412 for camp and Israel trips, which is an increase in grants and needs than in 2018.

Along with the Israel and camp scholarships, we also provide additional endowment scholarships. You can see this year’s recipients on page 5.

Our next big community event is the Indianapolis Jewish and Israeli Film Festival in August. I love films because they allow us the opportunity to explore and be transported into different Jewish experiences. I encourage you to join others for one or more of these spectacular films. For more information on the film festival check out pages 14 and 15.

I look forward to sharing in these experiences with you.

I am very honored and humbled to serve as the incoming President of the Board of Directors for our Jewish Federation of Greater Indianapolis (JFGI).

One of the reasons I began volunteering at the Bureau of Jewish Education almost 20 years ago was due to the passion I have for Jewish education and the friendships that I had made with other preschool parents. Many of these same friends remain active volunteers performing vital roles with JFGI.

It is extremely rewarding to be engaged with other leaders in the Jewish community who are all striving to support the many important initiatives of JFGI and the important work of all of our agencies. I am increasingly amazed by the breadth and depth of our impact, which is a testament to the hard working JFGI staff and the dedicated lay leaders who devote considerable time and financial resources in support of our Jewish Federation of Greater Indianapolis.

I want to specifically thank Mike Rubin who has provided outstanding leadership as President of our Board of Directors.

I would also like to thank and acknowledge the other Board Officers from this past year: Karen Rothbaum, Brad Gershman, Jim Schwarz, Leslie Rubin, Helen Kurlander Goldstein, Diane Lutz, and Stacy Segal.

I would be remiss if I did not express my heart-felt gratitude to Offer Korin, past President of JFGI, I have always been inspired by Offer’s insightful leadership and his vision many years ago to establish the ATID leadership program. Thank you to Michelle Korin for all the work she has successfully done with women’s philanthropy and our Israel Partnership.

Most importantly, I would like to thank my husband Steve for being my partner in everything and our children for their love and support of time away from home.

As President, one of my main objectives will be to re-imagine the JFed campus with the launch of a capital campaign in the coming years. This project will help us meet the evolving needs of our young families and vibrant community. Along with my Capital Campaign co-chairs Brad Bell and David Kleiman, we are excited for the upcoming launch of this transformational project.

Thank you again for the opportunity to serve our community and I look forward to the next two years!
At a 2016 LIFE & LEGACY event, the featured speaker, Amy Hirschberg Lederman, asked the audience, “What has to exist in a Jewish community for Jewish life to continue?” She then explained that “your answer will lead you to the place where you should put your heart and your support.”

Susan Moss walked away from Lederman’s speech empowered by this question. Susan’s answer was to make a LIFE & LEGACY commitment to both the Jewish Federation and Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation where she and her husband, Jack, have been active for many years.

In addition, Susan recently joined the Jewish Federation’s Endowment Scholarship Committee, which funds educational grants annually to support Jewish young adults in our community. The scholarship process included interviews with potential recipients who had remarkable resumes and are doing some extraordinary volunteer activities in our community. The experience made Susan consider what was important to ensure the continuity of Jewish life in Indianapolis.

“What has to exist in a Jewish community aren’t the agencies — it’s the people who make up the agencies. It’s the children with the interest in giving back to the community. It’s what it was that created such a passion in these children that made them feel so Jewish, [that] make[s] them want to be a part of the Jewish community and make sure the future of that Jewish community continue[s].”

Susan believes that our community needs to work harder so that our children truly experience their Judaism, which is one reason why they made a legacy commitment to the Jewish Federation and their synagogue. We need to surround them with as many Jewish experiences as we can provide. Children are our future because their decisions, along with generations to come, will determine Jewish life, she said.

Endowed gifts allow JFGI to provide needed financial support to young Jewish minds in the greater Indianapolis community. Congratulations to 2019’s scholarship and internship recipients!

Yom Hazikaron
ISRAEL MEMORIAL DAY

This year’s community Israeli Memorial Day program on May 7 carried a theme of “siblings in mourning and grief,” meaning those who have lost a sibling who served in the Israeli Armed Forces. One week prior to this momentous event, 700 missiles fell in southern Israel and four fathers were killed during Terrorist missile attacks, giving this evening a deeper level of pain and loss.

I felt honored to have been given the privilege of representing Israel in Indianapolis. Most of all I had the opportunity to pay respects to my uncle, my mother’s brother, who perished as a young soldier of the Israel Defense Forces, many years ago.

I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks and appreciation to all of our volunteers who assisted in bringing this inspiring evening to fruition. Whether through song, dance, prayer, or reciting the meaningful texts — I thank you for being a part of it. A huge thank you to all those who helped with organization and logistics, ensuring the success of this beautiful evening.

May the memory of all the souls perished be a blessing and a source of comfort to all of Israel.

Empowering Women by Coming Together

On April 15 and 16, Women’s Philanthropy hosted two events with acclaimed presenter Jeannie Opdyke Smith. She told her mother, Irene Gut Opdyke’s story of bravery and sacrifice saving Jewish lives in the Holocaust.

At the Common Threads event on April 15, Smith was joined after her talk by Lindsey Mintz, Executive Director of the Jewish Community Relations Council, and Amber Maze, JFGI’s Holocaust Education and Program Coordinator. Megan Maurer moderated a conversation about the need for Holocaust continuing education coupled with the continued increase of antisemitism and bias incidents.

The next day, April 16, Smith spoke at the Lion of Judah and Pomegranate Recognition luncheon. Co-chairs Angela Grabovsky and Marina Grabovsky also shared their stories of how JFGI helped them settle in Indianapolis as new immigrants from the Former Soviet Union, and how much it means to them that they can now give back as leaders and donors.

The group honored Gigi Mark Felsher, who was a Kipnis-Wilson Friedland honoree at the 2019 International Lion of Judah Conference in January in Miami.

The Jewish Federation of Greater Indianapolis kicked off the community’s 2019 Annual Campaign on April 30. The evening featured a National Tour performance of “The Soap Myth,” a play by Jeff Cohen, starring seven-time Emmy Award winner and five-time Golden Globe winner Ed Asner.

Dinner speaker David Bernstein, the President and CEO of the Jewish Council for Public Affairs, spoke on the alarming rise of antisemitism and discrimination. JFGI CEO Debby Barton Grant and JCRC Executive Director Lindsey Mintz shared how our community is responding locally to these threats.

Mayor Jim Brainard welcomed the more than 140 guests who attended the 2019 Major Gifts Dinner prior to the performance, with the room filled to capacity. More than 600 guests attended the special performance of “The Soap Myth” that followed. Ed Asner’s portrayal of a Holocaust survivor in the performance, said to be the crowning achievement of his illustrious career, was a fitting tribute to Holocaust Remembrance Day.

The dinner, performance, and dessert reception with the cast were hosted at the Palladium at the Center for the Performing Arts in Carmel, sponsored by The National Bank of Indianapolis and in partnership with the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council, CANDLES Holocaust Museum and Education Center, Ted Green Films, and WFYI.

Following the 2019 Major Gifts Dinner and Annual Campaign Kickoff Event, the 2019 Annual Campaign is at $1.8 million THANK YOU!

Antisemitism
THE WORLD’S LONGEST HATRED
AND HOW WE’RE ADDRESSING
IT IN GREATER INDIANAPOLIS

In 2018, the Anti-Defamation League recorded 1,879 antisemitic incidents in the U.S., including the deadliest attack on Jews in U.S. history with the massacre of 11 Jewish worshippers at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh.

While the Jewish community has always known antisemitism, we find ourselves today confronting it in ways we’ve not witnessed in nearly two generations.

Our community is addressing the growth in incidents and the increase in needs through the work of the JCRC, which is supported by the JFGI Annual Campaign and contributions to our Combatting Antisemitism Fund.

In 2018, JCRC successfully launched several new programs under our Stand Up! Speak Out! Initiative, which proactively prepare young Jews, as well as their families and teachers, for the realities of 21st-century antisemitism.

Stand Up! Speak Out!

JCRC’s proactive programs to help Jewish youth effectively confront antisemitism and thoughtfully engage on Israel, as well as resources and training to help educators teach accurately about Jews, Judaism, Israel, and antisemitism.

STUDENT TO STUDENT

Jewish teens speak to their high school peers about Jewish practices and what it’s like to be Jewish today.

Student to Student trains Jewish 10th, 11th, and 12th grade teens to give joint presentations about what it’s like to be Jewish, in high school classrooms without a Jewish presence. Student to Student offers an indispensable opportunity to have non-Jewish students learn about other teens who might be different from themselves by listening and asking questions to peers their own age. Applications are now open! Contact Marla Topiol at mtopiol@indyjcrc.org with questions or apply at https://indyjcrc.org/ief.

ISRAEL ENGAGEMENT FELLOWSHIP

An intensive 8-week seminar for Jewish teens to learn about Israel so they can confidently engage on these issues in college.

During this 8-session fellowship, 10th, 11th, and 12th grade students explore content-rich materials on Israel’s history, achievements, and challenges. Fellows also learn how to identify and effectively confront antisemitism and anti-Zionism, learn how to have constructive conversations about Israel, and hear directly from speakers who represent a range of national Jewish organizations. Upon earning their Certificate of Completion, students receive a $250 stipend. Applications are due Sept. 4! Contact Marla Topiol at mtopiol@indyjcrc.org for more information.

WORDS TO ACTION

This ADL workshop empowers Jewish youth with effective responses to combat antisemitism and anti-Israel bias.

ACCURATE CURRICULUM

Free curricular resources and training so educators can teach accurately about Jews, Judaism, Jewish history, Israel, and the Arab-Israeli conflict.
This year Indy Pride partnered with the Greater Indianapolis Jewish community to have their first official Shabbat at Pride! This was an exciting way to bring the Jewish community and Indy Pride together. We are thrilled to also be partnering on our opening night with Indy Pride for the Israel & Jewish Film Festival during the screening of Signs of Love. More information on the film festival can be found on pages 14 and 15. If you are interested in how the Jewish community is engaging with the LGBTQ+ community and building inclusive spaces, please contact Aaron Welcher at awelcher@indyjcrc.org.

ROHINGYA ENGAGEMENT

In early 2019, the JCRC joined the national Jewish Rohingya Justice Network (JRJN) to help address the Rohingya genocide & refugee crisis that is currently happening. Also, in early 2019, Senator Todd Young authored the Burma Human Rights Act of 2019, which addresses the ongoing crisis and places sanctions on Burma’s government and military.

The JCRC was proud to partner with OBAT Helpers, Muslim Alliance of Indiana, Congregation Beth-El Zedeck, and Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation for an interfaith iftar (breaking of the fast for Ramadan) that helped raise money to directly support the Rohingya people. The event saw more than 100 people of all faith backgrounds come together.

Keynote speakers were Rabbi Jeff Glickman and his wife Mindy, who have been active in fighting the injustices happening to the Rohingya people. An example of their efforts was building a community kitchen named, Edie’s Kitchen, in the camps.

What is Kavod?

In Hebrew, the word kavod means to honor or respect. It is the philosophy of Jewish Family Services (JFS) that there is no one more worthy of our honor or respect than the Holocaust Survivors who live among us.

Since launching the KAVOD initiative in 2016, JFS staff have identified and assisted over 100 Holocaust Survivors in our community!

Through focus groups, individual conversations, and surveys, JFS staff spent significant time simply learning about the population, identifying their needs and their hopes, and building trusting relationships. Much of the success going forward can be credited back to this process that allowed survivors to take part in the program-design, a process that promoted self-dignity and self-expression.

Passionate Yoga Instructors, Enthusiasts Start Monthly KAVOD Yoga Program

Local Holocaust survivors are aligning their minds and bodies through a new monthly yoga series, thanks to a generous donation to KAVOD.

Svetlana Berman learned of the KAVOD program through her friend, Katya Klaucz, the KAVOD program coordinator. She was going through a teacher-in-training course at Body Mind & Core yoga studio in Carmel, Ind., and thought bringing the yoga practice to this group was a match made in heaven.

“I admired the people in this group, their stories and their perseverance,” Svetlana said. “I thought that it was a great cause for the community to create a program, helping Holocaust survivors in their everyday life.”

Svetlana and her husband Solomon also have a personal connection to KAVOD. Solomon’s mother, Lubov Berman, was a holocaust survivor from the Former Soviet Union. She passed away last year and in her honor, the Berman’s donated $800 to help support the Yoga program. The funds help support group-transportation, instructor-fees (if/when applicable), and the purchase of additional supplies should the class grow. They also donated an additional $240, which went to purchasing 20 “kits” containing Yoga balls and stretch bands for the participants.

“It is very important for me and my wife that our kids and grandkids and all the generations to come will never forget the tragic events of the Holocaust,” Solomon said. “We want to share my Mom’s story, telling about her strong character that helped her not only survive, but to prevail in a very difficult circumstances. Every year there are less and less Holocaust survivors left, and we hope that this example will touch the hearts of other people in the community and they can contribute to this Yoga program in the future.”

Svetlana worked with the studio owner and fellow classmates in facilitating the first yoga session on a volunteer-basis. Participants loved it so much, they decided to continue the series. While the first class happened at Body Mind & Core, the class now takes place monthly at the JFGI Education and Engagement Center, where KAVOD has their own meeting space. Instructors take turns teaching the classes.

Why Yoga? Through Svetlana’s training course, she learned that modern yoga consists of several limbs, it is not only the sequences of poses. The word “yoga” means union in Sanskrit. It teaches us to unite our emotions, thoughts, physical power into one balanced healthy human being, and be in union with the community.
“I thought they would enjoy the exercises, like learning something new and being together. Benefits of movement, breathing and mindfulness are just a few to mention,” she said.

Studio instructor Laura Thompson, helped Svetlana get the Yoga KAVOD program on its feet. “Dedicating my time to serving others is something that I haven’t done enough of throughout my life,” Thompson said. “I want to use my passion for yoga to make a positive impact on the human condition.”

While Thompson doesn’t have a personal connection to the Holocaust, she is aware of the tragic events that transpired during that time, and understands how Yoga can increase the livelihood of survivors. “Most of them live alone and only socialize with others when they are out with this group. We end every yoga class by giving each member in attendance a face, neck, and shoulder massage. Physical touch promotes human connection and healing. Through this simple act, we are showing them that they are seen, loved, and appreciated. You can see the change on their faces. The impact that this seemingly simple gesture has on their psyche. It’s truly heartwarming and I’m honored to be a part of it,” she said.

During each Yoga series, the instructor demonstrates the poses, while Katya translates to those who don’t speak English. Modifications for specific health issues and a chair yoga flow are also used to cater to each participant.

Christy Rogers, who was part of the yoga-instructor trainees group at Body Mind & Core, was happy to combine her love for Yoga with her passion for helping Indianapolis’ elderly population. “When I taught the yoga class to the KAVOD group, it gave me such pleasure to see smiles on their faces and in their eyes as they moved their bodies, chatted with one another and simply just enjoyed their time,” she said. “People are living longer which is so fortunate but we need to help them live with quality, comfort & enjoyment & I very much believe a large part of that is being active & social.”

All of the instructors have one message. “We hope that other members of the community will continue this initiative and donate to keep this class going, perhaps naming their reasons as a dedication.”

DEAR GOD - 6 P.M.
Israel, 2014; drama; Hebrew (with English subtitles); 13 minutes
One day, a beautiful, mysterious woman puts a note between the holy stones of the Western Wall in Jerusalem. Aaron, a guard, decides to fulfill her deepest wish. From Oscar-winning filmmaker Guy Nattiv.

THE INVISIBLES
Germany, 2017; drama; German (with English subtitles); 110 minutes
In June 1943, Germany declared Berlin “judenfrei”—free of Jews. But at that moment there were still 7,000 Jews living in the Nazi capital: hiding in attics, basements, and warehouses, protected by courageous Berliners while desperately trying to avoid deportation. Only 1,700 lived to liberation. The Invisibles tells the stories of four survivors, interweaving their testimony with dramatizations of their years spent underground.

JFGI is excited to announce the awardees of this year’s JFGI Education Grants and see what will blossom from the creative program ideas being planted in our community through these grants, both figuratively and literally. For a second year, JFGI is building the capacity of our communal partners to implement new Jewish educational programs through JFGI Education Grants.

Thanks go to the Jewish Learning Committee for directing the grant development and selection process with a special thanks to Deb Atlas, Jane Morrison, and Nonie Vonnegut-Gabovitch for heading up this initiative.

JFGI Education Collaboration Grants focus on promoting synergistic programming that builds community and a sense of belonging among learners of all ages in the Greater Indianapolis Jewish Community. This year, six JFGI Collaboration Grants of up to $1,800 each were awarded. The focus of this year’s JFGI Innovation Grants was geographic innovation and encouraging organizations to develop new programming that will expand beyond the walls of the buildings in which our Jewish community organizations traditionally meet. Five JFGI Innovation Grants of up to $4,000 each were awarded for ongoing projects focused on innovative programming designed to enrich our community and reach people who are currently unaffiliated by meeting learners where they are.

It is worth noting that two of the grant recipient projects involve planting, with one focused on Jewish learning through pollinator gardens and another connecting gardening with the work of Popsie’s Pantry. Congratulations to the communal educational partners who are 2019 JFGI Education Grant recipients: Congregation Beth Shalom, Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, Congregation Beth-El Zedeck, BBYO, IFTY, Indiana Jewish Discovery Center, PJ Library, HHAI, Moishe Pod Indy, JCC, NEXTGen, JCRC, and JFS. May all of your wonderful projects blossom and bear fruitful learning paired with meaningful engagement in the coming year!

JFGI Grinspoon Award for Excellence in Jewish Education

The Indianapolis Jewish community is fortunate to be home to many excellent Jewish educators, both those whose entire career centers around Jewish education and others who volunteer their time to educate youth in our community on a part-time basis. JFGI is pleased to be able to partner with the Grinspoon Foundation to annually recognize an outstanding local Jewish educator and celebrate the enormous impact educators have on our community.

For the second year in a row, the BJE Endowment Committee, has generously allocated funds to support the JFGI Grinspoon Award for Excellence in Jewish Education. This year the nominees were so strong that the selection committee asked its three finalists, Bob Fields from Congregation Beth-El Zedeck, Rabbi Tzuriel Gluck from HHAI, and Jennifer Warriner from Congregation Beth Shalom, to submit a demonstration of their teaching in order to make a final decision. At JFGI’s Annual Meeting, it was announced that Rabbi Tzuriel Gluck, a second and fifth grade Judaics teacher who has been working at HHAI for the past 11 years is this year’s winner. One of the features that made his teaching so exemplary is that he incorporates technology into his teaching of Torah, thereby promoting student engagement and creativity.

STEVEN SPIELBERG: A LIFE IN FILMS
By Molly Haskell
A film-centric portrait of the extraordinarily gifted movie director whose decades-long influence on American popular culture is unprecedented. Haskell shows how Spielberg’s uniquely evocative filmmaking and story-telling reveal the many ways in which his life, work, and times are entwined. Organizing chapters around specific films, the distinguished critic discusses how Spielberg’s childhood in non-Jewish suburbs, his parents’ traumatic divorce, his return to Judaism upon his son’s birth, and other events echo in his work.

JEWS ON THE FRONTIER:
RELIGION AND MOBILITY IN NINETEENTH-CENTURY AMERICA
By Shari Rabin
Jews on the Frontier offers a religious history that begins in an unexpected place: on the road. Shari Rabin recounts the journey of Jewish people as they left Eastern cities and ventured into the American West and South during the nineteenth century. It brings to life the successes and obstacles of these travels, from the unprecedented economic opportunities to the anonymity and loneliness that complicated the many legal obligations of traditional Jewish life. Without government-supported communities or reliable authorities, where could one procure kosher meat? Alone in the American wilderness, how could one find nine co-religionists for a minyan (prayer quorum)? Without identity documents, how could one really know that someone was Jewish? Winner, 2017 National Jewish Book Award in American Jewish Studies from the Jewish Book Council.

The Weaponization of Hatred

JFGI’S SUMMER PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

On July 10-11, educators from all across the state will join JFGI, CANDLES Holocaust Museum, and USC Shoah Foundation for a professional development workshop at the JCC.

DAY ONE OF THE WORKSHOP will be geared toward educators new to teaching the Holocaust, with USC Shoah Foundation providing the plenary session on how to integrate a wide range of resources into the classroom in a developmentally appropriate manner. One of the major resources we will preview is USC Shoah Foundation’s IWitness database, which contains thousands of witness testimonies from the Holocaust and other contemporary genocides.

DAY TWO OF THE WORKSHOP will delve a little deeper into the roots of the Holocaust, with a focus on the causal relationship between propaganda, hate speech, and genocide. Special guest Kris Haugh from the Center for Genocide Research and Education will discuss how propaganda is often used to dehumanize a population, making societal complicity in genocide more probable. Educators also have the option to choose from three different breakout sessions on each day of the workshop. These sessions range from Pre-war Jewish Life and Culture to Propaganda and Hate Speech during the Rwandan Genocide.

By the end of the workshop, teachers will be able to identify and teach about key events that weaponized hatred into discrimination and genocide during the Holocaust; effectively use first-person testimony as a tool for teaching about the Holocaust; and teach students how to identify propaganda in current media and link their study of the history of propaganda to the imperative to speak out against it today.

Professional development workshops are not the only Holocaust educational resources offered by JFGI. JFGI has been able to impact more than 3,000 people since January 2019 through the Holocaust Speakers Bureau. Look for more programming next school year!

YoPhi Service Learning

Thank you to all the third through eighth graders who came out on June 2 to help create the communal Genizah (a burial site for sacred books and ritual objects). The participants worked hard to give a dignified retirement to the books that have helped enrich our community over the years. Participants got a little dirty digging out the burial site and decorating rocks to mark this addition to our Jewish Community Campus. Be sure to check out their hard work the next time you are on the campus.

YoPhi Teen Board Grants Almost $5,000

Congratulations to the 13 Teen Board Members of the 2018-2019 YoPhi Teen Board on their inaugural grant allocations! The Teen Board Members gathered with family, friends and community members for a celebration of their philanthropy as the teens shared reflections from their year. The Teen Board elected to support the Jewish Community Relation Council’s “Student to Student” and the Boys & Girls Clubs of Indianapolis’s “Power Hour” programs to further their mission of empowering youth through education that promotes appreciation of diversity, a strong sense of community, and empathy.

As the YoPhi Teen Board has completed its inaugural year, the 2019-2020 cohort kickoff is right around the corner. Be sure to catch the newest teen board members at upcoming community events including Super Sunday (Sept 15) and be on the lookout for their mission statement and request for proposals later in the fall.

 IU Hillel stands with Israel

One of the most impactful programs that Indiana University Hillel sponsors annually is Israelpalooza, a block party festival celebrating Israeli life and culture. This year’s program was presented on April 1 and was held in Alumni Hall at the Indiana Memorial Union. It was especially successful. Here are the impressions of 2 students about the event.

“Israelpalooza in my eyes is one of the most important events that occurs at Indiana University each year. It is the largest event that we have for all of the Jewish and Pro-Israel organizations to come together and work towards a common goal of facilitating an environment for education and engagement with Israeli history, culture, and spirit. I believe that it is extremely important to continue having this event at IU each year, especially as we see rising antisemitism and anti-Israel activity around our country and around the globe. It is a chance for all Jewish students, as well as non-Jewish students to come together to learn and experience a bit of Israel for themselves, and see what makes it such a unique and important place for Jews.” said Ben Axelrod, class of 2019, 2018-19 Student Board of Directors, Israel VP.

Students look forward to Israelpalooza and spend the entire semester planning this important program. Israelpalooza provides an excellent opportunity for IU Hillel to partner with strong Israel organizations from across the country. All of Hillel’s Israel clubs and campus partners offered tables and activities celebrating Israel.

“Israelpalooza demonstrates that the Indiana University student body stands with Israel culturally, politically, and spiritually. With dozens of booths representing major Israel-related organizations, everyone was invited to discover their personal connection to Israel. As a member of the Hillel community, the home for all Jewish students at Indiana University, I look forward to helping with this great event in the coming years!” said Rachel Aranyi, IIPAC student president.

BALL STATE HILLEL

During the Fall semester, Ball State Hillel hosted several Shabbat dinners, and while their own holiday activities were otherwise a bit slower than usual during this semester, they had Hillel students participating in Jewish Holiday events at Temple Beth El in Muncie, including High Holiday services, Rosh Hashanah luncheon, Yom Kippur break the fast, Sukkot celebration, and Chanukah party with latke-making contest.

The Spring semester brought renewed vitality and enthusiasm, with a new student president and recruitment of new members. The semester began with a Shabbat dinner, which promoted new members, and had a strong turnout and a nice experience. Built off of the success, they hosted another Shabbat dinner, this time prior to attending a Friday night Shabbat service at Temple Beth El.

To celebrate Purim, they hosted a hamantaschen baking event, and made chocolate covered matzah for an early start for Pesach. Hillel members enjoyed participating in a community Seder at Temple Beth El, and the semester ended with a tabling event to raise awareness about Hillel at Ball State and hopefully gain more members for next year.

For the next school year in the fall, students can look out for activities during welcome week, and a Shabbat dinner, shortly thereafter.

Overall, it has been an exciting year at Ball State Hillel. They gained new members and are prepared to continue to grow Jewish life at Ball State!

To depict the dignity and energy of the Remembering the Holocaust event on May 5 in one word is quite challenging! Collaborative, professional, impressive, sophisticated, engaging, organized and timely but a few adjectives overheard from the appreciative gathering of 200 people sharing in the reopening of the Holocaust Museum. Tours were led by students who created the interactive exhibits. Mark Hasten told his riveting story of survival. Music and food prepared by Dina Hasten were enjoyed by all.
