Joelle Abramowitz

Joelle Abramowitz is a New Jersey native who made her way to Ann Arbor in 2016 via Washington DC, Brussels, Hong Kong, Chicago, and Seattle. She is a PhD economist and works as research faculty at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. In her spare time, she is an avid cyclist and bike commuter and also enjoys cooking, baking, hiking, and tangoing. Joelle has held a number of roles in the Jewish communities where she has lived, from teaching Hebrew school to leading services and learning Torah as well as coordinating services and Jewish learning. In addition, she has written for several Jewish online outlets, including jew-ish.com, The Jew, and The Carrot, and Gather DC. She is also currently co-chair of the Limmud MI programming team, on the leadership team of jUnion: The Michigan Graduate Student Union, and an active Moishe House Without Walls host.

Reva Berman

Reva Berman lives in Ypsilanti and works as a Product Content Developer for Johnson & Johnson Health & Wellness Solutions. Reva earned her BA from the University of Michigan and her MPH from UM's School of Public Health. She is always up for exploring the Ann Arbor/Ypsi food scene and checking out the diverse events and activities around Ann Arbor. Reva also blogs for fun and loves staying active, from kayaking on the lake to attending local fitness classes. Serving for her second year on the JYP board, Reva enjoys coming to JYP events to hang out with new and old friends while contributing to the local Jewish community.
