Jewish Federation of Greater Dallas

Kevin Paillet RHU REBC CBC is a founder of the predecessor agency of what is now the Dallas office of the Marsh & McLennan Agency (“MMA”). He founded his own insurance agency in 1996, entered into a partnership in 2006, and led the sale of the company to Marsh & McLennan in 2011.

In his role as President of Employee Health & Benefits, Kevin represents the Southwest region of the Marsh & McLennan Agency on the national employee benefit practice strategic leadership committee to help steer the national strategy for MMA and bring best practices back to the Southwest region to make certain that all MMA clients benefit from the tools, resources, and leverage of the world's largest insurance broker but ensure that they’re still delivered with a unique local touch.

Outside of work, Kevin serves on the national board of directors for the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), where is very active as a citizen lobbyist advocating for government policy in our nation’s capital, and is an officer of the Jewish Federation of Greater Dallas (JFGD), where he works to strengthen our local Jewish community and interfaith outreach. He is former chair of AIPAC’s Dallas Council, former national chair of AIPAC’s New Leadership Network, former chair of the JFGD’s Young Leadership Division, and former member of the JFNA’s National Young Leadership Cabinet. Kevin is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin and lives in Dallas, Texas with his wife, Mahra, and their children Bella, Ethan, and Miller.
