Research issues of trauma, aging, service needs, and PCTI care.

1. Raise awareness about aging with trauma and how PCTI care can help.

2. Raise awareness about experiences and needs of diverse communities.

3. Deepen organizational capacity to provide PCTI care.

4. Build and strengthen PCTI care partnerships.

5. Remove barriers for PCTI service access and utilization.

6. Reduce stigma about trauma and service utilization.

7. Reduce stigma about trauma and service utilization.

9 out of 10 American older adults have been exposed to a traumatic event in their lifetime.1

42 million Americans provide care to older adults.2

Providing care for a family member or friend with a history of trauma can increase the complexity associated with caregiving.

Aging with a History of Trauma: Strategies to Provide Person-Centered, Trauma-Informed Care to Older Adults and Family Caregivers

Person-Centered, Trauma-Informed Care Can Help

How You Can Help

1. Research issues of trauma, aging, service needs, and PCTI care.

2. Raise awareness about aging with trauma and how PCTI care can help.

3. Raise awareness about experiences and needs of diverse communities.

4. Deepen organizational capacity to provide PCTI care.

5. Build and strengthen PCTI care partnerships.

6. Remove barriers for PCTI service access and utilization.

7. Reduce stigma about trauma and service utilization.

To ensure all older adults with a history of trauma and their family caregivers have access to the care they need and deserve, consider how you can advance PCTI care in the aging services sector.

Read the Full Report

Visit Our Website

AgingandTrauma.org

This work is supported by the Administration for Community Living (ACL), United States Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) as part of a financial assistance award totaling $5,922,000 with 75% funded by ACL/HHS and $1,974,000 and 25% funded by non-government source(s). The contents are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily represent the official views of, nor an endorsement, by ACL/HHS, or the United States Government.

Everyone has an important role to play in increasing and improving PCTI care. No action is too small. Every step that advances PCTI care is one that advances the entire field of aging services.