or many of us, a favourite part of the Passover Seder is singing the raucous song, dayenu. After reciting a good portion of the “order” part of the Seder, and just before the Hallel and the meal, we finally reach a part that is familiar to most, especially the children. We begin to sing. Everyone has his or her own way of reciting it – some of us say each and every word, and skip the odd dayenu, while others of us sing primarily (or only) those words of appreciation – dayenu – “it would have been enough” or “it would have sufficed.” Often we engage in speed singing, loud singing and, certainly, familiar singing.

But why? Why do we acknowledge, over and over, that it “would have been enough.” In fact, within the song, we express our gratitude for fifteen different acts of kindness that G-d did for us in our exile, each one in and of itself worthy of thanks. Each one, even without the following one, presents a case to be appreciative. In aggregate, all of them surely warrant our thanks. However, we can also ask “is sufficiency enough?” If G-d had led us to Mount Sinai, it wouldn’t have been enough. G-d had to give us the Torah.

“Is sufficiency enough?” If G-d had given us the Torah, wouldn’t have been enough. G-d had to give us the Torah. And so on. Is sufficiency really enough?

We are incredibly fortunate to live in Canada, a home that provides us with the freedom to live our lives openly, to practice religiously as we wish, to challenge and / or support our governmental systems, and to build the lives we want to live. We could say dayenu. It’s enough. But if we were to say dayenu, we would be selling all of that opportunity short. To say we are free is not enough, when so many are not.

Although we must certainly be grateful for all that we have here in Canada, in Canada, we must also recognize that each act and opportunity leads to, and builds on the next. The fact that we are free to live, to vote, to voice our opinions, and more, provides us with the strength and opportunities to do more, to be more, to create more.

Because we have the freedoms we do, we have the ability to build on those freedoms to make our society a better place. When we sing the Passover dayenu song, we see that the successes we have had despite great adversity, and the bold journey that ultimately brought the Jewish people to the land of Israel. We read and learn about the actions of less than likely leaders, and about miracles. During Passover, let us all reflect on the rich story of the Exodus, on the many challenges and successes our ancestors have had over thousands of years, and our own personal challenges in today’s current era. While being grateful is incredibly important, there is no dayenu without actions or events that follow. Let us be mindful of all that we have, the freedom afforded to us by living in Canada, and the very bright future we are building for ourselves and each other, but let us also be aware that without perpetual action and motion, sufficiency becomes mediocrity. If we do not actively exercise our freedom, are we truly free?

We are a tremendous Jewish community, with even more to accomplish in the coming years. Let us continue to support one another, inspire Jewish living, and ensure the story of Passover continues to be shared from generation to generation.

Chag Pesach Kasher V’Sameach – on behalf of the board and staff of Calgary Jewish Federation, I wish you and yours a happy and kosher Passover.

Adam Silver, CEO, Calgary Jewish Federation

Attention Israeli Citizens

The Israeli consul is coming to Calgary May 15.

If you need to renew passports for children, change marital status, or anything else that requires a personal appearance, please email Judy Shapiro at jshapiro@jewishcalgary.org with the following information: full names of children or other applicant, teudat zehut numbers, phone and email contact info, and reason you are requesting a meeting.

ISRAEL MOVIE NIGHT

On March 30, Hillel hosted an Israel Movie Night on the UofC campus. Fifteen Jewish students watched a challenging movie – The Invisible Men, engaged in a thoughtful discussion and ate excellent Israeli food (thanks Karen!). Watch out for the next Hillel event!

PYJAMA DRIVE

From April 4-7, Hillel and AEPI partnered together for a Pyjama Drive, collecting warm clothing for those in need. Thirteen extra large bags of pyjamas were donated, with clothes going to Children’s Cottage Society, Safe House Youth Shelter, Young Women Christian Association, GoodWill and the Mustard Seed. The organizers hope to make the drive a tradition after the success of this year.

Forty-eight lively children and 60 parents and grandparents celebrated Pesach early with PJ Library®’s Chag Sameach program on April 3. The first of the Chag Sameach programs sponsored by Sam and Ida Switzer was an overwhelming success. Not only did families have a great time learning with Amy Goldberg and singing with Karina Szulc, they went home with many ideas for a happy and fun Pesach holiday!

There is no charge but registration is required. Contact Kathie Wainer at kwainer@jewishcalgary.org or 403-537-8592.
