

Hate Spaces:

The Politics of Intolerance on Campus

“The Normalization of Hatred in the Name of Social Justice”

Hate Spaces is not just a film: it’s a key part of a campaign designed to galvanize support for Jewish students on campuses across the country. Our goal is to educate the Jewish community and its leadership about the urgent need to provide equal protection for and equal treatment of Jewish students on campus.

The situation on campus is a scandal, a massive failure of University administrators.

As former Harvard President Lawrence Summers has noted: “There is hypersensitivity to prejudice against most minority groups but what might be called hyper-insensitivity to anti-Semitism.”

Many have heard about “the situation on campus,” but few in the media have gone beyond reporting specific incidents. Hate Spaces connects the dots: these are not isolated incidents - there is a well-organized, well-financed campaign, which leverages the radical infrastructure in academia to delegitimize Israel.

The film illustrates how the “new anti-Semitism,” masquerading as anti-Zionism, is being made fashionable – is actually being institutionalized – at many American universities. Israel has become the lightning rod for a diverse coalition of radical political activists who mask their bigoted attacks on Israel as political discourse in support of social justice.

No other minority would accept what Jews seem willing to tolerate on campus, where too often “diversity” and “safe spaces” become reasons for the exclusion of Jews. Jewish leadership must not abandon the next generation of Jews. We need your help to educate our community, and to encourage America’s civic leadership to take action. We need your help to promote this film.

Suggested script:

“I’m calling/writing because I am deeply concerned about the mounting hostility toward Jews in America. The recent vandalizing of cemeteries and bomb threats against Jewish day schools have received significant attention, yet hostility toward Jewish students on campuses goes mostly unreported.

Radical professors are using the classroom to spread anti-Israel propaganda. Radical students and outside groups use the “social justice” movement to demonize the Jewish state and its supporters.

Jews are being harassed and intimidated. Jewish students have been physically assaulted, pro-Israel events are disrupted. Jewish students are denied free speech and a non-hostile learning environment.

In too many cases, campus administrators ignore the attacks on Jews who are not afforded the same protections as every other minority group on campus. This must stop. Please see the trailer from a new documentary being screened around the country www.hatespaces.com
