

PJ Library Edible Sukkah Kit HOW-TO

Earlier this month, PJ Library distributed Edible Sukkah Kits to families throughout our community to help celebrate the traditional harvest festival of Sukkot. While the holiday will be coming to an end by the time you read this, you can still celebrate on your own with the instructions below!

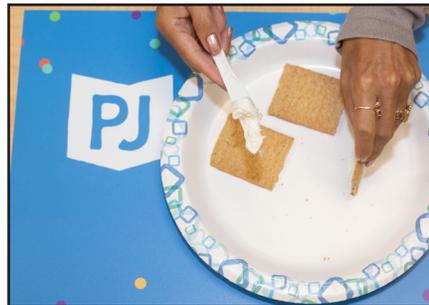

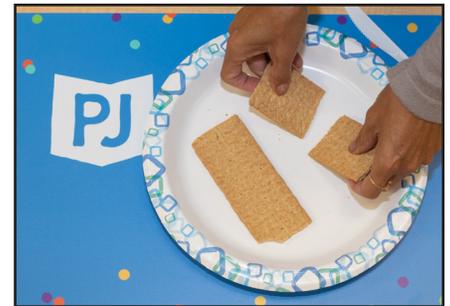

Here are the “building materials” that we used to build our Sukkah. We use graham crackers for the “walls,” pretzel sticks for the “schach” (roof), frosting as “cement” and Trix cereal as decoration.

If you prefer, you can use other materials for cement like cream cheese, peanut butter, or another tasty choice to keep your Sukkah standing tall!

Start with two full graham crackers.

Take each graham cracker and break in half so that you have a total of four equal-sized half pieces of graham cracker. We will only use three so feel free to eat the fourth piece!

Next, take your “cement” material (frosting, peanut butter, or other) and apply to an edge of the graham cracker. This will help your “walls” to stand upright.

Firmly press the graham cracker onto the plate so it stays standing.

Continue the previous step until you have all three “walls” standing. You may need to apply “cement” to both the bottom and sides of each piece of graham cracker so that they connect together.

Add some cement to the roof of your sukkah and add your pretzel sticks as “S’chach.”

S’chach is typically made from things that have “grown from the ground,” like palm leaves or bamboo. Since pretzels come from wheat, which comes from the ground, we believe that it can qualify as a kosher s’chach :)

Time for the finishing touches!

Add Trix cereal or other decoration to the roof of your sukkah to make it as inviting as it is appetizing. You can add some more cement to make sure that the decoration stays on long enough to eat!

Want to get creative? You could add crushed cereal to simulate dirt on the floor of your sukkah, or other candy like Mike & Ike’s, jelly beans, cinnamon candies, and more. Be careful not to put too much weight on your roof!

After you complete (and before you eat) your sukkah, take a photo and send it to Lori at l.rubin@jewishfedhbg.org so we can share it with the rest of the community in our online gallery.

Get creative and feel free to get in the photo with your sukkah!

Time to eat!

We hope you enjoyed creating your sukkah as much as you will enjoy eating it! Thank you for celebrating the holiday of Sukkot with us!
