
Expanding Horizons

as part of the

Anti-Hate Summer Reading Program with Tae Keller

The Exeter Community Library, the Jewish Federation of Reading/Berks, and Bring the Change welcome author Tae Keller to the Anti-Hate Summer Reading Program. Tae Keller grew up in Honolulu, Hawaii, where she subsisted on kimchi, purple rice, and stories. Now, she writes about biracial girls trying to find their voices, and lives in Seattle with her husband and a multitude of books. When You Trap a Tiger is a 2021 Newbery Award winner.

Would you make a deal with a tiger? When Lily and her family move in with her sick grandmother, a magical tiger straight out of her halmoni's Korean folktales arrives, prompting Lily to unravel a secret family history. This program is perfect for tweens, teens, and families. To register, visit: https://us02web.zoom.us/meeting/register/tZYqc-2uqzwvGNU11pmbFyBGw1T3U-B7QgJC

Program funded by You Are Here grant from Berks County Community Foundation.

Anti-Hate Summer Reading Program: Diverse community reading and discussion groups for tweens, teens and adults to define and fight hate and racism and create meaningful positive change in Berks County. Our goal is to expand participants' reading horizons through diverse and thought-provoking literature.
