Salute to World War II vet part of Diversity Night

By Laurie Waxler

As part of our Diversity Night at the Reading Fightin Phils on Sunday, Sept. 3, 3rd, we are proud to honor Henry Singer as our veteran for the game.

The Fightins began honoring veterans at each home game in 2014. The team flies a ceremonial flag by the giant dog tags near FirstEnergy Stadium's main entrance, thanks to Savage 61.

Mr. Singer, 97, has lived the majority of his life here in Berks County. Born in 1926, he was drafted into the Army at age 18 during World War II. Soon after his basic training at Fort Hood, he traveled to England aboard the Queen Mary along with 15,000 other troops. (With her record-breaking speed and size, the Queen Mary was retrofitted to serve as a troop ship during the war and dubbed, the "Grey Ghost.") From there, he was quickly shipped to the Alsace-Lorraine region, a former German territory and now an eastern section of France bordering Germany. Henry was a Private First Class assigned to the 70th Infantry, Company D, and was responsible for heavy weapons including machine guns and mortars.

Once the Germans retreated, Henry's and the other soldiers' roles were reclassified to an "army of occupation" to further protect France. During this time, Henry was advised he qualified to be a West Point candidate, which was a huge honor. Upon receiving this appointment, he was sent back to the United States to go through the rigors of testing, educational opportunities and interviews.

Having spent a summer at Amherst, he met a professor who befriended him and recommended a different educational path. Following that advice, Henry passed on West Point and eventually ended up receiving his education at Colgate University in Hamilton, N.Y. Upon graduation, Henry returned to Berks County to join his father in the Singer Equipment business, which is now run by his son, Fred Singer.

While in the service, Henry received a bronze star, two battle stars, a good conduct medal and a marksman medal. Most recently, he received the French Legion of Honor for having served in France and helping to liberate it to be the country it is today.

Thank you Henry, and all veterans, for your service in our military and for putting your own safety at risk for the freedoms we have here in the U.S.

True crime author kicks off Literatour Berks

By Amanda J. Hornberger

Independence Day weekend, 1960: a young cop is murdered in Stamford, Conn.. More than 60 years later, journalist Lisa Belkin explores the paths of the three men whose lives collided on that summer night.

Belkin is the first author coming to Reading for the fifth season of Literatour Berks. Join us on Wednesday, Sept. 13 at 6 pm at Exeter Community Library where Belkin will discuss her nonfiction book "Genealogy of a Murder: Four Generations, Three Families, One Fateful Night."

How did one grandson of immigrants become the cop, one his killer, and one Belkin's stepfather—a doctor who inadvertently set this shooting into motion? Her canvas is large, spanning the first half of the 20th century: immigration, religion, prison reform, medical experiments, the nature/nurture debate, even the infamous Leopold and Loeb case, and the history of motorcycle racing.

It is also intimate: looking into the workings of the mind and heart, as each family—one Irish, one Italian, one Jewish—experiences the obstacles thrown in the way of immigrants pursuing the "American Dream".

Following these threads to their tragic outcome in July 1960 and beyond, Belkin examines the coincidences and choices that led to one fateful night. The result is a story, which illuminates how we shape history even as we are shaped by it.

Known for tales that are deeply researched and artfully told, Lisa Belkin's career spans three decades—at The New York Times, mostly at the Magazine; also creating the Life's Work column and Motherlode blog and as author of four narrative nonfiction books, including her latest, "Genealogy of a Murder," and "Show Me a Hero," which later became an HBO miniseries.

After her lecture, Belkin will be on hand to sign copies of her books, which will be available for purchase that day.

Registration is recommended by calling the Exeter Community Library at 610-406-9431. Exeter Community Library is located at 4569 Prestwick Drive in Exeter Township.

Thank you to our Literatour Berks sponsors and partner Exeter Community Library for their support!

Support our community at New Year

By Laurie Waxler

Development Director

The New Year is fast approaching, and whether it's the Jewish new year of Rosh Hashanah or the Gregorian calendar's Jan. 1 new year, we all take a step back and think about the past year and what we want to change in the upcoming year. It can be daunting and we always wish for something better, no matter how good or bad the past year has been.

For me it's been a bit of a tough year, having lost important people in my life, yet I always try to be thankful for what I do have. One of those things is the opportunity to build relationships with people through our Federation. Working with the database I know lots of names, but when I come face to face with them, it's always a treat to match those names with faces and personalities.

Federation has a way of bringing people together. I see it with the Friendship Circle group that has been meeting every two weeks for years; having recently lost a longtime member, it's nice to know the group has each other in those difficult times. As we continue to build our youth groups and adult programs such as Noontime Knowledge, our goal is to not only nourish our brains, but to also build those important friendships we all need as we grow older.

As we prepare to send out another 2023 Annual Campaign letter to raise end-of-year funds, I'm hoping everyone reading this will make it their goal of the Jewish New Year to support their Federation. Your financial support allows us to continue supporting our Jewish community and beyond.

LECTURE SERIES

May you be inscribed in the Book of Life

By Brian Chartock CEO

Dear Federation community,

The word Teshuva in Hebrew means "return." During the days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, we are taught to acknowledge our wrongs and to "return" to being the best versions of ourselves through good deeds, acts of kindness and doing repentance. It is with this "kavanah" (best of intentions) that we are taught by our sages to usher in the New Year.

The High Holy Day season is upon us. Judaism teaches that it is incumbent upon us to ask for forgiveness from others. Following that principle, and on behalf of our Federation and myself, I humbly ask for your forgiveness. If you have felt wronged or upset by me, or by something that you felt the Jewish Federation did or did not do, please accept this request for forgiveness.

The Jewish Federation of Reading/

Berks remains guided day in and day out by its core values:

Tzedakah – Charity and Social Justice

Tikkun Olam – Repairing the World Kehillah – Building Community

Torah – Jewish Learning

Through these principles, the Jewish Federation staff, in partnership with our Board, lay leaders, volunteers and community partners strives to do good each and every day. Together, we can turn challenges into opportunities; moreover, it is through these opportunities that we have the greatest chances of success.

The period between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur is referred to in Hebrew as Aseret Yemei Teshuva — the Ten Days of Repentance. Traditionally, we greet one another with the Hebrew phrase G'mar Chatima Tova or G'mar Tov — may you be inscribed in the Book of Life.

On behalf of the Federation community, Shanah Tovah U'Metukah — best wishes for a happy and sweet New Year and ... G'mar Tov.

Learn more about our sacred society

By Cantor Ted Prosnitz

What can make a memory stand out? When there is a strong emotional moment connected to it.

I have a powerful memory of a visit to the Jewish Museum in New York. In a glass showcase there was a small comb. It looked like it was what I thought of as tortoise shell — like something my mother might have had. I read the card next to the object. It said it was a hair comb from a Chevra Kadisha, a burial society. What was so special about a comb that it merited prominent display in this marvelous museum?

The Chevra Kadisha, which in some places is called Chevra shel Emet/Brotherhood of Truth, takes care of preparing a body for interment. A fellowship of volunteers respectfully and lovingly washes and dresses a body for burial. I could only imagine the thoughtfulness and grace involved in using that comb. Its use represented a true act of chesed shel emet, the truest kind of an act of loving-kindness — something done for someone from whom no thank you can be given, none are expected.

Reading/Berks is fortunate to have a Chevra Kadisha/Holy Society. Membership in this sacred society is open to any Jew in the community, irrespective of synagogue affiliation. Men attend men; women attend women. Professor Jacob Neusner movingly wrote about the Chevra Kadisha that cared for his father-in-law who passed away on a trip to Jerusalem:

"Those beautiful Jews showed me more of what it means to be a Jew, of what Torah stands for, than all the books I ever read. They tended the corpse gently and reverently, yet did not pretend it was other than a corpse." At the conclusion of the burial, the head of the society said, "in a loud voice, that the dead should hear, and the living; 'Mordecai ben Menahem, all that we have done is for your honor. And if we have not done our task properly, we beg your forgiveness."

Interest and participation in these sacred societies around the country has increased of late. It is an extraordinarily meritorious act, and extremely meaningful to those who perform it. Acting together, it is an accessible mitzvah that almost anyone can do.

If you would like to know more about our local Chevra Kadisha, or if you would consider helping with this act of kindness/g'milut chasadim, you are most welcome to contact Paul Schwartz, 610-207-5520 or Lisa Levine, 610-507-0569.

Unknown history of Anna Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense

By Amanda J. Hornberger

This spring one of my favorite podcasts featured author Christopher Gorham telling the unique and unknown story of Anna Rosenberg. I was immediately intrigued. It turned out that this Jewish immigrant became one of the most powerful women in World War II by leading the War Manpower Commission. There Rosenberg developed the "Buffalo Plan," which solved multiple problems bedeviling wartime defense manufacturing. Her plan was rolled out

I was thrilled when during this year's Jewish Book Council conference, I saw that Gorham was available and able to share his book "The Confidante: The Untold Story of the Woman Who Helped Win WWII and Shape Modern America."

Christopher Gorham will join us for Noontime Knowledge on Tuesday, Sept. 19, at the JCC. I know our community will be fascinated to learn the history of Anna Rosenberg. Her rise into the highest political echelons was notable not only because she was a woman at a time when such roles were largely filled by men, but also because she was a Jewish immi¬grant who had come to New York from Hungary in 1912.

At age 33 Rosenberg became Regional Director for New York of President Roosevelt's New Deal agency, the NRA. This was only the beginning, however. Rosenberg went on to serve Roosevelt in various capacities, and she continued her service with Presidents Truman, Eisenhower (mostly behind the scenes), Kennedy, and Johnson, eventually reaching the pinnacle of her career as Assistant Secretary of Defense.

Come learn more about this amazing, yet unknown, Jewish woman in American history on Sept. 19 at noon at the JCC!

Christopher C. Gorham is a lawyer and teacher of modern American history at Westford Academy, outside Boston. He has degrees in history from Tufts University and the University of Michigan, where he studied under legendary labor historian Sidney Fine. He has a J.D., summa cum laude, from Syracuse University College of Law, where he served on the editorial staff of the Syracuse Law Review. His writing has appeared in The Washington Post and online iournals

After his lecture, Gorham will be on hand to sign copies of his book which will be available for purchase that day.

If you're interested in the podcast that brought Anna's story to my attention, it was "Here's Where It Gets Interesting with Sharon McMahon," Season 5 Episode 9, the series called "How Women Won WWII."

It is always a pleasure to receive the Shalom, but of course there are always the obituaries — the news that there are friends and associates who are no longer with us. Sometimes we must cry. I did when I read about the death of Tootie Moyer and her last "Do you remember?" column in the summer issue. Yes, I do remember. A few times I phoned Tootie to chat. I enjoyed her poems as well as the sly wit in her column.

And therefore ..

Kesher Zion Synagogue

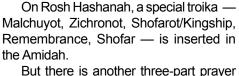

The Season of Repentance is here. It began with Rosh Hodesh Elul on Thursday night, Aug. 17.

And the High Holidays are coming, beginning Friday night, Sept. 15.

During these days there are changes to the certain services. Perhaps the best known is Kol Nidrei, on the eve of Yom Kippur.

liturgy, with some prayers that are unique to

But there is another three-part prayer unit that is part of every Amidah on both Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Each of these three paragraphs begins with the introductory word — ¡çcl uvchein/and therefore.

The focus of these three paragraphs moves from the universal (may all your creatures unite in one fellowship to do Your will) to the particular (that Your people and Your land, Israel, will be granted joy and gladness) to the specific (that the righteous and upright will rejoice when injustice shall close its mouth and You will remove the rule of evil from the earth).

How surprising! When we are digging deeply within ourselves in such a self-centered search to recognize failings, repent and reform, here we are looking at the wider world encompassing all of God's creation. And where is this prayer unit? Nowhere else but in the third blessing of the Amidah, Kedushat haShem, the Holiness of God's Name.

The repeated inclusion of this rubric in every High Holiday service is also reflected in our long confession of sins, the Viddui. There we pray for the forgiveness of the sins shechatanu/that we have sinned before you. People — not necessarily you as an individual but perhaps someone in the community — have missed the mark. If each of us can do better when we next face challenges, then maybe we all will make it a better world, helping realize God's reign, for everyone.

May we — ourselves, our families, our communities, and the world — be blessed with the wisdom and strength to מוֹאבצ תוֹאבצ טְפְשִּתֵב to exalt the Lord of Hosts through justice, for the Almighty, the Holy One, שַּׁרְקנּ is sanctified through righteousness.

May you all be blessed with health, happiness, and a sweet new year.

Preparing for the High Holidays

By Rabbi Brian Michelson

Reform Congregation Oheb Sholom

We all know that part of the High Holidays is the idea that we are supposed to be looking at our past, evaluating our actions, and trying to improve in the future. However, traditionally that work does not start on Rosh Hashanah. It is meant to be something that we begin in the month before the holidays begin.

Elul is the Hebrew month that leads up to Rosh Hashanah, and many traditions say we should start considering and evaluating our lives a bit each day in preparation for the High Holidays. I came across a piece in a Mahzor High Holiday prayerbook that I think embodies the spirit of the work we are meant to do over Elul and the upcoming High Holy Days. It comes from The New Mahzor for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur compiled and edited by Rabbis Sidney Greenberg and Jonathan Levine. It is entitled, "To Do These Things Now".

"As we face the new year we thank you,

O God, for the privilege of greeting it; and we pray for the guidance to live it fully.

"Help us, during the coming year, to do all the fine things which we meant to do "someday," but which we have postponed and neglected.

"If we have been waiting to show someone kindness, to speak a kind word, to make an overdue visit — let us do these things now.

"If we have been waiting to perform an act of charity, to discharge a duty, to assume responsibility — let us do these things now.

"If we have been waiting to uproot a debasing habit, to set aside a festering hatred, to discipline and take charge of our lives — let us do these things now.

"You Years, O God, have no measure; but You have set a limit to our days upon the earth. So, help us to treasure each precious moment. Help us to proceed with all haste to do now — this day, this week, this year — all the things which will make the new year a year of achievement, growth, and blessing."

May 5784 be a year filled with health, happiness, success, and growth for you, your family, and us all. L'shanah Tovah u'metukah.

Life lesson crucial to strengthening relationships

By Rabbi Yosef Lipsker

Chabad Center of Berks County

While in Brooklyn recently, my adaughter and I visited with family in an apartment building.

On Shabbat, as we were coming down the stairs of the building, an elderly gentleman began making his way up. With each step, he was muttering to himself in Yiddish as he counted "one, two, three ..."

My daughter explained that she had met him previously and that he was in fact visually impaired. He was counting the steps and using his mental image from decades of living in the building, to ensure that he was climbing safely and would know when he was at his destination. She shared an episode that had occurred a few days prior:

My daughter was in the lobby of the same building and had called the elevator. This older building, in true Brooklyn fashion, still has a hinged door that must be held open in order to enter the elevator. Noticing this same elderly guy shuffling toward the elevator one morning, using the wall for support, she quietly held the heavy door for him. Yet, as he was just steps away, softly muttering, she noticed he became flustered and confused, unsure where his next steps should be, so she guided him into the elevator.

She immediately realized her mistake. Holding the door open without advance notice caused him to lose his sense of where he was and gave him nothing to hold on to. She then understood that he was used to counting and feeling his way to the elevator — but the open door had thrown him off

My daughter shared that this was an important learning moment for her.

So often in life, we are so sure of what we are doing and truly believe our actions are in another's best interest. We may even pat ourselves on the back for our efforts. In some situations, we may not understand why instead of being thankful for our "help," the other person is confused, disappointed, or perhaps even angry.

The lesson to my daughter was clear: It's important to support others in the way that they need, even if it may not line up with our expectations of what we think they would appreciate.

I am keeping this lesson in mind as we enter the Hebrew month of Elul — the four-week leadup to Rosh Hashana, the New Year. This is the month when we are taught that G-d comes out "into the field" to meet us, when we focus on connecting and developing a relationship with Him.

So often we think we know the best way to connect to G-d, and we have determined in our mind what "makes sense" for us as Jews — what makes us feel noble and spiritual.

However, if we want to not just feel good, but also truly connect with G-d, it can't be about what we're in the mood for, but rather, it's about what G-d wants from us.

Unlike in the story of this elderly man, or frankly in many relationships, G-d has clearly explained how He'd like us to connect: a relationship prescribed through the dictates of the Torah and the observance of Mitzvot/commandments, which has stayed constant for over 3,000 years.

And it's true for our personal relationships as well. By connecting with others — partners, coworkers, children, and friends — at their comfort level, the way they want — not the way we think they should want — we can indeed have the impact and connection we are hoping to achieve.

As we enter this month of Elul and begin to take stock of where we stand in our important relationships, let's take this lesson to heart. May it be a meaningful month for all, and may you all be blessed with a healthy and happy year ahead.

Meet Ms. Wendy: Lakin Preschool co-interim director

By Wendy Bright

Shalom! My name is Ms. Wendy from the Adventurers class at Lakin Preschool. This will be my third year at LPS. I am enthusiastic to be teaching the 4-year-old classroom. Alongside my colleague Judy Lefante, we will be sharing the many facets of co-interim director.

My previous teaching experience includes instruction in all-day kindergarten, first grade, second grade, implementation of small literacy groups and teaching an individualized Reading Recovery Program in the Pittsburgh area for 16 years.

I attended Edinboro University of Pennsylvania with a BS dual certification in Early Childhood and Elementary Education, and a Reading Recovery certification from Duquesne University and Fox Chapel School District.

I have lived in Berks County for 17 years with my husband, Kenny, who is an educator in the Conrad Weiser Area School District.

While living in Pittsburgh, I was immersed in volunteerism at the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh, outreach programs, Odyssey of the Mind coaching and science fairs in our district.

It is an honor and a privilege to be sharing this endeavor with Judy Lefante. We will be working closely with Amanda Hornberger and Brian Chartock at the Jewish Federation of Reading to bring new experiences, activities and opportunities for the parents and children of

Wendy Bright

Lakin Preschool.

We have learned much from our previous leader Ms. Holli. We will strive to provide the dedication and leadership it requires to run a school smoothly. Through clear communication and the ability to be flexible with our young learners, we hope to have a successful year.

We are planning novel ideas, enrichment and effective instruction in our collaboration with JFR.

With the support of our parents, we will build a strong foundation for our children at Lakin Preschool. We will carry on the Jewish philosophy of Lakin Preschool from Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lakin.

Thank you to the Federation for a smooth transition and I am thrilled to be teaching and working with all of you this school year.

Record ROMEO attendance

By Jeff Bornstein

Our ROMEO (Retired Old Men Eating Out) group continues to grow. We continue to find new venues and enjoy new experiences. Our Aug. 1 meeting already seems to be a long time in the past. That was our biggest get-together ever, with 16 people sharing lunch. We were honored to have Brian Chartock, the Jewish Federation CEO, join us for lunch. The luncheon was held at Mimmo's Italian Restaurant, which provided a private room and great service.

There was tremendous interaction, but we learned that it is difficult to communicate from one end of a table seating 16 to another. Mimmo's (on Route 10 in Reading) was a great place to have a meeting, and we will be returning there on Sept. 5. The setting will be in the outdoor eating area, and we will try to have two tables of eight this time to make for easier communication. The conversations include almost everything from boating to photography to vacations. There was interest in how RCOS plans to orchestrate its upcoming indoor food festival. Some members expressed interest in making short presentations on items of interest. Don't hesitate to let me know if it's a good idea or if you have a particular topic you would like to present. Most important however, is continuing old friendships and developing new relationships.

ROMEO is sponsored by the Jewish Federation of Reading. You don't have to be retired to join us - we just like good conversations and great company. ROMEO meets the first Tuesday of every month with exceptions for holidays. Please join us; we like to keep growing and talking with each

MEMORIAL SERVICE

There is a tradition to visit graves of loved ones during Aseret Y'mei Teshuvah, the Ten Days of Repentance. Whether you have family or friends buried here or elsewhere, you are invited to come for a brief service. We honor the souls of the departed, those whom we knew well, as well as those unknown or who have no one to remember them. And we pray that their memories inspire and strengthen us to live meritorious lives. Children and grandchildren may come and experience the importance of remembering/zachor and doing/shamor among other Jewish values.

Neighbors helping neighbors

By Carole Robinson

How can one help but smile on a sunny summer afternoon? I was in my backyard the other day working in my garden and exchanging pleasantries with my neighbors. I waved to my neighbor Mark as he thoughtfully mowed the bottom portion of my lawn, got gardening advice from my neighbor Karen, and exchanged produce with my neighbor Jill. How fortunate I am to have such caring neighbors! This reflection made me realize how much better the world would be if we all treated each other like valued neighbors.

With that thought in mind, JFS has partnered with a new nonprofit organization in town — CommunityAid, Neighbors Helping Neighbors. Its partnership program supports local nonprofits, such as JFS, that address issues such as housing insecurity, food insecurity, and basic needs in the community. Partnership benefits include funding, training and shared services.

Founded in 2009 in Mechanicsburg, CommunityAid has grown significantly over the years and will be opening its seventh thrift store and donation center in Reading on Sept. 6 at 5370 Allentown Pike, North Reading Plaza, in Temple. As a partner, we will help collect gently-used clothing, shoes and accessories for their stores. We have a CommunityAid collection bin in our parking lot, but donations can also be made directly at the store. Just make sure to mention JFS so that we get credit for your donation.

In fact, we have already started our drive with our first clothing donation made in July. RCOS Rummage Sale organizer Adrienne Cardinal generously donated the leftover clothing from that sale to CommunityAid.

A big thank you to Adrienne and RCOS for your support!

In addition to getting credit for donations collected on our behalf, CommunityAid will give JFS store vouchers, called Care Cards, for distribution to our clients. These cards will enable a client to shop with dignity. JFS will be eligible to apply for grants to further address housing and food insecurity. The CommunityAid partnership with JFS will allow us to work together to support their vision of "creating a lasting difference in our community, one neighbor at a time."

Another organization that JFS partners with to help the local community is Helping Harvest. That organization wants everyone to have an equitable and dignified charitable food experience, so individuals receiving food feel socially accepted and part of the community. With that in mind, Sari and I recently participated in a workshop to humanize the JFS pantry experience for our neighbors. We were able to incorporate some of their suggestions; in addition, we and our pantry volunteers will continue to be friendly, courteous and helpful. Even when inevitable problems arise, we will remember to be patient and kind to our pantry neighbors.

If you would like to join us in our goal to be good neighbors, please help us at one of our monthly food pantries. Or think of JFS when you are refreshing your fall wardrobe or downsizing and drop some clothing in our bin. We will even pick it up if you need assistance. If neither of these options appeal to you, JFS is also looking for volunteers to drive seniors to doctor appointments and programs or make friendly visits. There are plenty of opportunities for you to be a good neighbor!

Mr. Rogers sang, "I've always wanted to have a neighbor just like you. I've always wanted to live in a neighborhood with you.

Sari Incledon and Carole Robinson, top, and Federation CEO Brian Chartock demonstrate the new Community Aid donation bins at the JCC.

So, let's make the most of this beautiful day!" Make the most of this beautiful day and contact me CaroleR@JFreading.org or 610-921-0624 for a neighborly volunteer experience!

JFS hospital and outpatient visits

By Carole Robinson and Sari Incledon

Jewish Family Service social workers visit Jewish patients at local hospitals, senior communities, nursing homes and rehab centers.

Our goal in these visits is both to be friendly and supportive at a difficult time, and to provide access to social services that supplement and complement the case managers at these locations.

If you or a loved one is at a local hospital or nursing home and would like a visit, please call us.

If you or a loved one are treated at a hospital out of our area we are also available for follow-up visits upon discharge.

At times of ill health, stress or crisis, families are often looking for information about home care, transportation services, senior communities, nursing homes and rehabs. This is what we're here for.

Please call Jewish Family Service social workers for help at 610-921-0624.

Berks Interfaith Passport is a new chance to explore Judaism as well as learn about Christianity and Islam with other kids your own age! This program is your opportunity to ask questions and learn about other faith traditions. There are no dumb questions and this is a way for you to explore and experience the world in a new way, all without leaving Berks County.

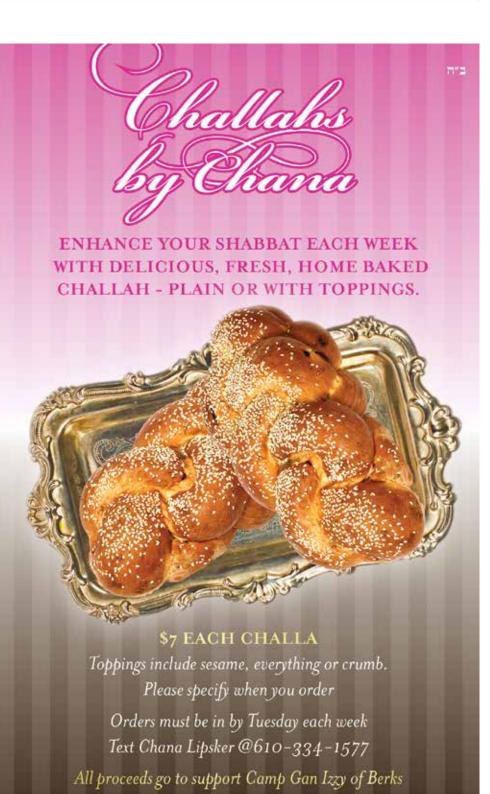

Interfaith Passport Program aims to connect community

By Ziv Laskin

The Jewish Federation of Reading/ Berks is happy to announce a new, exciting project: "The Berks Interfaith Passport."

With this project, we want to illuminate our diversity. Berks County is home to people of different nationalities, ethnic backgrounds, and, of course, different religions.

Even though we are living together, working together, learning at the same school or sharing the same hobbies, we still don't know each other well enough.

We want to educate ourselves about the religions our neighbors and friends are practicing. Children between 7 and 11 years old will come together and learn about Islam, Christianity, and Judaism.

They will get the opportunity to visit different religious organizations in Berks County, such as Reform Congregation Oheb Sholom, Immanuel United Church of Christ, and the Islamic Center of Reading.

The children who participate in the program will "travel" between the religions and stamp their passports after every new experience.

Over the year, we will get together and listen to the stories of people practicing their religions and learn about their individual beliefs, customs, and values.

The children will gain a basic understanding of the different religions and learn about their habits and goals. We will also learn about the similarities our religions share.

All three religions have the habit of celebrating unity with a big meal. We wanted to include this wonderful ritual in our program and will share a meal together at the end of every meeting, giving everybody the opportunity to ask questions, tell their own story and share their faith.

The children will also get the chance to work together on a service project.

We want to show how beautiful it is to share our desire for religion and celebrate together. Getting to know each other is helping us get rid of concerns and prejudices. We open our minds to other religions, which seem unfamiliar. Like this, we can create a peaceful and grateful life together.

We can hope and pray for a future in which religions are not fighting each other, and our youngest generation is our biggest chance to bring this dream to reality.

Summer fun at Chabad's Camp Gan Izzy

Camp Gan Izzy Berks is a Jewish camp cramming action packed, fun-filled days in to one week. Parents and campers gave the Chabad program rave reviews. This year there was a family BBQ one evening and a friends/family of Gan Izzy mini Challa bake with a "Build-a-Challa workshop" and a Shabbat performance put on entirely by the campers from the script writing to the costumes and props.

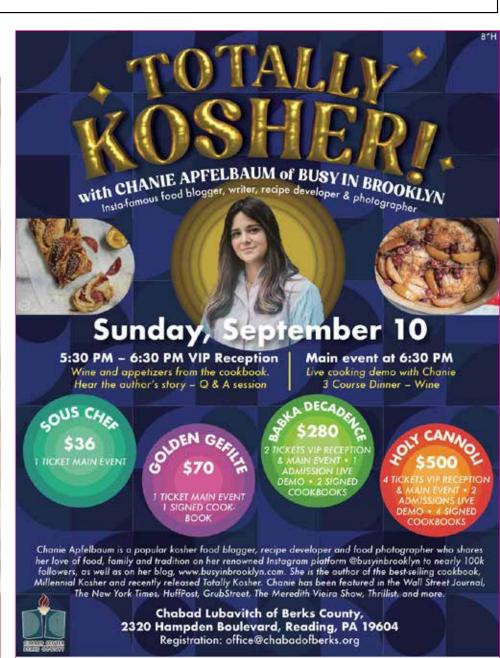

JFS TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM

This program provides transportation to members of the Jewish community, age 60 and over or those with disabilities, who have no other way of getting around. It allows participants to retain their independence and keeps them from becoming homebound and isolated. It can be used for medical appointments, synagogue attendance, shopping and other errands.

It is easy to participate. Purchase a book of 25 taxi tickets from the Federation at a cost of $25. Each coupon is worth $3. The phone number for Reading Metro Taxi is printed on the ticket book. Call the company and arrange your ride. At the end of the ride, sign your coupon(s) before giving them to the driver. Tipping is left to the passenger's discretion. The coupon does not include the cost of tipping.

Federations distribute $249,000 for Maui wildfire relief

Jewish Federations of North America

Jewish Federations of North America are proud to announce that we have distributed $249,000 as of mid-August to address the humanitarian needs arising from the wildfires on the island of Maui in Hawaii. The funds will be allocated to four Jewish communal organizations in Hawaii that are playing a vital role in the relief efforts. As of mid-August, 120 Jewish Federations and network communities had collectively contributed towards the Hawaii Wildfire Fund that was launched this summer.

"The devastation in Maui is immeasurable, but we continue to be inspired by our partners on the ground that have responded with so much care, compassion and professionalism to the needs of the Jewish community and broader population," said Jewish Federations of North America Emergency Committee Chair Wendy Abrams. "When there is a natural disaster or crisis anywhere in the world, the local Jewish community steps up in the most remarkable of ways, and it is the duty and also the privilege of our Jewish Federation system to support these efforts and provide the necessary resources to enable this life-sustaining

The funds will be allocated to Maui Kosher Farm, Jewish Congregation of Maui, Maui Jewish Ohana, Chabad of Maui, and Jewish Community Services of Hawaii. The money will support essential needs of victims of the wildfires including food, first-aid supplies and clothing, the hiring of a case manager to provide emotional support and help victims navigate the immediate aftershocks of this disaster, and temporary shelter.

Jewish Federations will continue to raise funds for the relief efforts and remain in close contact with our partners on the ground as we assess additional

Jewish Federations have a long and proud history of response to global crises, aiding vulnerable Jewish populations and individuals of all faiths and backgrounds in the hardest-hit places. Funds have supported hundreds of relief efforts in the aftermath of major disasters, from
