

Marcy Kuehnle is a native Toledoan. She graduated from the Ohio State University with a major in journalism and a minor in marketing. She worked at Temple Shomer Emunim for 35 years, as a Religious School teacher, Principal and Administrative Assistant. Prior to her time at Temple, she worked in advertising and construction management. Marcy was also a partner with her college roommate, Lynn Nusbaum, in their catering business.

Marcy has been involved in the Jewish community in a variety of ways: from co-chair of the Early Childhood committee to chair of the Marketing committee of the Jewish Community Center. She served on the JCC Board and Executive Board. When the JCC and YMCA merged, Marcy was a member of the JOPC (Joint Operating Programming Committee) to help ensure that there was a smooth transition between the two entities. In 1998, she received the JCC Outstanding Volunteer of the Year award. Outside of the Jewish community, she served on various committees for Ottawa Hills Schools, chaired the Pacesetter Memorial Tournament for several years, and also served as a Board and Executive Board member for the Pacesetter Soccer Club.

Marcy is incredibly proud of her children - Sara, who is an attorney in Washington DC, and Sara's husband, Mike, who is the Senior Director of Development: Foundations, Strategy & Research for Conservation International, a non-profit in Crystal City, VA. Her son Sam is the Vice President of Marketing for LOXO in Jupiter, FL. He and his wife Melissa just had their first child, Collins Elizabeth.

Dena Zack is from Rochester, New York. She graduated from Syracuse University School of Nursing with a BSN degree in 1987. She met her husband Dave in college and they were married in 1992. Dena worked as a labor and delivery nurse in Syracuse, Philadelphia, Dayton and Cleveland. After moving a lot, for her husband's medical training, they settled in Toledo in 1999. They have 3 kids, Shayna who is married to Connor, Sam, and Dahlia. Dena has been volunteering for Camp Ramah and various Federation and Congregation B'nai Israel committees for about 20 years.

Rosemary Chaban grew up in Sylvania. She was active in BBYO through high school. She graduated from Howard University College of Dentistry in 2017 and is currently working at Oak Openings Dental in Toledo, and is taking new patients!

She has been a committee member for JCRC for two years, as well as JSFSS. She completed the “next young leadership” program. Rosemary was also just promoted to the Federation Board for JSFSS. She looks forward to helping the community in any way she can.

Cami Golding was born and raised in Akron, Ohio. After meeting her husband in Cleveland, Cami and Andy have called Toledo home for the past 22 years, raising four children along the way: Joey, Benny, Sammy, and Sophie. Cami's career in nursing spans 30 years, culminating in her current role as the administrator at Peko Surgery Center in Sylvania Township. Beyond her career, Cami actively serves on the Temple Shomer Emunim Board and has contributed to various boards and committees within Sylvania Schools. Her passion for volunteer work and collaborative spirit define her as a dedicated professional and community leader.

Bennet “Dewey” Miller grew up and has lived in Toledo absent his education+ years. He was a practicing attorney for 25 years before moving into business and employment ventures. After a long absence from Jewish Board activities, Dewey was most recently on the Jewish Family Service Board and is very much looking forward to being a part of the Jewish Community Relations Council. Dewey and Mitzi Schuller were recently married and have four children between them; two in Chicago; one in Manhattan; and one in Lake Tahoe, CA.

Adam Goldberg earned his Bachelor of Fine Arts from Bowling Green State University in 2011. One year later he founded Gathered Glassblowing Studio in Toledo, Ohio with his two friends Mike Stevens and Eli Lipman. Over the years, Gathered has evolved into a custom glass shop that functions as a limited production factory. Adam's designs can be bought nationally in a number of galleries, online retailers, and museum stores as well as in the Gathered showroom in Toledo, Ohio. In addition to functional objects, Gathered specializes in site specific, primarily glass installations. As the lead designer, some examples of Adam's work can be found regionally at Sylvania Southview High School, The Toledo Zoo, ProMedica Hospital System, The Renaissance Hotel Toledo, Norwegian Cruise Lines in Miami, as well as many private collections.

Adam has always been interested in exploring the uniqueness of the material. By exploring typical and atypical glass techniques he finds ways to harmonize fluidity, transparency, and color. With his studio line of functional objects, Adam brings those glassy aspects into the user's everyday life. When creating a large installation with glass, Adam uses those attributes as tools to discover ways that glass object can be more: using handmade prisms, or reheating one-way mirror to create reflections and new light patterns; using pattern and repetition to showcase the importance of each unit.

In addition to sculpture and glass, Adam is interested in garden and landscape design. Away from the studio, he spends a lot of time in nature with his wife, Andrea, and their son, Aster.

Daniel Pearlman is the Vice President of Community and Government Relations at the Jewish Federation of Greater Toledo. Originally from Cleveland, he is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a B.A. in Political Science and Judaic Studies and a minor in the History of Art. At Michigan, Daniel was a student leader at Michigan Hillel and completed a JCRC internship at the Jewish Federation of Cleveland. Upon graduating, he became the New England and New Jersey Campus Coordinator at an Israel advocacy organization called The David Project in Boston, MA, before moving to Israel to pursue his master's degree in Nonprofit Management and Leadership from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. While studying in Israel, Daniel completed an internship with Hand in Hand: The Center for Jewish-Arab Education in Israel. He also co-founded and managed the Lilmod language exchange program which brought together English and Hebrew speakers across Jerusalem to build relationships and foreign language skills. The program's success led to its acquisition by Nefesh B'Nefesh, part of the Jewish Agency for Israel, and fueling its growth nationwide. After completing his degree, Daniel moved to Pittsburgh, PA, where he was the Programs Manager at Classrooms Without Borders before moving to Toledo. Daniel loves to hike, eat ice cream, and travel.
