The safety of Jewish organizations and synagogues has long been a priority for Jewish communities worldwide. Considering the December arrest of a Holland man for plotting to attack two Toledo synagogues in the style of Pittsburgh’s Tree of Life synagogue shooting, Sharon Speyer met with community leaders to help contribute to Jewish Toledo’s security measures.

Although the Holland man was monitored for months by undercover FBI agents and the community was kept safe from danger by law enforcement, the news of the foiled plot, as well as a recent rise in anti-Semitic attacks across the country, has left some community members shaken.

Huntington National Bank, of which Speyer is president of the northwest Ohio region, gifted the community a $50,000 grant to go toward making Jewish spaces in the area safer. The amount was matched by Toledo Jewish Community Foundation.

“The Foundation Board felt it was important to support the generous matching fund from Huntington to help our Jewish organizations in Toledo to continue to strengthen their security measures,” said Foundation President Dan Steinberg.

Huntington gifts Jewish community security enhancement grant

The safety of Jewish organizations and synagogues has long been a priority for Jewish communities worldwide. Considering the December arrest of a Holland man for plotting to attack two Toledo synagogues in the style of Pittsburgh’s Tree of Life synagogue shooting, Sharon Speyer met with community leaders to help contribute to Jewish Toledo’s security measures.

Although the Holland man was monitored for months by undercover FBI agents and the community was kept safe from danger by law enforcement, the news of the foiled plot, as well as a recent rise in anti-Semitic attacks across the country, has left some community members shaken.

Huntington National Bank, of which Speyer is president of the northwest Ohio region, gifted the community a $50,000 grant to go toward making Jewish spaces in the area safer. The amount was matched by Toledo Jewish Community Foundation.

“The Foundation Board felt it was important to support the generous matching fund from Huntington to help our Jewish organizations in Toledo to continue to strengthen their security measures,” said Foundation President Dan Steinberg.

Additional monies from state and federal grants, Federal Emergency Management Agency, supporting organizations, and private donors will be added to the effort. Huntington’s welcoming culture inspired and supported the establishment of the fund, Speyer said. “We welcome all, regardless of who they are or what they believe. The horrific Pittsburgh synagogue massacre, where 11 worshippers were gunned down because of their faith and heritage, reminds us yet again that there are many who believe otherwise. We all deserve the right to worship without fear,” she explained. “Unfortunately, there now needs to be safeguards and checkpoints to ensure this basic freedom. Helping establish this fund

OPENING NIGHT

Heading Home: The Tale of Team Israel
Monday, June 24 at 7 p.m.
Running time: 91 minutes | English
Dress in blue and white to show your team spirit. Includes complimentary blue and white candy and popcorn bar. A stirring story of sports, patriotism, and personal growth, Heading Home charts the underdog journey of Israel’s national baseball team competing for the first time in the World Baseball Classic. After years of defeat, Team Israel is finally ranked among the world’s best in 2017, eligible to compete in the prestigious international tournament.

Nora’s Will
Monday, July 1 at 7 p.m.
Running time: 90 minutes | Spanish with English subtitles
When his ex-wife Nora dies right before Passover, José (Fernando Luján) is forced to stay with her body until she can be properly put to rest. He soon realizes he is part of Nora’s plan to bring her family back together for one last Passover feast, leading José to reexamine their relationship and rediscover their undying love for each other. Nora’s Will is a comedy like nothing you’ve seen before, a truly unique tale of lost faith and eternal love.

The Mamboniks
Monday, July 8 at 7 p.m.
Running time: 90 minutes | English
Bagels meet bongos in The Mamboniks, a 90-minute documentary film that tells the little-known story of the Jewish love affair with Latin music. Set in Havana, Miami Beach, New York, and the Catskill Mountains, this fun, uplifting film features a lovable, somewhat zany collection of dancers from the 1950s. Now retired yet still dancing in Florida, they share their passion for the mambo.

CLOSING NIGHT

Shoelaces
Monday, July 22 at 7 p.m.
Running time: 90 minutes | Hebrew with English subtitles
Shoelaces tells the story of a complicated relationship between an aging father, Reuben, and his special-needs son, Gadi, who Reuben abandoned while Gadi was still a young boy. Through the film’s portrayal of a relationship full of love, rejection, and co-dependency, it manages to shed some light and question the importance of human life, human connection, and if life is even possible without either one of them.

Move to the music of the Maccabeats this fall

On September 8 at 2 p.m. at Temple Shomer Emunim, the Maccabeats will perform a free concert for all ages. The Maccabeats are an Orthodox Jewish all-male a cappella group, but as their website proclaims, they aren’t your Zayde’s synagogue choir. Founded in 2007 as Yeshiva University’s 14-member student vocal group, the Maccabeats specialize in covers and parodies of current hit songs with Jewish-themed lyrics. They are best known for their Jewish holiday songs, including a cover of Matisyahu’s Miracle. Each year, they release a well-received Hanukkah music video. The group, now comprised of seven members, has also produced original songs. While the Maccabeats beatbox to imitate instruments, they are strictly a vocal act. This spirited concert is for all community members.
for the security needs of Toledo-area Jewish organizations allows me to put to action what I was taught from an early age: tikkuim olam (repairing the world). I’m proud and honored to work for a company that embraces welcomeness and is eager to help meet the needs of our communities.”

The gift will greatly help the endeavor to keep Federation campus buildings and those in Sylvania and Toledo safe, said Federation President Eric Dubow.

“We are so grateful to Huntington Bank for their generous gift to support our security efforts; the Foundation has matched this gift from Huntington to build what we hope to be a thriving security fund for our community. First and foremost, safety concerns are paramount in our planning efforts across all the buildings that make up our Jewish community,” Dubow said. “We want to assure the community that we are doing everything we can to keep all facilities secure, whether this means supporting trainings, having security presence at our events, and hardening our buildings. We are safe, and we will be vigilant in our efforts to promote our safety through constant review.”

Jewish Toledo leaders are continuously reviewing and developing their security strategies, he added, and are in continuous contact with local law enforcement, FBI, Department of Justice, Department of Homeland Security, and the Secure Community Network of Jewish Federations of North America.

Efforts to strengthen security in and around Jewish buildings include both soft and hard security enhancements and developments.

Soft security measures would include things that the public might not see, such as emergency preparedness education and training, CPR and Stop the Bleed training, and cybersecurity enhancements.

Hard security measures would include physical security measures and tools, such as upgrades to security systems, security cameras, fencing, and other possible physical changes the community may notice in Jewish spaces.

While security plans and protocols cannot be released for everyone’s safety, leaders assure participants and congregants that they are safe in Jewish buildings.

“The safety and security of our congregation is a priority of the Temple board of trustees and staff. We have made both structural and operational changes that have improved our security. We will continue to look at ways to strengthen security measures through our security committee and in conjunction with law enforcement,” said Lynn Nusbaum, Temple Shomer Emunim executive director.

The congregations have long been proactive with their security measures and aim to not only keep up with the ever-changing field of security, but also be steps ahead of the evolution of security threats.

“Congregation Etz Chayim continues to work hard to ensure that the security of our synagogue is the best it can be. We have met with Homeland Security as well as other companies in the area to upgrade our building security as well as making sure that we are all safe during services,” said Bobby Berkowitz, president of Congregation Etz Chayim. “Our long-range planning committee continues to be diligent in our plans to be as safe as possible. Certainly, Congregation Etz Chayim appreciates the efforts of Huntington Bank to enable communications among the Jewish agencies.”

Chuck Traugott, Congregation B’nai Israel synagogue administrator, agrees.

“During the past several years we have made a number of changes and improvements to improve the security of our building and to make our congregants feel safe. This is a continuing effort with additional measures being developed after consulting with local law enforcement and federal resources,” Traugott said. “Along with physical upgrades and procedural changes, the congregation is doing evacuation drills as well as training in dealing with intruders. A grant from the state of Ohio as well as generous contributions from a number of congregants have provided some of the funds needed for these projects.”

Chabad House of Greater Toledo has implemented various security enhancements to its new building and will be doing more soon, said Rabbi Yossi Shemtov.

“Chabad House has a security committee and we are looking at several options for improving our existing safety measures. We are looking forward to reading a report of recommendations from Homeland Security and Jewish Federations of North America,” Shemtov said.

Given that many community members attend functions in each of the several buildings that make up Jewish Toledo, Steinberg suggests a community-based call to action to support current security efforts.

“It would be great if the entire community came together surrounding this issue to come up with a long-range, comprehensive plan. We could then hold a community-wide fundraising event to gather funds to put as much of the plan in place as possible,” he said.
Lion of Judah Endowment program celebrates 25 years of keeping the flame alive

By Jessica Endy

Lions of Judah (LOJ) represent the highest level of women’s philanthropy, making a gift of $5,000 or more to the Jewish Federation of Greater Toledo annually in their name. Greater Toledo has one of the highest Lions-per-capita rates in the country. You have likely seen these generous women, wearing their gold Lion of Judah pins.

If you looked closely, you may have noticed some Lions have a flame. These are Lions who have established a Lion of Judah Endowment (LOJE) with the Toledo Jewish Community Foundation to perpetuate their annual Federation gift forever. Women who create a LOJE establish a charitable gift to care for the Jewish community throughout their lifetime and beyond. Greater Toledo currently has 15 “Forever Lions” providing ongoing support for the local and global Jewish community. (See sidebar.)

“Our Campaign relies heavily on all of our donors, for whom we are eternally grateful,” said Mark Greenblatt, Campaign Chair. “A significant part of the Annual Campaign comes from our women, our leadership, our Lions of Judah and, particularly, the endowed gifts that people have chosen to make to support our operating budget.”

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the national LOJE program. LOJ was launched locally by Linda A. Liber and Joan E. Kripke when they served as Women’s Campaign Co-chairs.

“It has been exciting to watch this program grow, both nationally and in Greater Toledo,” said Arleen R. Levine, J.D., Director of the Foundation. “Our LOJE’s are ensuring that, no matter what tomorrow brings, our Jewish world can continue to grow in strength and vibrancy.”

A LOJE fund can be designed to meet a woman’s philanthropic, estate-planning and tax objectives, while taking into consideration family and financial circumstances. Currently, the three most popular endowment types being used nationally to establish the LOJE are:

• A charitable gift or bequest, made in the donor’s will or living trust. By naming the Federation or the Foundation in one’s will, a woman creates an endowment to provide for estate resources for the future, while incurring no immediate cost.

• A retirement fund. By naming the Federation or the Foundation the beneficiary of all or part of a fund, a donor establishes this as a legacy gift separate from any family assets, will or estate plan.

• Life insurance, a particularly advantageous way for younger women to fund a LOJE. It is simple to arrange and provides an immediate tax deduction on any paid premiums, while still establishing the endowment separately from current assets. Similar to a LOJE, a Perpetual Annual Campaign Endowment (PACE) fund sustains a donor’s gift to the Federation’s Annual Campaign in perpetuity; the initial investment and the income generated will maintain the specified gift. For the Federation’s 2018 Annual Campaign alone, $126,000 came solely from the Foundation’s PACE and LOJE funds.

“The Foundation is extremely fortunate to partner with so many caring supporters, like our LOJE and PACE donors, who have the foresight to direct their generosity to today and tomorrow’s needs,” said Daniel N. Steinberg, Foundation Chairman. “This caring, thoughtful approach to philanthropy is what will ensure that every Jewish generation to come can thrive.”

The Foundation welcomes all community members to partner in meeting current and future needs through a variety of planned giving and endowment opportunities. For more information, please contact Arleen R. Levine at Arleen@jewishtoledo.org or 419-724-0355.

Jewish Toledoan leaves legacy gift to beloved community

By Emily Gordon

Gerald “Jerry” Getz, z’l, was an active member who made many friends there over the years. When he passed away in February at the age of 92, the lack of his presence was immediately noticed.

“Jerry was a friend of mine—a long-time member of our JCC/YMCA 7 a.m. ‘gym family.’ He brightened everyone’s day with his congeniality and unique sense of humor. We miss him,” said Federation President Eric Dubow.

However, Getz’s impact on the community is still felt, and will be by many for years to come. Before he passed away, Getz arranged through estate planning to leave a legacy gift to Toledo Jewish Community Foundation.

“We are so grateful to Jerry for his generosity. His gift will help us strengthen the Federation’s mission to provide the highest quality programs and services related to Jewish Toledo’s welfare, health, culture and education,” Dubow said.

Foundation is honored to be the beneficiary of a legacy gift from Getz, said Foundation President Dan Steinberg.

“Jerry’s legacy will live on through his generosity to our community. His transformational gift will assist Jewish families locally as well as in Israel,” Steinberg said.

Foundation plans to recognize Getz with a Legacy Award this year. Originally from Pennsylvania, Getz was born in 1927, just two years before the stock market crash of 1929 ushered in the worst economic depression in the country’s history.

“Growing up during the Great Depression, those difficult years helped shape his desire to help others. Jerry had a special place in his heart for children and those in need,” said Foundation Director Arleen R. Levine. “Over the years, I had the honor of sharing many conversations with Jerry about his desire to create a legacy gift to help those in need locally and in Israel.”

Getz was “very charitably minded” and wanted to help the Jewish Toledo community and some charitable organizations in Toledo, as well as some in Israel that help children, said his attorney Joe Wittenberg.

“Jerry was one of a kind. He never forgot where he came from or the synagogue he attended as a child in...”

Then, we enjoyed the delicious salad made with colorful vegetables and homemade dressing. Next up was making the pasta dough and stretching it.

Jude Cohen Lingan will be called to the Torah as a Bar Mitzvah on Saturday, July 20, 2019, at Temple Shomer Emunim. Jude is the brother of Clint Lingan and the son of Risa Cohen and Ed Lingan. He is the grandson of Margaret Cohen of Connecticut, Paty Martinez of Texas, and Ian Cohen of Connecticut.

Jude is a member of the National Junior Honor Society at Toledo School for the Arts, where he plays piano. As a Bar Mitzvah project, he has been playing piano for residents at Oakleaf Village twice a month since September. Jude requested that the centerpieces for his celebration be food baskets, which he will donate to Jewish Family Service.

As another project, he is training to be a Friendship Circle volunteer. He completed the Mitzvah Volunteer Program, a six-week training program to learn how to interact with students with special needs. Jude plans not only to help friends with special needs as a volunteer, but also to donate a portion of his Bar Mitzvah money to Friendship Circle. Jude is looking forward to celebrating with family and friends.

Andrew Colin Davis will be called to the Torah as a Bar Mitzvah on Saturday, July 6, at Congregation B’nai Israel. Andy is the son of Hope Davis and Greg Davis, brother of Jeremy and Adam, and the grandson of Harriet Davis and Martin Davis of Sylvia and Gloria Pettman and David Pettman, z’l, of Canton, Ohio. Andy will be an eighth-grader at Timberstone Junior High School where he is a pack leader, a volunteer who welcomes and guides sixth-graders. His favorite subjects in school are math and science. He enjoys playing basketball and baseball professionally. Andy’s mitzvah project is centered around reading to preschoolers weekly and he plans to donate to a literacy program. Andy thanks Cantor Lichterman and Fagie Benstein for their time and effort in helping him prepare for his Bar Mitzvah.

Nicole Stein, born July 31, 2006, will celebrate her Bat Mitzvah on Sunday, June 30, 2019, at Congregation Etz Chayim. Nicole is the younger daughter of Sandy and Johnathan Stein, sister to Samantha, and granddaughter of Edythe Jaffe. She attends Wauseon Middle School as well as the joint Etz Chayim/B’nai Israel Sunday School.

Nicole has many hobbies which include climbing trees, listening to music, singing along to songs, painting or sketching, reading, playing video games, and archery, as well as playing the flute. Her favorite music and artists are songs by Melanie Martinez, Halley, Imagine Dragons, as well as many YouTube artists.

Among her many pets are three cats named Big Boy, Princess, and Boots; six chickens, five hens, one rooster named Rufus, and an almost one-year-old puppy named Carbon. When not busy with other activities, Nicole’s favorite thing to do is playing with her friends, volunteering, looking at nature, and trying new activities.

The topic of Nicole’s Bat Mitzvah will be “Faith and Mitzvot.” Nicole is looking forward to sharing this very special day with all of her family and friends. We wish Nicole the very best as she ascends “MaChayil El Chayil” – from strength to strength. May she always be a blessing to her family and the people of Israel.

Inheritance: A Memoir of Genealogy, Paternity, and Love by Dani Shapiro

Cathy Spering will be the discussion leader.

In the spring of 2016, through a genealogy website to which she had whimsically submitted her DNA, Dani Shapiro received the astonishing news that her beloved deceased father was not her biological father. Over the course of a single day, her entire history—the life she had lived—crumbled beneath her. In just a few hours of Internet sleuthing, she was able to piece together the story of her conception and, remarkably, find a YouTube video of her biological father—his face and mannerisms eerily similar to her own.

Dani Shapiro’s memoir unfolds at a breakneck pace—part mystery, part real-time investigation, part rumination on the ineffable combination of memory, history, biology, and experience that makes us who we are. A haunting interrogation of the meaning of kinship and identity, written with stunning intensity and precision—Dani Shapiro’s most intimate and compelling work yet.

The book is available at the Toledo Lucas County Public Library and its affiliates on Search Ohio, through Amazon.com, and Barnes & Noble.

Lifelong friends host reunion in Florida

Submitted by David Stone

A group of dear Toledo friends recently held a reunion in Sarasota, Florida, that included five graduates of The Ohio State University and two graduates of University of Michigan, Jack Lenavitt (1960), Artie Perlman (1959), Harley Kripke, Eugene Davidson, Stan Krawetz, Bob Baron, and myself, David Stone (1961). We’ve been lifelong friends and all will be 80 this year.

We have all taken different roads in our lives but share a common bond in our Toledo heritage. Among us are doctors, lawyers, and businessmen who have all had successful years in their chosen professions. We have gotten together many times over the years to share our life and family experiences, have had some great laughs, and even shed a tear or two.

We relished reliving the events of our past and many happy times that we shared that have been indelibly etched in our memories. Our exploits that began in Toledo have blossomed over the four corners of our country but remain as a bond that keeps us thriving together. We are indeed grateful for our reunion in Sarasota and look forward to many more years of treasured friendship.

Congregation B’nai Israel surprises longtime volunteer with honor
By Emily Gordon

As a lifelong congregant, Howard Rosenbaum has made Congregation B’nai Israel a huge part of his life. But after decades of leadership roles including chief gabbai, a lay volunteer who plays a substantial role in running services, Rosenbaum has become an integral part of the congregation’s operation.

That’s why Congregation B’nai Israel surprised Rosenbaum on the occasion of his 85th birthday with an event that included a special shabbat service in late March, said Hazan Ivor Lichterman. During the service, two new Torah mantles commissioned from Israel were revealed, their gold embroidered letters displaying Rosenbaum’s name and proverbs 3:2, “For they shall add length of days and years of life and peace to you.”

“He’s a life trustee of B’nai and was on the board and the ritual committee for many years. He chant and leads services on shabbat and on holidays when he can. He has been running daily minyan morning and night for years, every day twice a day,” Lichterman said, listing some of Rosenbaum’s work for the congregation over the decades. “There are very few places of our population size out there who still have two out of four congregations with a daily minyan. We somehow keep it going, and he’s the key to doing that.”

The congregation has honored Rosenbaum before with a pulp lit cover in the chapel, but his 85th birthday “is a biggie,” Lichterman said, and everyone wanted to do something especially nice for him.

Gabriell Mallin researched and found the company they commissioned for the mantles, Kaftor V’Arach Judaica, which is based in Jerusalem, adding to its meaning. Lichterman said, “Every time we take out the Torah, his name will show,” he said. “It’s a really nice tribute.”

Rosenbaum knew he was being honored during the service and that there would be a special kiddish luncheon to follow, but was “tremendously surprised” by the mantles, he said. “I couldn’t talk. I just stood there with my mouth open. That’s a pretty high honor as far as I’m concerned,” Rosenbaum said.

Rosenbaum and his wife Karen’s two children, Lisa and Steven, removed the old mantles and put on the new ones during the service. Two of their five grandchildren were also in attendance to celebrate their grandfather. Rosenbaum was born and raised in Toledo. He grew up in the Old West End, attended Scott High School, and studied business at the University of Toledo. Rosenbaum worked for Goody’s Truck Parts with Goody Liber for 50 years, sparking a long friendship with the Liber family.

His birthday is December 14, but due to his wife’s health concerns, the family decided to instead celebrate his milestone birthday this spring when she could attend. The congregation is especially thankful to Karen for sacrificing so much of their time together to allow her husband to keep the daily minyan alive, Lichterman added. “It really is a labor of love,” he said.

Rosenbaum’s love for the congregation and for his religion is strong. “B’nai is my heritage and my family’s. We have wonderful leaders and wonderful people,” he said. Rosenbaum’s secret to a happy and fulfilling 85 years is a simple one: “Just have a good time and enjoy life.”

“We have a great group of friends who we go out for food with after services every week. I did sculpture for years, but not anymore. I bake all the time and give the food away to my friends. I like to bake Mandel bread and make Russian tea cakes,” he said.

And, of course, he fully enjoys helping out at Congregation B’nai Israel. “It’s important for me to help other people and be friendly. It makes me feel needed,” Rosenbaum said. “It’s nice to be needed, it’s nice to be a friend, and it’s just nice.”

Impressions from a visit to University of Toledo Physician Assistant Program
By Raviv Avraham, David Fisher, and Gil Gorbut

Our delegation from the Galilee Medical Center visited Toledo in January with the aim of becoming acquainted with the work of physician assistants in America whose professional role is well established and significant. At the same time, we wanted to reinforce our connection to the local Jewish community. Immediately, we were moved by the warm welcome that awaited us and the efforts made to make us feel at home and an integral part of the Jewish community. The staff we met at the University of Toledo Medical Center included physicians, nurses, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, and residents in emergency medicine. During our stay, we witnessed firsthand the differences between the definitions of professional roles, delegation of responsibilities, and work protocols in the United States in comparison to ours in Israel.

The responsibility and autonomy granted to physician assistants in the United States is very similar to that granted to full-fledged physicians. In the emergency room, with the help of the nursing staff, physician assistants work in roles parallel to those of the doctors and independently operate the department where less serious cases are brought after triage, similar to what we call the “walking emergency ward.” Physician assistants take medical histories, perform physical examinations, and oversee lab tests, imaging, and whatever other diagnostic procedures are necessary. In addition, they prescribe medication (their prescriptions are recognized in pharmacies) and in unusual or particularly difficult cases, can consult with doctors in the emergency room. This protocol reduces the immense pressure placed on the full-fledged physicians, who are then available to treat the more urgent cases.

Additionally, we saw that physician assistants in the United States also work in additional hospital departments. They may be responsible for admitting patients prior to hospitalization or for performing intake on patients, such as stroke victims, while they are still in the emergency room before accompanying them to the department. We met physician assistants in outpatient clinics who performed surgical follow-ups and were responsible for rehabilitation programs.

The role of physician assistant is a new one in the Israeli medical system. Currently, there are only a few dozen registered physician assistants who work solely in emergency rooms in various hospitals around the country. Today, the goal is to significantly increase their numbers in the coming years to expand their roles to areas beyond the emergency room, and to transform their professional status to one similar to what exists today in the United States. In Toledo, we also met with members of the local sheriff’s office and were introduced to their Drug Abuse Response Team Program. This program is aimed at combating the high mortality rate as a result of drug addiction in the local population in coordination with the staff of the medical center we visited.

We would like to sincerely thank the Galilee Medical Center’s administration and the Foreign Affairs Department as well as our valued friends from the Western Galilee Midwest Consortium Partnership program for the opportunity, for their assistance, and for their support in ensuring the success of our visit to the United States. We also extend our heartfelt thanks to all the dear members of the Toledo Jewish community and the amazing staff of the Toledo University Medical Center who so warmly welcomed us into their midst.

Altoona, Pennsylvania,” Wittenberg said. “His bequest to that synagogue will allow it to thrive for many years to come.”

Getz worked at Ohio Plate Glass Co. in sales before starting his 20-year career at Osterman Jewelers. He enjoyed spending time at the YMCA/JCC, dabbling in the stock market, and being a member of Congregation B’nai Israel. CBI President Buzz Romanoff said Getz’s legacy gift is “very much appreciated.”

“On behalf of Congregation B’ni Israel, I want to express my sincere gratitude for the generous gift from the Jerry Getz estate. Gifts like this help to ensure that Judaism will continue to thrive and flourish here in Toledo,” Romanoff said.

Congregation Etz Chayim has also been touched by Getz’s philanthropy, said President Bob Berkowitz. “Congregation Etz Chayim was honored to receive a bequest from the estate of Jerry Getz. His generosity will enable us to further implement our security needs as well as providing programs for our congregants to enjoy,” Berkowitz said.

A Lifetime Partnership

By Marshall A. Goldstein

This past December, I had the honor of representing Jewish Toledo in a group of educators from Dayton, Ohio; Gary, Indianapolis, and South Bend, Indiana; Omaha, Nebraska; Buffalo, New York; Budapest, Hungary; and the Western Galilee region of Israel. We were brought together for a wonderful opportunity to learn about the activities of an ongoing reciprocal program called Partnership2Gether. This program fosters a learned relationship between schools within Jewish communities around the world and schools in Israel. The main goal of Partnership2Gether is to establish long-lasting connections. The delegation of educators visit each other’s communities to create a living bridge, supporting both personal and professional relationships. As Jewish educators, we strive to promote understanding, awareness, and above all, an engaging experience of Jewish identity involving relationships in Israel and around the world.

On my trip, I had the opportunity to engage with students in diverse environments such as the first Hebrew-Arabic preschool within Kibbutz Evron. These students were put together by a group of adult members from both the Kibbutz and the Muslim village who had been living next to each other for decades and decided to try a different approach to learning. We visited other students with a unique educational approach consisting of humanity, society, and nature. The high school is in a very guarded urban/educational kibbutz in Karmiel. The students were given an opportunity to learn on a completely different level, without being judged, and given acceptance. One day, we were able to visit with students at two schools within Akko: Bustan HaGa’al, a school designed for students with specific needs and emotional difficulties, and Ktizinei Yam, a naval high school where we were able to meet and tour with young cadets from a startup program. We met up with the children from the fifth and sixth grade classes from Regba Elementary School. Temple Shomer Emunim’s classes are twinning with these classes and will reconnect in the fall when religious school reconvenes. We immediately established strong friendships with the educators, principal, and students at Regba Elementary School. This school believes in outdoor teaching and how to better facilitate the environment without depleting our natural resources. They manage a raised bed garden and utilize all of the fresh produce within their food programs.

We visited many beautiful historical sites such as Rosh HaNikra near the Lebanese border. We also went on a tour of Tzfat and learned about how it is one of the oldest cities in Israel. We also toured old Akko city and were able to visit Yad LaYeled, the Ghetto Fighters house. Each stop along our journey of Israel’s rich history contributed to the many dynamic educational opportunities we had. They bonded our group, proving that the Partnership program is very special and that it truly does create a bond between all Jewish people around the world. Israel has so much to offer, as it is rich with history and education as well as diversity and culture. I was proud to be able to represent the Toledo Jewish community in this great program.

A special thank you to Fagie Benstein, Tina Stieben, and Jewish Federation of Greater Toledo for making this trip happen for our community over the years and allowing me the honor of being Toledo’s representative. A special thanks also to Carmit Gilad, educational coordinator in Israel, for an outstanding program and Tony Ziv, Israeli co-chair of the educational committee.
